Blizzard Paralyzes State, Ag Losses Unknown

While the Blizzard of '93 shut down roads and highways for automobiles throughout the East, it opened up miles of traveling range for sleighs in Lebanon County. At the reigns, Kenneth Sandoe, a Lebanon County attorney and owner of this pair of Belgian draft horses, Bessie, nearest, and Bell, drives an Amish neighbor's sleigh, while his children and the children of Kenneth and Janet Winebark ride in the back. Sandoe and Winebark and friends broke out the sleigh and horses after spending two days using their snow removal equipment to help dig out neighboring dairy farmers. Photo by Vern Achenbach Jr.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Today may be the first day of spring, but that means little to the many across the state still recovering from last weekend's blizzard.

It will be some time until state agriculture officials know the extent of financial loss suffered by the state's agricultural industry because of last weekend's blizzard. But even when they do find out, disaster relief will probably not be forthcoming.

Despite early estimates by the major dairy cooperatives and related farm-service businesses that a number of producers were forced to dump several days of milk, no one in the industry had a fix on the volume of milk lost.

Additionally, reports from the field are that many haulers faced topped-out tanks once they were able to get to the farm, and some had difficulty getting full tankers to processing plants.

Although state Gov. Robert Casey had declared a state of emergency for the state that continued by presstime, losses from dumping milk does not officially fall within the same context as crop loss because of drought, flooding, or other wide-spread natural disaster, according to state officials.

Therefore, those producers who were forced to dump milk will

Maryland Holstein Convention Held
In Spite Of Snow, Sale Postponed

EVA MARTIN
Maryland Correspondent

GRANTSVILLE, Md. — The annual convention of the Maryland Holstein Association was held this week in the beautiful snowy mountains of Garrett County, home of the local host association.

In his welcoming remarks, Oren Bender, state president and well known Garrett County Holstein breeder, encouraged everyone to enjoy the beautiful snow and be optimistic about the forecasted blizzard.

"As your host, we (the Garrett County Holstein Breeders) promise to get everyone out of the county, but from then on you are on your own." he said, joking.

Several families, who did not heed the forecast, were stranded in the county for several days.

The convention sale was postponed due to impassable roads and was rescheduled for April 15.

Donna Myers, chairman of the Nominating Committee, conducted the election of new officers.

Oren Bender, from Accident, is to serve as president, Charles Iager, from Fulton, was elected vice president, and Anita Hill, of Emmitsburg, is to serve as secretary treasurer.

New directors elected were Cam Davis, Scott Hood, Kevin Leverton, Arthur Rhoderick, and Harold Smith.

Progressive Breeder Registry Awards for 1992 were presented by Thomas Dum, consultant from the National Holstein Association.

Maryland Holstein breeders who received this award and the number of years they qualified were announced. Recognized were Maple Lawn Farms, Inc., Fulton, 25 years; Marlin Hoff, New Windsor, 12 years; Joseph A. Schwartzbeck, Union Bridge, 9 years; University of Maryland, Ellicott City, 7 years; My Lady's Manor Farm, Inc., Monkton, 7 years; Jason M. & Donna G. Myers, New Windsor, 6 years; Dennis E. Savage, Keymar, 3 years; Savage-Leigh Farm, Knoxville, 3 years; Wayne E. Schrock, Grantsville, 3 years; Roy W. Crow, Kennedyville, 2 years; Gary L. & Brenda Derr, Mt. Airy, 1 year; Michael R. & Anita L. Haines, Taneytown, 1 year; Stewart E. Walker & Sons, Damascus, 1 year.

1992 Progressive Genetics Herd Award winners were Allen Brothers, Jefferson, 2 years; Del-Myr Farm, Westminster, 2 years; D. Richard Flickinger, Union

Because the "Blizzard of '93 " caused problems to get milk tank trucks into farm lanes, hundreds of farmers had to dump milk because their bulk tanks overflowed. Art Erdman, truck driver for Atlantic Dairy, pulls a milk sample at an Amish farm in Lancaster County. Please see photo story on Pages A-34 & A-35.

Conservation Compliance, No-Till Work Hand In Hand

ANDY ANDREWS

GRATZ (Dauphin Co.) — Farmers in the Mahantango Valley and other hilly regions, where conservation compliance through reducing soil erosion is critical but often difficult, face a dilemma: no-till or not to no-till?

While conventional tillage leaves little soil residue (and soil residue is critical to preventing erosion), no-till may be the answer. No-till may save in equipment costs and time, and help save the soil — but in order to be used, farmers may have to spend a little more in seed costs while considering other intensive management practices new to them.

That's the message many of the 100 farmers heard at the Tri-County Agronomy School at the Gratz Fire Hall on Wednesday. They braved the rain and snow mix, and roads still being plowed from the blizzard of '93, to attend the conference, which focused on the effectiveness of alternative tillage considerations, including herbicide and nutrient management in conservation practices.

National Egg Market

Wednesday, March 17, 1993

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE: Prices to retailers were unchanged to higher in the Northeast and Midwest, and unchanged elsewhere. Prices to producers, distributors, and breakers continued to trend higher. The market tone was steady to firm. Demand covered the full range and was mostly moderate. East Coast deliveries returned to more normal schedules as snow removal eased transportation difficulties. Supplies ranged short to ample, and extra eggs remained confidently held or sought. Breaking stock supplies were short to adequate, and prices were higher; some plants worked reduced schedules where finished product buyers began to balk at the higher product costs. Live hen markets were mixed, mostly steady in the Central States, and at least steady in the East and South.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer Market

Wednesday, March 17, 1993

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was sluggish. Seller offerings were fully adequate to instances heavy. Where excess product was available, it was often noted as difficult to place, regardless of price. Live supplies were moderate. Weights were mixed in a full range. Processing schedules were very heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 49-57 cents, but several sellers noted prices as negotiable. Trade sentiment was steady, but very cautious. In the part complex, supplies were fully adequate, instances heavy, particularly on boneless skinless breasts and leg quarters.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, March 17, 1993

Trucklot buying interest was very light and disappointing. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were at least adequate for the light demand. Most trading was reported at slightly lower prices and the trade sentiment was weak. Line run breasts were not as available as early week with trading limited to standing commitments. Yellow skin leg quarters were offered at lower trending prices but most buyers were out of the market until consumer demand improves. Wings were also readily available. Other dark meat items were at least adequate but traded at steady prices.

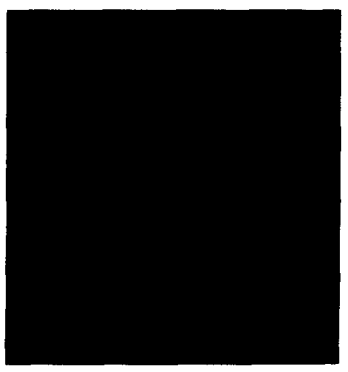
TRIPPER II

The word farmers love to spread.



"After harvesting Tripper, I got three more cuttings of the alfalfa. The stands are thick and no weed problems. My cows loved the taste of Tripper silage and they milked well."
John S Griebiel, Shippenville, PA

Good words about TRIPPER II are cropping up all over. The high-quality forage blend that can double first cutting yields. It's an excellent companion crop for your preferred Agway alfalfa variety. Even in late summer you'll be getting greener, leafier alfalfa—for even higher milk production. There's only one TRIPPER II and only one place to get it: your Agway, Andgrow or Reading-Bone Salesperson. Call today.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

MARCH 22-28, 1993

LIBERTY DAY, MARCH 23.

WORDS

Some people have a way with words Their speeches are remembered for generations, and even schoolchildren can quote from them. On March 23, 1775, such a speech was made by such a person. Patrick Henry was already a successful criminal lawyer and influential colonial leader when he attended the Virginia revolutionary convention in Richmond His argument for arming the Virginia militia assured his place in history as one of the world's great orators and staunch defenders of human liberty His words on that occasion still captivate us today: "Is life so dear or peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

Where liberty dwells, there is my country.

— Benjamin Franklin

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ To remove stains in your coffeepot, boil a potful of water with 2 tablespoons of baking soda.

EARTHWISE

Refrigerators can be real energy hogs. Keeping an old one in your basement just to keep spare soft drinks cold when entertaining could be costing you as much as $120 a year Consider getting rid of it and the unnecessary energy drain. Remember to check the seal on your refrigerator gasket by closing the door on a dollar bill or piece of newspaper If the bill or paper pulls out easily, replace the worn gasket for more energy savings

OPINION

Challenging And Exciting

America's food and agriculture system is one of the world's richest resources, thanks in part to the American entrepreneurial spirit displayed throughout its history. According to Richard Brown, president, New Jersey's Gloucester County Board of Agriculture, a key to American agriculture's efficiency and productivity has been its ability to be open to new ideas, to be risk takers and entrepreneurs and to be effective and skillful managers.

It's appropriate that Agriculture Week (March 14-20 and Agriculture Day (March 20) coincide with the vernal equinox, the first day of spring and the beginning of a new growing season. While the big snow storm this week has our attention bound to related winter activities, it will not be long before the snow is gone and preparation for spring planting will begin.

Robert Leiby and David Dunbar, Lehigh County agents, say that because so many people are separated from production agriculture, they forget how food and natural fibers are produced. This distance comes because of lack of experience with agricultural processes and by complex marketing systems.

In the United States, one farmer produces enough food and fiber for 128 people. This is quite different from other countries where families often have a cow, a small flock of laying hens and a large vegetable garden. Our consumers are able to buy a wonderful variety of foods throughout the year and we spend only about ten percent of our disposable income on food.

Each year, Pennsylvania's agricultre generates a $3.8 billion income and an additional $38 billion in related economic activity, including processing, marketing, and transportation.

And agriculture continues to grow and meet the new challenges of today. Just within the last year, we have seen a number of technical breakthroughs including corn able to produce a biodegradable plastic. What scientists see in the future of agriculture is mind-boggling.

Farmers continue to increase both the quality and quantity of their production while they work to develop and maintain systems that are sustainable and environmentally sound. The future of agriculture is not only challenging but also exciting.

NOW IS THE TIME

By John Schwartz
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Look At Closely Trimmed Beef

For the beef industry to stay competitive, the packing industry is introducing a ¼ -inch trim product to the retailer.

A major factor contributing to the adoption of a closely trimmed product is the competition from the warehouse clubs, which forced retailers to lower costs. Closely trimmed product reduces the amount of labor needed to retail meat.

According to Chester Hughes, extension livestock agent, "Cattle feeders will be surprised at how fast ¼ trim and everything it implies will impact the sale and price of cattle."

He said that as ¼ -inch trim becomes more common, it will force packers to pass value differences (premiums and discounts) back to the producer.

Fat trimming is going to move the industry to value-based marketing. Producers will not being producing fat because there is no market for it and they will be paid on the basis of lean production.

It is estimated within two years, 50 percent of all boxed beef will be ¼ trim and the other 50 percent will be in another five years. Close trimming will also pave the way for tray-ready and then branded products.

Based on carcass data from the 4-H beef program, outstanding 4-H members are producing leaner and higher quality beef than five years ago.

Now is the time to learn how to produce high quality, lean beef if you want to stay in the beef industry. The net effect will be to increase beef's quality and competitiveness in the meat case.

To Raise Sheep With Beef

Chester Hughes, extension livestock agent, believes there are economical and biological advantages to adding sheep to a beef cattle operation. He reminds us lamb prices tend to go up when beef prices fall and vice versa.

Sheep prefer finer plants and cattle coarser ones — therefore, sharing pastures works well. Sheep may be fed out to market on forage alone if quality is adequate, thus requiring little outlay for feed.

There are many acres of idle pasture land that could be used for sheep. As long as sheep are protected from predators, natural meadowland, waterways, woods, orchards or abandoned cropland may be utilized for sheep.

Labor requirements are about two hours of work per year to maintain one ewe and her offspring on farm pasture.

In addition to the sale of commercial slaughter lambs, other marketing opportunities could include freezer lambs, hot house lambs, white wool, naturally dark colored wool, wool products, lambskins, and even sheep milk products.

To Develop Sacrifice Lots

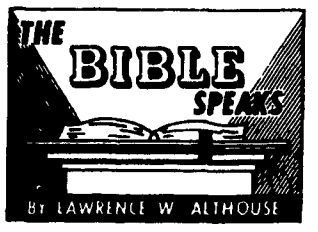
There is probably nothing more damaging to pastures than overstocking them and neglecting them.

To give your pastures an opportunity to become more productive, consider the establishment of sacrifice lots. These are smaller, fenced off sections of pasture located close to the barn and seeded to a rugged grass such as Kentucky 31 tall fescue. This is not a grazing grass but will stand up better to heavier stocking rates.

A sacrifice lot is a place to confine cows outside while protecting your prime grazing lands. Sacrifice lots may be overstocked, too. So, it may be necessary to have a concrete lot where cows may be temporarily confined, especially during wet periods.

Having more than one sacrifice lot gives you the flexibility of allowing one to recuperate while another one is being used.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "In the middle of every difficulty lies opportunity." — Albert Einstein.



ARE WE ALSO BLIND?
March 21, 1993

Background Scripture:
John 9.
Devotional Reading:
John 8:48-59.

I never realized that John 9 is composed of so many questions-twelve of them, I count, in all. Some of them are vital questions to which all of us can relate.

For example, the first one to Jesus: "Rabbi, who sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?" (9:2). That is the kind of question we still ask today: what is the meaning of human suffering? Like his own disciples and the Pharisees, many of us try to find the answer in sin. And it is true that often, when we do something wrong, someone is going to suffer for it. But, as in the book of Job, we find that suffering is not always attributable to sin; so Jesus refuses to speculate. Instead, he says, this is an opportunity for God to do something wonderful. Sometimes I can understand suffering in a specific situation, but other times I can find no reason at all. When I reach that blind alley, it is time for me to say instead, 'Here is an opportunity for God to do something wonderful.'

The next question is also a faith issue: "Is not this the man who used to sit and beg?" (9:8). A similar question was asked of his parents: "Is this your son who you say was born blind?" (9:19). When God does something wonderful we sometimes have a hard time believing it.

There is one question which was asked four times, in one form or another: "Then how were your eyes opened?" (9:10, 15, 19, 26). Instead of rejoicing in the man's healing, the Pharisees were obsessed in finding out how Jesus had done it. Why? Because they were sure he had done something wrong—like breaking the sabbath. It sounds idiotic, but I too have found people who, instead of rejoicing at something wonderful, have persisted with: "How did you do it?" The next question, "Where is he?" (Jesus), also shows that they were more interested in attacking Jesus than in the blind man being given his sight.

"What do you say about him?" they finally asked the healed man (9:17). Failing to find Jesus to reproach him, they turned on the young man himself. They wanted him to say something which they considered blasphemous. Jesus could not be from God and so he could not have healed the man! Because Jesus did not fit into their theology, they were convinced that he was not from God. But even the young man is able to point to their folly: "If this man were not from God, he could do nothing" (9:33).

Jesus asks the next question of the young man: "Do you believe in the Son of man?" (9:35) and he counters with his own question: "And who is he, sir, that I may believe in him?" (9:36). Like many of the questions asked in John, it is not because the questioner doesn't understand—the young man probably had come to the conclusion that Jesus was the Son of man—but because he is being cautious in arriving at his faith: "Lord, I believe."

The last question comes in two forms from the Pharisees: "You were born in utter sin, and would you teach us?" (9:34), they ask the young man. And, "Are we also blind?" they ask Jesus. These are not requests for information, but hostile sarcasm. These men pride themselves on their correct understanding of God and his will and they are furious—and maybe a bit unnerved—at the suggestion that they are the ones who do not understand, do not "see."

And us—do we not also need to be careful when we say, "We see?" For in our smug assurance, may we not also be spirtually blind?

Accurate & Precise In Reduced-Till Fields, Too.

White 6100 planters have gained a well deserved reputation for planting with incredibly accurate spacing at precisely the right depth.

Our short 18" aerodynamically designed seed drop and independently acting walking beam gauge wheels see to it. And our low pressure, air metering system and edge drop seed disc singulates seeds to avoid doubles or skips.

Best of all, the row splitter and wide array of attachments allow you to plant in nearly any field condition—no-till, mulch till, or finely worked—with row widths ranging from 15" to 40".

New 6600 Planter two bar design features interplant row units

York Livestock Day Registration Nears

YORK (York Co.) — Beef, sheep and swine producers are encouraged to attend Penn State Cooperative Extension's Livestock Day program planned for Saturday, April 3rd at the York County 4-H Center at Bair's Station. Producers interested in attending the session are asked to register for the event by March 26th. The program features a combination of group sessions for all livestock producers, demonstrations/activities, a keynote address and breakout sessions of special interest to each group of producers. Registration for the event will take place from 9 to 9:30 and coffee and donuts will be provided courtesy of York Bank and Trust.

The morning program will open at 9:30 a.m. with an update from Penn State's Dr. Lowell Wilson on "Projecting a Positive Image of the Livestock Industry." Dr. Wilson will provide suggestions livestock producers can follow to deal with animal welfare/animal rights concerns. Environmental issues are increasingly important to livestock producers and have costs associated with them. Wayne Steinhour from Meridian Bank, Jim Sigler from York Farm Credit and John Eaton from Lebanon Valley Bank will present a panel discussion on environmental costs for ag loans, new appraisal cost requirements for loans and cash flow requirements for ag loans.

The morning program will conclude with demonstrations and activities including: Selecting a Bull Using Genetic Information, Dr. Erskine Cash; Using Ultrasound to Determine Carcass Traits for Sheep and Swine and to Determine Pregnancy in Sheep, Mike Cherchuck; and a videotape segment on artificial insemination in sheep. Computer software used for livestock record keeping will also be demonstrated. Software demonstrated will include the Pig-Champ® swine records program by Mark Ebaugh; Computerized Cow Herd Records by Bob Liv-

Blizzard Paralyzes State

probably have to absorb several days of losses.

The intensity of the storm made the record books.

Paralyzing the East Coast, from Florida to Maine, one foot to three- or more feet of snow fell throughout the East, especially the Northeast, March 13 and March 14, follow by an short-lived, artic-like cold front that had most of Pennsylvania's schools closed at least two days this week, with delayed opening on Wednesday, while rain fell for most of the day, flooding small streams and low lying areas.

Television and radio weathermen repeatedly referred to the storm as a "hurricane with snow."

Many churches didn't have congregations on Sunday. Most businesses were closed through Monday. Many roads and parking lots weren't plowed until Monday or Tuesday, two to three days after the majority of the snow fell.

High winds, single digit and sub-zero temperatures locked up the countryside Sunday, thwarting efforts to open up highways.

Across the state, because of high winds and the fine, non-sticky snow, within a short time of plowing open a drifted section of highway, many quickly closed up again.

Because of the repeated plowings of main traffic arteries, road crews were backlogged in efforts to keep secondary highways and non-essential roads clear for travel.

On Sunday, the governor had declared a state of emergency and traffic was prohibited to those motorists with vehicles outfitted with snow tires and chains.

Some emergency and rescue agencies and institutions had made public requests for help from owners of snowmobiles and four-wheel-drive vehicles, in case an emergency call required travel to inaccessible area.

Most all state offices were closed Monday, as were most businesses.

On Tuesday, Donald Unangst, director of the state office of the USDA Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said he had just started receiving reports from the field offices which were just getting back open.

"I've talked to people this morning. One of the biggest problems is, of course, dairy farmers getting milk out, getting the roads open to get the tankers in there.

"That's mainly what I heard today. Apparently there has also been some electric out."

In an unrelated matter, Unangst said that Potter County has requested disaster relief because last year's crop was severely damaged.

Unangst said that he heard of damages from winds and snow that caused some barn roofs to collapse and portions blown off, trees being blown down, and electricity being out.

Unangst said that disaster relief will probably not be afforded dairy producers or those others.

"Right now, the only thing (producers might be) able to get would be low interest loans through Farmers Home Administration," Unangst said.

"Unless it's a special disaster which has created some of that, but then usually (the relief) is something related to low interest loans. I don't anticipate that now. It was mostly blocked roadways. But most of those things can be taken care of with insurance.

However, the longer term ramifications for dairy farmers, include cows not getting bred and field work being delayed because of excessive soil moisture.

At Atlantic Breeders Cooperative headquarters in Lancaster, N. Alan Bair, director of member and public relations, said Wednesday that while losses to the members of the cooperative are not yet known, a number of cows didn't get artificially inseminated because of block roads and technicians being unable to get to the farms.

"We made sure the bulls (at the Lancaster stud) were cared for. The way it really affects us, the members obviously, is calls for service were way down because farmers were busy trying to open lanes and removing snow. And many times when we did get a call, we couldn't get to the farm."

Bair said the cost to the cooperative is secondary to the member farmers' losses.

However, he said that by Wednesday, with roads opened up, and warming temperatures, that business was almost back to normal.

"It's been picking up everyday," he said. "As of Wednesday, we're providing service to 100 percent (of members who requested) or close to it.

"Again, the technician not getting in (to the farm), is secondary to dumping milk. We had a lot of farmers tell us about the number of days of milk dumped because the milk trucks couldn't get in," Bair said.

According to Bair, the cooperative service area covers almost the entire state, and there were no areas that didn't suffer because of the snowfall.

At Lancaster, he said two office workers worked Saturday and Sunday in place of the normal three to four shifts. He said barn workers also found their way into work, and some even stayed overnight.

"It was simply loss of buisness due to natural disaster. One of those things that happens occassionally. But in this case it hit everyone. The impact, therefore, is that much greater," he said.

Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative Association Inc., headquartered in Syracuse, N.Y., also reported some milk dumping.

They also had to reschedule an annual meeting that had been set for Tuesday at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center, the first time it had scheduled a meeting there. The meeting is to be held tomorrow at the same place.

Patsy Harrington, a dispatcher for Eastern Milk, said Wednesday, "We've had a lot of producers dump milk and we don't have a handle on things yet. And we've had several high count (sub Grade A) loads" that were sold at lower prices.

Harrington said business was running smoother by late Wednesday, with the haulers able to reach the majority of producers. However, she said, "Some producers out there, with the wind (drifting roads shut), we can't get to them."

At Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, based in Southampton, Laura England, spokesperson, said, "ADC did have some pickups that weren't made because of the snow. But we don't know how much. We asking producers to tell (ADC) field representatives how much (milk) didn't go, but that data isn't compiled yet."

ADC had suffered some loss of income earlier this year when workers at Beatrice Cheese Plant had gone on strike and ADC was forced to divert milk normally sold to Beatrice.

Blizzard Paralyzes State

On Feb. 15, with the strike resolved, ADC began shipping again to Beatrice.

However, the amount of loss suffered because of blizzard-caused milk dumping is not yet known. England said it may be known and will probably be discussed at the April 14 meeting of the cooperative's board of directors at the Mt. Holly plant in Carlisle.

The blizzard did highlight the effectiveness of a decision made several years ago when ADC went to all contract milk hauling in an overhead-reduction move. "We were real pleased with how the haulers did overall," England said.

In Lebanon County, Kenneth Winebark, extension agent, said he tried to drive to Grantville, and what normally is a maximum 40-minute drive took him four hours. He said he continually had to retrace his tracks when a road ended up being blocked shut.

However, he and a part-time farming neighbor, local attorney Ken Sandoe, spent most of Monday using Sandoe's tractors with front end loaders to dig themselves out and to dig out neighboring farmers who needed to have a milk truck get in.

The snow also brought out a number of sleighs, since roads were covered with up to several inches of hard packed snow even on Tuesday.

Winebark said most of the dairymen he talked to in the Lebanon Valley managed to get their milk shipped out and didn't have to dump.

Winebark said a number dairy farmers, such as Nelson Troutman, not only plowed out their own lanes, but used their own equipment to clear township roads so milk trucks could get to the farm. Township crews were busy trying to keep main arteries open.

He said, the ground is already saturated and not frozen deeply. "It's going to be a while before people get into the fields. Things are going to be delayed, but if you get a turnaround in weather, two weeks' time can make a lot of difference."

Reed To Entertain Poultry Federation Banquet

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Jerry Reed, the energetic and personable country music star will entertain at the twenty-sixth Annual Fund Raising Banquet of the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation. The banquet is scheduled for the night of the infamous IRS deadline, April 15, 1993. Festivities begin with a social at 5:30 p.m. followed by dinner at 7:00 p.m. at the Hershey Convention Center in Hershey, Pennsylvania. Over sixteen hundred people are expected to attend the fund raiser. Proceeds after expenses provide the operating budget for the Federation which is the "watchdog" for the Pennsylvania poultry industry.

Reed was born in Atlanta, Georgia, and learned to play a guitar at age eight. He learned "country" as a young man touring with Ernest Tubb and Faron Young. Reed is most recognized for his sidekick role with Burt Reynolds in the "Smokey and The Bandit" movies. But his stage high jinks and humorous novelty tunes earned him the title, "THE ENTERTAINER" by his peers. In addition, he surprises audiences with a little bit of rhythm and blues; gospel; rock and roll; jazz; and classical music.

For ticket information, contact the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, at 717-652-7530.

STILL NUMBER ON

Big Dutchman.®

If You Are Looking at Another Cage System, Take A Moment t Se

No matter what you have heard from our competition, Big Dutchman is still Number One, with the best cage system by far. Locally some Big Dutchman systems are approaching their twentieth year of service, and still going strong.

Our feeder delivers feed to the birds uniformly, amply, and with great reliability.

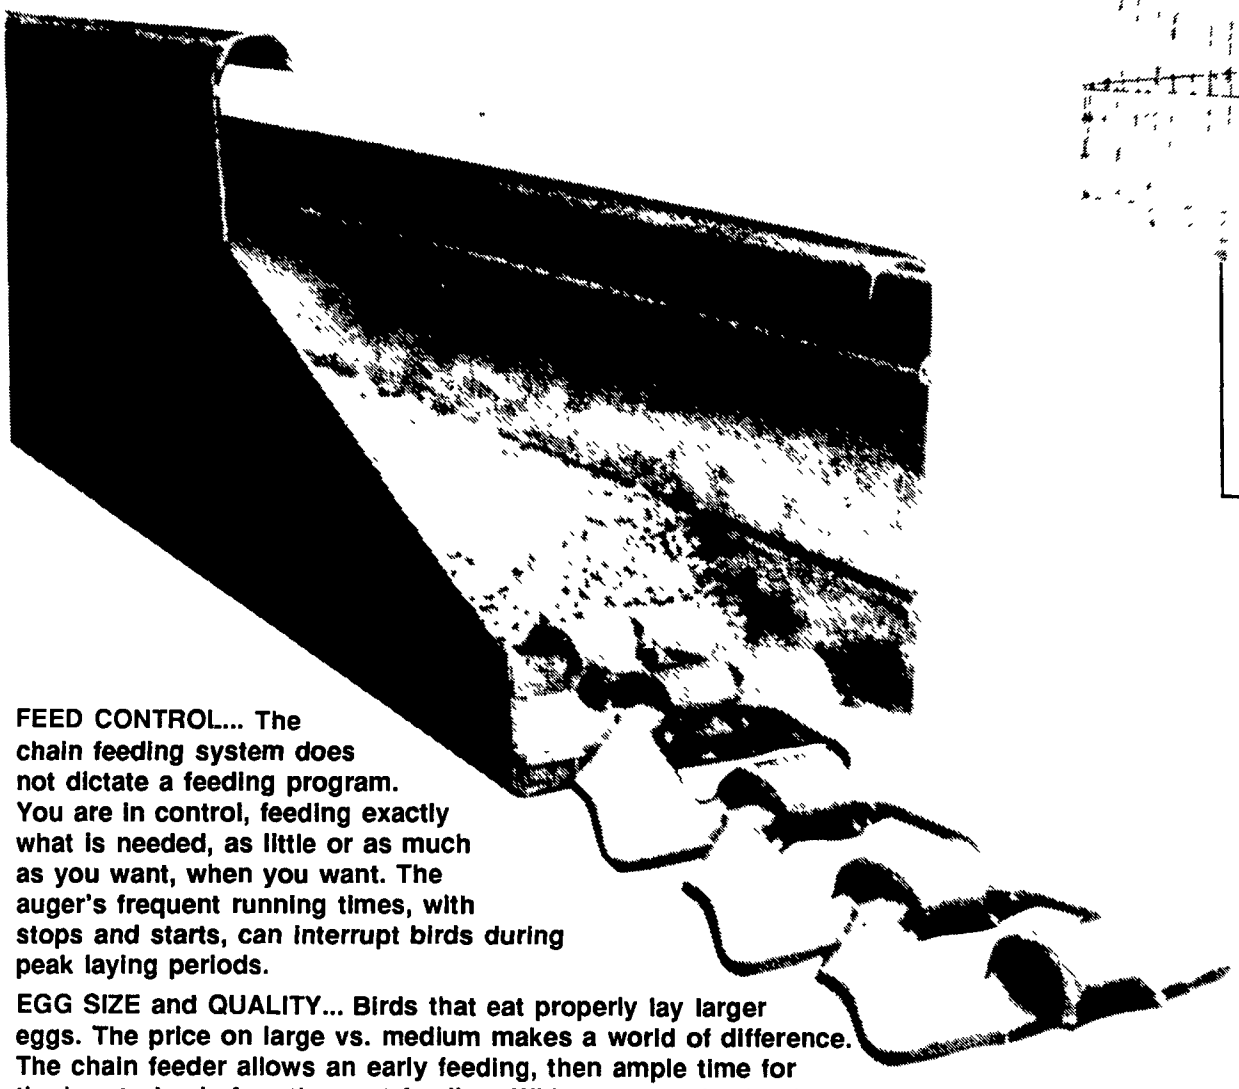
WHOSE FEEDER IS BETTER?

DESIGN... Our chain feeder allows easy access to feed, but keeps feed levels further below the lip of the trough compared to the grinding auger feeder. The chain feeder has a steep sidewall, discouraging feed build-up. The auger feeder trough has a slope that allows build-up, inviting mold and disease. Our trough is ribbed, for strength. Theirs is built for price alone.

FEEDING SPACE... Actual feeding space with the auger feeder is skimpy. In fact, our chain feeder has 2½ times more feeding space per bird. This allows the chain feeder to run as few as three times per day, while the auger must run eight or more times per day. Chain carries the feed and supplies a uniform ration with no waste.



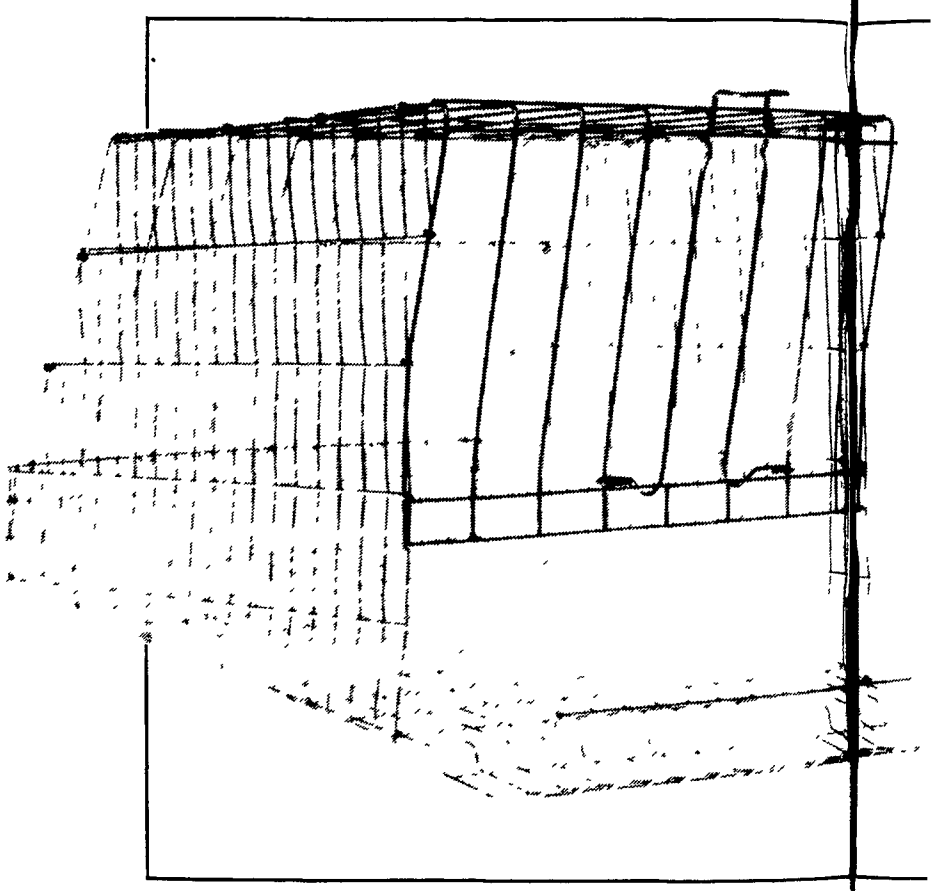
FEED CONTROL... The chain feeding system does not dictate a feeding program. You are in control, feeding exactly what is needed, as little or as much as you want, when you want. The auger's frequent running times, with stops and starts, can interrupt birds during peak laying periods.

EGG SIZE and QUALITY... Birds that eat properly lay larger eggs. The price on large vs. medium makes a world of difference. The chain feeder allows an early feeding, then ample time for the hen to lay before the next feeding. With an auger feeder, hens fight for feeding space, spend much more time than necessary at the feeder, and create unwanted activity in the cage. The results are smaller eggs and more crax and chex. Profits go down. Put a pencil on it.

REPAIR and MAINTENANCE... The hardest thing about repairing a chain feeder is remembering where you left the hammer and chain breaker tool some months back. With an auger system the need for a welder, torch and grinder is almost routine. Downtime is up, and repair hours and expenses rise with it.

THE TEST of TIME... The chain feeder seems never to wear out. Some thirty year old units are still performing every day. On the other hand, the auger system is "short term," with time as it's enemy. Our goal is to help you make a profit, and chain feeding plays a leading role.

WHOSE CAGE IS



STRENGTH... The wrap-around single piece construction of our heavy duty front, top and back makes our cage stronger.

GALVANIZING METHOD... The formed bottom and back are completely double galvanized. In addition, we double galvanize every cage partition completely, from top to bottom for the ultimate in protection from rust and for longer service life. Double galvanizing actually provides more than three times as much zinc, compared to single galvanizing.

CONTROL... Our cage is designed and constructed to control egg roll, significantly reducing crax and chex and providing cleaner eggs.

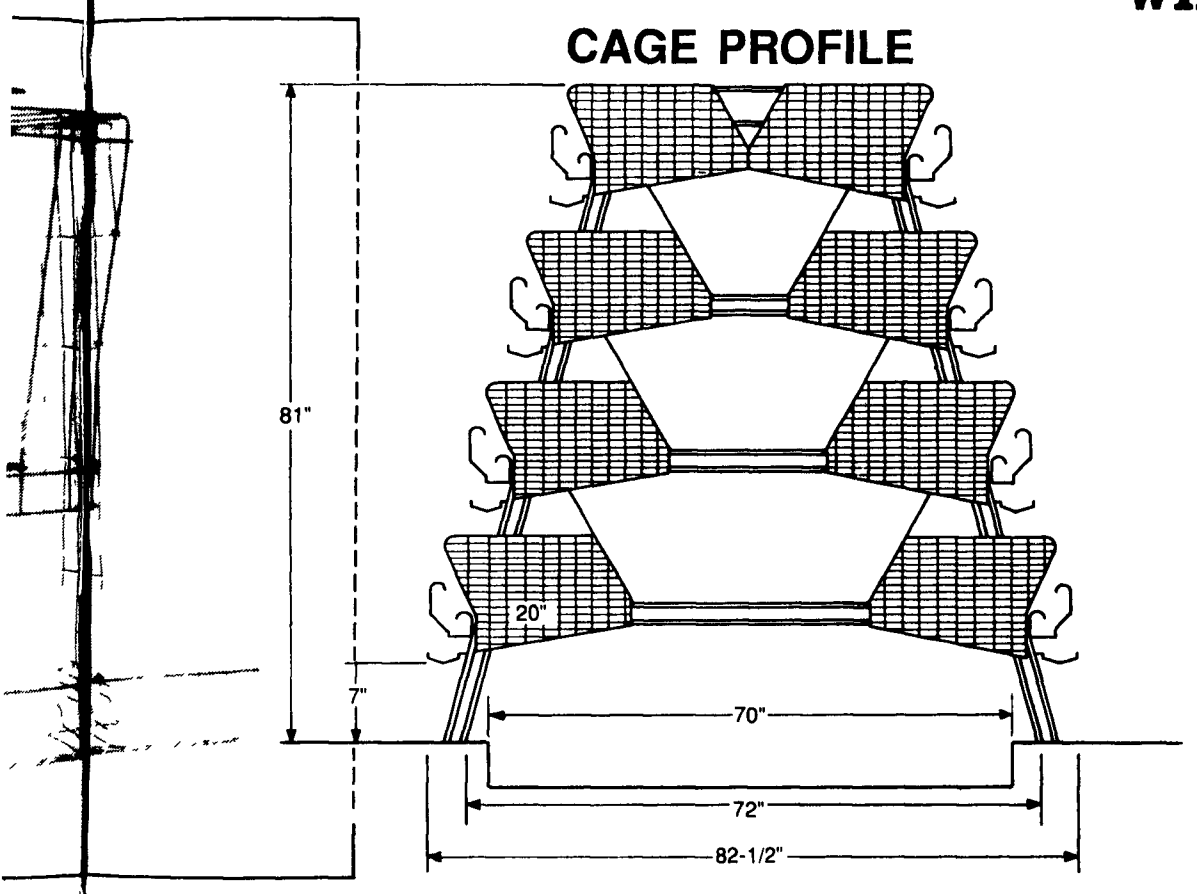
and HERSHEY EQUIPMENT CO.

See How It Really Measures Up To The Original, Big Dutchman

Couple the Big Dutchman cages with a Hershey-designed building and equipment installation and you have an unbeatable combination for service and efficiency.
A Hershey system is better ventilated, and has been proven to use less electricity.

A Hershey building includes more lumber and heavier metal in its construction, and therefore is stronger by design.
And, there is a real bonus in it, because a Hershey built system provides a bigger percentage of larger eggs for a longer period of time.

CAGE IS BETTER?



CAGE DOORS... Our sliding door is easy for the operator to open and close, but impossible for a bird to open. Once closed, the door stays closed.

ALIGNMENT... Our rows stay aligned, enhancing top performance from the feeders and egg collectors.

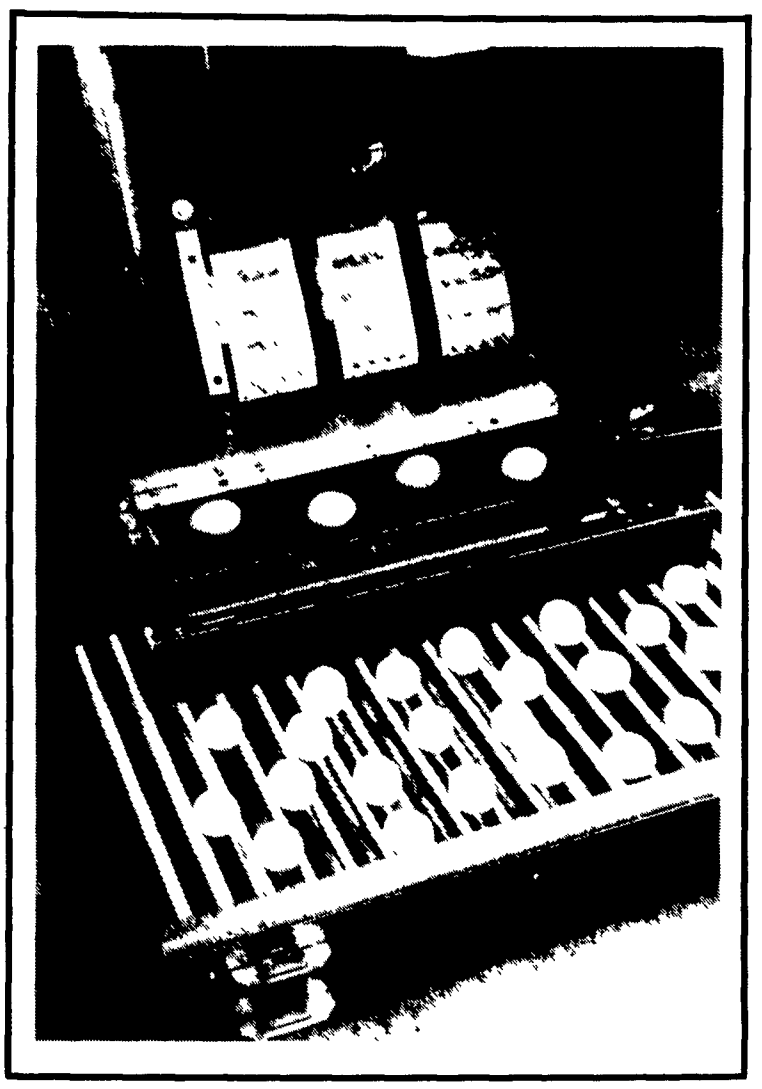
A PROPER FIT... Our feed trough fits snugly on the cage. This provides strength, and protects eggs as they move to the egg belt. The straight inner side of the trough also acts as a manure shield.

WHOSE COLLECTOR IS BETTER?

FINGERBELT TRANSFER... The Big Dutchman fingerbelt collector utilizes a series of rubber fingers mounted in a durable belt to hold eggs in a safe position on the incline, going down from cage belts to cross-conveyor.

DUAL DRIVE... Each collector has two drive motors, one for each side. This provides better control with fewer moving parts. Shafts and bearings are all heavy duty material.

PROVEN ROD CONVEYOR... The rod conveyor moves eggs from the collector to the packer with no rolling or colliding. It can move up and down inclines, and is ideal for moving eggs between several houses and the packing room in multi-building farms.



QUALITY EGG BELT... We offer our standard 3¾ inch woven fabric belts. A shallow "V" shape in the wire egg tray keeps eggs in the center.

UNIQUE DESIGN... The Big Dutchman collector does not protrude or hang over the cross conveyor. The full width of the conveyor is used to handle more eggs with less contact between eggs. Dirt, feathers and soft-shells drop through the rod conveyor and are not carried to the packer.

State Grange Set To Visit Washington Legislators

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — About 75 members of Pennsylvania State Grange will go to Washington, D.C. March 23-24 to discuss issues facing agriculture and rural America.

Among the issues to be discussed are rural health care, food safety and user fees.

Brenda Shambaugh, State Grange legislative director, said the Grange has scheduled a meeting with a representative from President Bill Clinton's health care task force to receive a progress report from the committee and to convey Grange policy.

"Health care affordability, availability and quality continue to be a crisis in today's society," Shambaugh said. "The Grange is striving to meet the health care challenges of a dynamic and progressive society."

Grange supports: universal access to health care; Universal Health Insurance that is privately funded, administered by an advisory panel and accessible to those who don't currently have any benefits; a cost structure that controls rates; and limited governmental control.

"The Grange also believes there should be tax benefits to employers providing health insurance to employees and individuals who acquire their own insurance," Shambaugh said, "and clinics for emergency services or primary care for rural communities too small to support a full service hospital."

Shambaugh said food safety is a hot issue that both producers and consumers will face in this session of Congress. Pesticide residues in processed food is of immediate concern.

"The Grange supports legislation on food safety that will assure consumers of the safety of their food supply while allowing agricultural producers to continue to operate in an efficient and environmentally safe manner," Shambaugh said.

The Grange feels the Delaney Clause, which established a zero tolerance level of pesticide residue back in 1950, should be amended to set safe residue tolerance levels for hormones, antibiotics, pesticides and other chemicals used for food production.

"With new technologies, the detection of chemical substances is thousands of times more precise," Shambaugh said. "Thus, to meet the zero tolerance standard, many pesticides that are currently used in the production of food would be eliminated."

Shambaugh said Grange is opposed to the Clinton Administration's proposal to implement user fees for meat and poultry inspections.

"Meat and poultry inspection is one of this country's oldest public health programs," Shambaugh said. "It was not conceived as a revenue raiser, and it should not be distorted to become one now. The purpose of this federally-mandated program has always been, and should always be, the health and safety of the American consumer."

Grange policy states that mandatory programs for public health and safety must be differentiated from those voluntary services that are offered by the federal government from which industry derives an obvious product benefit, according to Shambaugh.

The Pennsylvania State Grange's Washington tour is an opportunity for members to visit their legislators face-to-face. Also on the agenda is a congressional breakfast and a meeting with senators Arlen Specter and Harris Wofford.

Conservation In Place From '60s Till Now At Krantz Farm

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Narrator Gerald Heistand of the Lancaster Conservation District repeatedly showed two different slides of lush, beautifully maintained fields to reveal that the conservation practices evident in the Willis Krantz Farm in the 1960s, he said, "are still there in the 1990s."

And for a multitude of efforts in order to promote conservation and soil stewardship, the family was honored Thursday night as the 1993 Outstanding Cooperators by the district.

More than 120 were present at the banquet, which also honored contributions made by individuals to the district through the years.

The Krantz family — Willis, wife Mim and sons Jim, Bill, Dave, and daughters Donna Spangler and Debbie Chinworth, together with hired hand Erik Samuelson — farm 268 acres (215 tillable) at Drumore Center in East Drumore Township, near Quarryville. Willis has been working with the conservation district for 30 years. They milk 102 registered and grade Holstein from a double six parlor and manage 86 heifers and calves. Crops include 115 acres of corn (plus 50 acres rye, double-cropped for forage), 68 acres of hay, and 12 acres of rye, and they manage 44 acres of woodlot and 15 acres in pasture.

Willis, who went to Lampeter-Strasburg High School, worked for his father for 10 years, and then rented a farm for six years. In 1962, he purchased the home farm (148 acres) and in 1966 purchased the Bleacher Farm (120 acres) nearby.

Since that time, the family has been practicing conservation. In 1991 they installed roof runoff management through the Chesapeake Bay cost share program.

In the 1970s, a new barn measuring 208 feet by 68 feet with 134 freestalls was built. Later on, a 62 foot by 14 foot circular manure storage was constructed, designed for six months of storage. A pond built earlier was not holding water because of the shale parent material, according to the district, so Willis decided to put in a sealed structure instead of a manure pond.

The contour strips on the farm is the main conservation practice used to control erosion, according to the district. On the southern farm, undisturbed sod is left to serve as a waterway, and on the north farm, constructed waterways are used. Manure is incorporated, except when spread on the cover crops or on a no-till field. They soil test regularly, and have tested their manure.

Jim Krantz has been working on the farm since high school, and has now bought more than half of the hered. Donna is on a crop farm with her husband Dave Spangler in Fulton Township. Bill Krantz works as a carpenter, and Debbie Chinworth is a registered nurse in Lancaster. Dave Krantz recently received his bachelor's in art from Kutztown University.

Willis has been active with the Solanco Young Farmers and received the Outstanding Young Farmer Award in 1968. They are members of the Mechanics Grove Church of the Brethren, where Mim has been teaching two-year-old Sunday School Class for 30 years. They have been with the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative for 38 years, and Willis serves on the board of the Lancaster County Farmers Association.

The district has scheduled the next Youth Conservation School for July 25-31 of this year, to be held at the Northern Lancaster County Game and Fish Association located in West Cocalico Township.

Presented at the banquet for service to the district were Ken Depoe, who was appointed to the district board of directors in 1968 and served through December 1992, and Bob Gregory, who joined the district in April 1983 as administrator.

Herbert Myer was presented with the Director's Achievement Award.

The board of commissioners of Lancaster County issued a proclamation at the banquet designating next week as Conservation District Week.

DER speaks

Michael Krempasky, director of the DER Bureau of Land and Water Conservation, spoke about the uniqueness and diversity of the state's conservation districts at the banquet. He spoke about the growth of the programs (budgeted at $100,000 in 1980 and $1.5 million today) and about the positive progress made in implementing a wide array of conservation planning.

The DER is undergoing reorganization, which now makes up six regional offices. He spoke about the importance of the DER and conservation district partnership in strengthening and promoting projects such as the Clean Water Program and the Chesapeake Bay Program.

Krempasky told the directors and guests that he would like to help "in any way I can to see that your voice is heard in Harrisburg," he said.

Maryland Holstein Convention Held In Spite Of Snow, Sale Postponed

Bridge, 2 years; Marlin Hoff, New Windsor, 2 years; Kevin Scott Hood, Middletown, 2 years; Jason M. & Donna G. Myers, New Windsor, 2 years; Lester M. & Wilma D. Strite, Hagerstown, 2 years; Kenlin & Mary Martin, Smithsburg, 1 year.

Jeff Myers, chairman of the Breed Improvement Committee, said he challenged Maryland breeders to be people of integrity and to create a foundation and example for our youth on our farms as well as in the show ring.

He congratulated Tom and Bonnie Remsberg for obtaining National Young Holstein Breeder recognition.

Due to the sale of his cattle, Myers is to turn over the chairmanship of the committee to Steve Wilson.

Myers presented the production awards along with a slide presentation of each farm receiving an award. Production awards are based on energy corrected milk (ECM).

(The ECM formula takes into account the protein and fat when adjusting the milk for components. This formula helps to identify cows and herds that produce high volumes of milk solids. The ECM formula is 7.2 x lbs. protein + 12.95 x lbs. fat.)

In the senior 2-year-old cow class, Lady's Manor Jeweled Cleitus made 32,561 pounds ECM, for My-Lady's Manor, of Monkton. The award sponsor was Kimstead Farm.

In the 3-year-old class, the winner was Unicorn Associates, of Union Bridge, for production by Unicorn Mark Lorraine, of 36,368 pounds ECM. The trophy sponsor was Whitelyn Farm.

Among the state's 4-year-old Holsteins, Grubby-Neck Ziggy Potts, owned by Robert J. Meredith, of Federalsburg, was top with production of 38,415 pounds ECM. The trophy sponsor was Glad-mar Farm.

In the 5-year-old cow class, Savage-Leigh Farm, of Knoxville, received a trophy sponsored by Maple Lane Farm, for the production of 36,062 pounds ECM by Savage-Leigh Milkee Kristy.

A Savage-Leigh Farm cow also took the top ECM production honors of the 6-year-old and older cows, with Savage-Leigh Glenview Linda posting 43,045 pounds of ECM. The trophy was sponsored by Coldsprings Farm.

The Lifetime Milk Production Award went to Maple Lawn Farms, of Fulton, for the efforts by Md-Maple-Lawn Sue Sky Chief, a cow that made 277,340 pounds of milk. Derrwyn Holstein provided the trophy.

For lifetime fat production, Maple Lawn Farms' Md-Maple Lawn Sue Sky Chief won for making 11,719 pounds of fat. Central Maryland Farm Credit ACA sponsored the trophy.

Other awards presented included that for:

- High Herd 89 Cows and Under for Milk, on DHI test — Tom and Joy Crothers, Oxford, with 56 cows making 25,849 pounds ECM;
- High Herd over 90 Cows for milk, DHI — Savage-Leigh Farm, Knoxville, with 151 cows averaging 25,185 pounds ECM;
- High Herd 89 Cows and Under for Milk, DHIR — Robert J. Meredith, Federalsburg, Hoodstead Farm Trophy 48 Cows 27818 ECM;
- High Herd over 90 Cows for milk, DHIR — Harmony Farm, Federalsburg, 137 cows averaging 25,919 pounds ECM;
- Owner of high MFP $ Cow — Mike Creek, Frederick, for Conant-Acres Pontiac Sally-ET, calculated at $319;
- Owner and Breeder of the highest MFP $ Cow — Catoctin Embryo Transfer, Charles L. Bray & William L. Graves, Mt. Airy, Catoctin Melwood Lola-ET, with a $308 value for MFP;

- High herd BAA, under 90 cows — Pintail Point Farm, Queenstown, with 55 cows carrying a 109.5 BAA;
- High CTPI Cow in Maryland — owned by Ronald Heffner, of Jefferson, Bayville Mark Evey-Et carries a CTPI value of 1,357;
- High CTPI Cow Bred and Owned in Maryland — owned by Gregory & Brad Wiles, of Williamsport, Futuraland Tesk Pamula carries a CTPI Value of 1,309.

Also during the convention, each committee chairman gave a report of their activities conducted during the past year.

National Director Marlin Hoff said he has been urging members to attend the Winter Forum meetings, bringing ideas and suggestions to pass on to the Brattleboro office.

Due to the cost of $260,000 per year, he said the National Board voted to discontinue the free pedigrees with registrations beginning July 1, 1993. The Maryland Holstein Association voted to make a recommendation to increase fees $1 to continue this service.

In other news, he said the national association will soon be sending out a notice encouraging members to contribute and become charter members of a foundation to support youth programs through the national association.

Mel Hertzler, from the national office, told the group that national Holstein wants to be more visible and involved in breed promotions throughout the membership.

The show committee reminded everyone to review the PDCA Field Day rules and adhere to the dress code's white-on-white except for the Spring Show.

It was also announced that Harold Smith, of My-Ladys Manor Farm will be taking over as chairman of the Show Committee.

Horace Backus, a member of the national Board of Directors and well known pedigree man, was the convention guest speaker.

It is said he knows more about the history of the Holstein breed of cattle than any one man currently alive. He talked about the importance of cow families and their impact on history.

"The great thing about breeding cows is it gives you the opportunity to excel," Backus said.

Md. Youth Honored

EVA MARTIN
Maryland Correspondent

FROSTBURG, Md. — The awards banquet of the Maryland Holstein Association was held here this week in the Magestic Gardens at the Comfort Inn.

Members of the association take pride in the accomplishments of their youth and award many trophies and scholarships to encourage the youth to attain even higher goals.

This year there were two years of record book winners announced to catch up to the current year's winners, rather than always being 15 months behind in recognition.

Also, this year, Mark lager and Chip Savage will have their books sent to national competition.

Donna Myers, chairman of the Junior Committee, was given a certificate of appreciation for her seven years of dedicated service.

It was also announced that Cam and Ann Davis will be taking over the responsibilities for this committee and look forward to working with the youth.

The scholarship fund of the Maryland Holstein Association is in its 20th year. Through the generosity of Maryland Holstein breeders and friends, the number of scholarships given has grown from one at $300 to present seven at $500.

Several scholarships were presented during the banquet. Receiving $500 scholarships were Dawn Knill, Woodbine, University of Maryland; Stacey Guyton, Jefferson, Virginia Tech; Amy Savage, Montgomery, Virginia Tech; Janelle Rinehart, Carroll, University of Maryland; Jennifer Trout, University of Maryland; James Allen, University of Maryland; Laurie Zimmerman, University of Maryland.

The fun auction to benefit the Maryland Dairy Judging team for their trip to national competition in Europe was held after the banquet.

Bringing a top price of $1,050 was a Lone Star Quilt. A Hoard's Dairyman milk bottle brought the second highest price of $700.

A wide variety of items were donated, including a 1992 World Champion Redskins autographed football, craft items, antique butter mold, honeymoon suite for two, golf date with Marlin Hoff, baskets filled with homemade rolls, jelly and butter, famous paintings, hand pierced lamp.

The net proceeds of the auction were $11,312.50.

The anxiety over the weather became very evident as table after table made an early exit to return home, some having a four- to five-hour drive to the Eastern shore.

Of those who decided to brave out the storm, 18 were stranded at the Holiday Inn in Grantsville until Sunday when Interstate 68 was reopened.

Among the award presentations made, the Lifetime Production of Milk award went to Amy Savage, Montgomery, for Savage-Leigh Jo Amy, posting production of 221,486 pounds ECM.

Juniors recognized for receiving All—American nominations for 1992 were:

dependent on farm site, and can fit into any farm system, according to Joel Myers, state agronomist with the Soil Conservation Service (SCS), who spoke on how to achieve optimum residue management. But farmers who have used conventional tillage and want to switch to a minimum tillage or no-till system have to learn the (sometimes) complex management skills needed.

For one thing, higher seeding rates are needed — often as high as 15-32 percent more seeding in order to get the proper stand, according to several Wisconsin and Iowa studies, said John Yocum, Penn State extension weed specialist and manager of the Landisville Research Station. Soybeans often can compensate, but corn — especially on abused, poorly drained soil with low organic matter content — can have reduced yield.

Growers "may not be overplanting enough" to ensure proper yield, according to Yocum. Farmers should "get out and count, and see what population is in the row," he said.

Farmers using no-till have to follow a corn-soybean rotation, or face lower yields, according to Yocum. If they choose to continue a monocrop of corn following corn, minimum tillage provides better yields, according to data from the Landisville Resarch Station.

No-tilling works best on soils with higher organic matter, that are well-drained, and follow a consistent crop rotation. Also, farmers should keep in mind that the soils will be cooler, which means a slower emergence and higher grain moisture. Farmers should also look closely at compaction, which can negatively affect yields, according to Yocum.

If using no-till, farmers must "do their homework," according to Yocum. No-till requires herbicides to treat weeds. To help keep herbicide costs down, farmers should learn exactly when the weeds emerge, and treat at that time. Also, with no-till, there are more weed seeds and volunteer corn in the upper soil layers, because of the lack of tillage. Also, with residue, it is a lot harder to control weeds because the herbicide often gets tied up with the residue. Yocum admitted it is a "lot easier to control weeds with a clean surface than with residue there," he said.

The rule of thumb is to remove weeds 4-6 weeks afater planting to avoid yield loss. Weeds that emerge beyond 4-6 weeks after planting seldom affect yield, according to Yocum.

Whatever the application, farmers should carefully read the rates.

Fertility, pH

Other factors necessary in no-till management include soil fertility, which is affected closely by pH, according to Doug Beegle, Penn State fertility specialist. Beegle said that nitrogen fertilizer is the "biggest single source of acidity in our soils."

The consistent application of manure fertilizer and other types of fertilizer creates an "acid roof" in the top soil layers, according to the specialist. The pH is lowered because of the breakdown of urea fertilizer, present in all manures and some commercial fertilizers. When farmers lime, the pH affects the top layer first — and may take many years to reach layers further down.

When obtaining a soil test, Beegle said to remain consistent — obtain a measurement at a constant depth. Farmers should consider two separate tests — one for the top layers and another one to the bottom of the plow layer — to obtain exact pH measurements. The soil pH affects the ability of herbicides to perform, as well as other nutrients, particularly phosphorous.

For maximum benefit, fertilizer should be applied right before a rain. Also, fertilizers work better if incorporated into the soil at time of or soon after application.

For no-tillage or minimum tillage, a starter fertilizer may increase yields because of the colder soil temperatures and consequent slower root growth.

(Turn to Page A31)

Conservation Compliance

Evolving legislation

Beegle also provided an update on the evolving state nutrient management legislation, which is now considering two animal units per acre (he said one cow and replacement is the equivalent of two animal units) as basis for creating nutrient management plans.

According to Beegle, farmers who calculate manure amounts on the farm have to carefully consider "uncollected manure" in the exercise or sacrifice lots. Often, he believes, the manure ends up in places "where it shouldn't. Where is the uncollected manure going?"

Only half the nitrogen in manure is available the year it is spread, and the other half is slow-release nitrogen, according to Beegle. Farmers must keep that in mind when considering manure application planning.

Rely on management

Farmers must rely more on residue management than tillage in keeping to conservation compliance, according to Myers.

There are many benefits, including the effectiveness of residue in reducing soil erosion. Also, farmers can see savings of up to $10 a pass/acre in equipment wear and tear, fuel, time, and other factors, according to Myers.

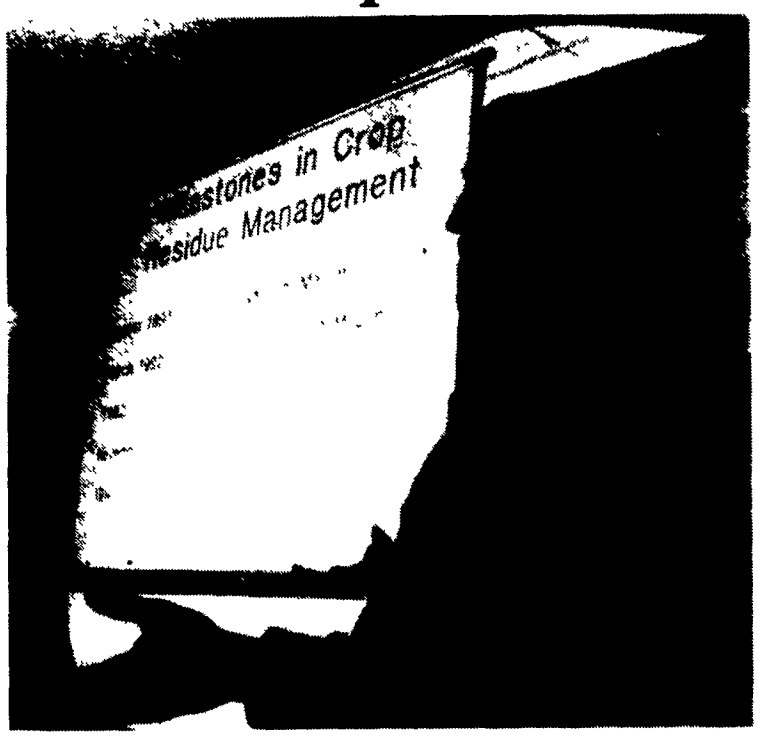
But with using no-till, the overal soil loss is so much less than conventional tillage. And in some hard-to-farm regions, no-till is being used successfully.

If you have to use conventional tillage, use it to solve only specific problems in specific areas, according to the SCS representative.

Overall, industry, agencies, and farmers and working together to share information in providing improved soil stewardship.

Also at the meeting, Norm Conrad, Union County extension agent, provided a water table recharge model demonstration to show how groundwater is recharged and some of the ways water sources can be affected. The model was constructed by students from Iowa State University in Ames, Iowa.

"Our farming practices have an affect on our water supplies," said Conrad.



Conservation compliance is dependent on farm site, and can fit into any farm system, according to Joel Myers, state agronomist with the Soil Conservation Service (SCS), who spoke on how to achieve optimum residue management.

American Cyanamid Announces New CEO, President

WAYNE, N.J. — The board of directors of American Cyanamid Company announced that upon the recommendation of Chairman and Chief Executive Officer George J. Sella, Jr., it has elected Albert J. Costello as CEO and chairman and Frank V. AtLee as president of the $5 billion life sciences company effective April 1.

The board also announced the retirement of William A. Liffers, vice chairman, on April 6, following 40 years of service with Cyanamid.

Costello will succeed Sella, who is retiring March 31 following a 39-year career with Cyanamid. Sella will continue as a member of Cyanamid's board of directors. AtLee will succeed Costello as president of the company.

Sella, who will be 65 in September, said, "The election of Costello follows the succession plan which had been agreed to by the board of directors in December 1990. I am pleased with the major restructuring that has been completed over the past several years, transforming Cyanamid into a life sciences company with strong medical and agricultural businesses. I am confident that this new management team, which has played such a key role in Cyanamid's evolution and success, will lead the company into a new era of sustained, profitable growth."

On February 2, Cyanamid announced record 1992 sales of $5.27 billion and record net earnings of $395 million.

Since Sella became Cyanamid's chief executive officer in 1983, Cyanamid has strengthened its medical and agricultural businesses through increased research and development spending and selected acquisitions and mergers. Recently, Cyanamid and Immunex Corporation announced an agreement to create a new biopharmaceutical company by merging Cyanamid's Lederle Laboratories oncology business in North America with Immunex.

During this period, Cyanamid also divested the Formica brand products business, its consumer products business, and many of its chemicals product lines. In addition, the remaining chemicals business has been separated into a new business unit of Cyanamid under the Cytec Industries name.

Costello, 57, was elected president of Cyanamid and a member of the board of directors in 1991. He had been an executive vice president and member of Cyanamid's Executive Committee since 1983. During his career, Costello has held various positions in the company's agricultural and chemicals businesses as well as its international business, including overseas assignments in Mexico and Spain.

Costello, who joined Cyanamid as a chemist in 1957, was born in New York City and holds bachelor's and master's degrees in chemistry from Fordham University and New York University, respectively.

AtLee, 52, was elected a member of Cyanamid's board of directors in 1991. He was named an executive vice president with authority over Cyanamid's worldwide medical business and a member of the company's Executive Committee in 1983.

During his career, AtLee has held various positions in the company's medical, agricultural, and chemical businesses. He joined the company in 1966 as a technical sales representative. A native of Richmond, Va., he is a graduate of Lynchburg College with a bachelor's in chemistry and biology.

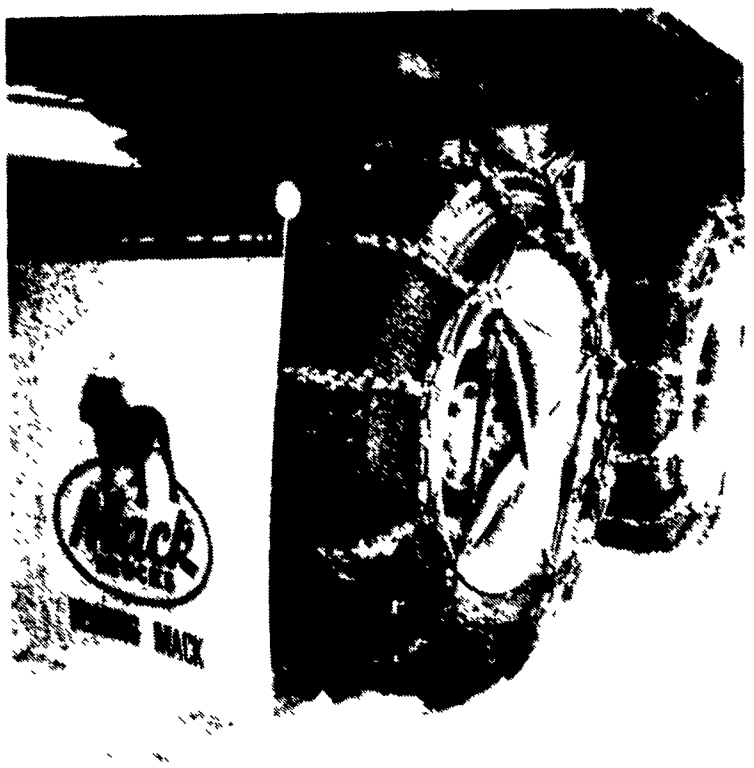
Blizzard Keeps Milk Haulers On The Road Day And Night

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

ON THE SNOWY BACK ROADS NORTH OF PARADISE (Lancaster Co.)—"The first day of spring is one thing. The first spring day is another. The difference between them is sometimes as great as a month."

Henry Van Dyke is credited with this statement. But Art Erdman, milk truck driver for Atlantic Dairy from Leola, and every other milk hauler on the East Coast would certainly agree that the "Blizzard of '93" last weekend didn't seem much like spring. With the tons and tons of snow on rural roads from Georgia to Maine, milk trucks couldn't get to dairy farms for regular pick-ups. And with farm bulk tanks bulging and overflowing with several extra days of the "liquid health," the bulk milk truck driver became the most sought after, the most prayed for, and the most welcome person to arrive at the farm.

For Erdman, the nightmare began last Saturday when he needed to leave home in the blizzard, breaking away from his nine year-old son Nicholas, who cried because he didn't want his daddy to go. On his usual round of pick-ups on Amish farms, Erdman made it through to almost the end of the route before he got stuck in a farmer's lane.



Dogging It Through.

Anyone who knows Erdman, knows he never puts chains on his truck--in fifteen years of driving milk truck, only one or two times at most. But he put chains on last Saturday and finally worked his way in and out of the remaining farm lanes and started down Route 30 toward the Lehigh Valley plant at Lansdale. The snow and 90 mile per hour wind made visibility so bad he missed the Coatesville bypass and ended up in town, needing a snow plow to get him back on the right road again.

The milk was finally delivered to the plant, but, of course, Erdman didn't get home that night. Little Nicholas must have had a premonition, because his daddy still had not been home by Wednesday afternoon when this reporter found him at an Amish farm with another full tank load of milk.

Erdman likes his job and he takes it seriously. "The farmers depend on me to keep their bulk tanks empty so they can milk again," Erdman said. "And I depend on them to keep the farm lanes open so I can get in. It's a partnership."

On Wednesday, at the last farm on the route, the truck was full, and Erdman could only take about half of the milk in the farmer's bulk tank. But it gave the farmer enough room so he did not need to dump any milk from the next evening and morning milking.

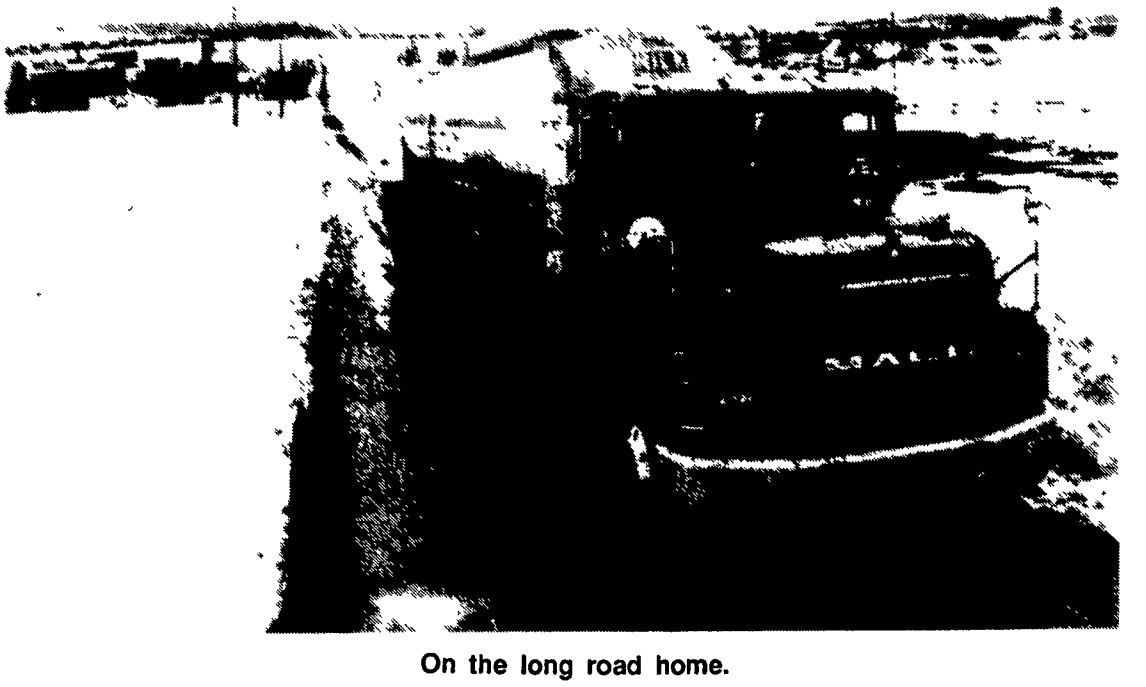
"I'll be back tomorrow to empty the tank," Erdman told the Amish farmer. "I just sleep better when I know all my farmers can milk without throwing any away."

And with that, Erdman stopped in the farm lane, dropped his tire chains, and headed for Lansdale. Hopefully, Nicholas saw his daddy again sometime late Wednesday evening or early Thursday morning.

Full of "liquid health."

So long; see you again tomorrow.

A hands-on experience.



On the long road home.

Eastern Meets Sunday

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The blizzard that swept through the Northeast over the weekend has forced Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative to reschedule its semi-annual Delegate Meeting in Hershey, Pa. from Tuesday, March 16, to Sunday, March 21.

The meeting, scheduled to run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center, is expected to attract over 200 delegates and members representing dairy farmers from Lake Champlain to the Chesapeake Bay.

It is the first delegate meeting the dairy cooperative will hold in Hershey, and the third ever to be held in Pennsylvania in the co-op's 70-year history.

Based in Syracuse, N.Y., Eastern has 3,000 member farms throughout the Northeast, with the majority concentrated in Vermont, New York, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

The farmer delegates will meet to discuss the co-op's operations, "debate several proposals to change the cooperative's bylaws" and "will act on resolutions submitted by farmers concerning dairy policy direction," Eastern President Lewis Gardner said. As president, Gardner heads the co-op's board of directors. When he is not working on co-op business, he runs a family farm with his wife and sons in Galeton.

"The AgMaster difference really shows up in my forage test results!"

"I've used AgMaster Inoculants for the past three years and I think it's an excellent product... We milked 115 registered Holsteins during the first year we fed AgMaster-treated silage, and we saw a definite increase in milk production as a result of increased consumption... I sure would recommend AgMaster to other farmers because it gives me good quality feed, it's easy to handle, and the frozen shipping/ liquid application method really makes sense."

Bird Atlas Provides Wealth Of Information

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

PITTSBURGH (Allegheny Co.) — Heavy snows brought hungry birds in search of food to many backyards this past week.

For those who sighted rare birds or even the familiar species, curiosity was often aroused. Where do these birds nest? What kind of bird is it? What is its characteristics?

A newly released book, Atlas of Breeding Birds in Pennsylvania, is the most comprehensive book detailing birds in the state.

According to the University of Pittsburgh Press, the book required more than 2,000 volunteers to trudge through wetlands, mountains, and farms in search of birds. The volunteers were trained to map the habitat of the birds and document the breeding of the birds. The 484-hardcover book highlights 188 species with drawings and a two-page spread of the historical and population trends of each. A map shows the locations in which each of the species was found between 1983 and 1989.

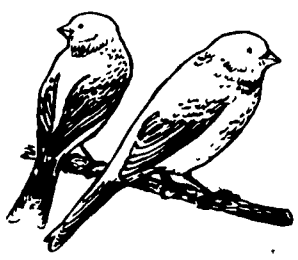
Every 10-square mile atlas block in the state was surveyed with a total of 4,928 survey areas. That required 100,000 hours or 48 person years in field surveys, which does not include travel time to and from blocks or administrative time compiling data and recruiting.

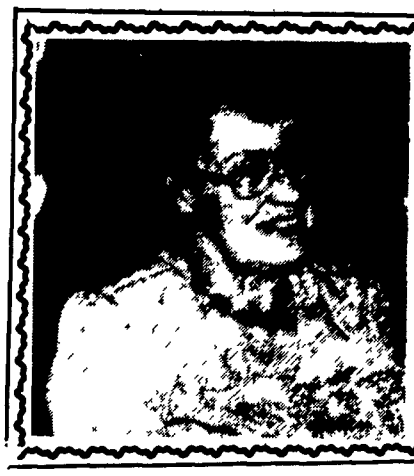
Danie W. Brauning edited the book.

In addition to descriptive information on each bird, the book includes graphs and eight acetate overlays showing state's ecozones, generalized elevations, mean summer temperatures, precipitation, forest types, land cover, and river systems.

The book is appealing to novice bird watchers as well as wildlife and environmental specialists.

The book is available at all major bookstore chains or from Pittsburgh Press, 127 N..Bellefield Ave., Pittsburgh, PA 15260, for $34.95 plus $3 for shipping. Or, call 1-800-666-2211.





Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Things often do not turn out the way that you expect them to. The other week a snow storm was predicted and so our daughter told us she would not be home for dinner. As I had already stuffed a beef heart, I decided to invite someone else. Our daughter-in-law informed me that their son was sick and they could not come. So, I invited a friend and her husband but was told that they do not eat "organ" meats.

But, I didn't give up as I had baked a cherry pie and a lemon meringue pie that morning and wanted to share them too. When I phoned my sister she told me they could not come as she had just put a large turkey in the oven. That was a good reason not to eat at our home. Another sister has a job and was away at work on a Saturday. So, Allen and I ate alone but no one can say that I didn't try to have guests.

Our daughter came later in the day and said she had been baking pies too for a church benefit. However, when she left the kitchen for a few minutes, their dog ate the apple pie left on the counter. What saved her was the pie stored in the oven for themselves, which now was taken to the church.

Talking about unexpected happenings, this past week a big wind storm blew down a 70-foot pine tree on our smokehouse on the farm. It not only broke in the whole roof but some of the bricks must be replaced too. Just this past year a professional photographer was here to take pictures of the unique building and now it is a shambles.

Milk Lady From Franklin County Gains Popularity

BONNIE BRECHBILL
Franklin Co. Correspondent

St. Thomas (Franklin Co.) — Jennifer Rosenberry's father called her "my little Dairy Princess" when she was a child. Now, a dozen years later, she isn't "little," but he can still call her his Dairy Princess.

Jennifer, 17, is Franklin County's Dairy Princess and the first alternate Pennsylvania Dairy Princess. Her parents, Charles and Jewel, started farming when she was three years old.

"She's wanted to do this ever since she was four or five," Charles said.

Jennifer's skit gives the history of the Christmas tradition of Santa drinking milk instead of soda or coffee. Because her skit had placed first in an earlier presentation to the judges, she gave it before the audience the night of the state pageant in September.

Although Jennifer said that she did not do well with her impromptu question during the pageant, "it was a fun weekend." The impromptu question is important, she said, because people often come up to a dairy princess during promotions and ask questions, and "you have to have an answer," she said. She has been asked many questions about Dr. Spock's views on milk. At a mall promotion, people wanted to know what she thought about the controversy and she told them, "Milk is low in fat."

Numerous Activities

As Franklin County princess, Jennifer has done mall promotions for June Dairy month and Ag Weekend in October, presented assemblies in the Tuscarora School District elementary schools, spoken at several banquets, written newspaper articles, and done 5-6 radio spots. On morning announcements in her high school, James Buchanan, she gives a milk tip for nutrition.

As state alternate, she gave out ribbons at the All-American Dairy Show and the Farm Show, worked in the dairy booth and at the butter sculpture at Farm Show, and appeared at several state meetings.

Jennifer rode in three Christmas parades in one day last November—in a convertible with the top up, because it was raining. She said she was in the swing of such numerous promotions last autumn, then in December there were few events. After New Year's, when the pace picked up again, "it was hard to get back into it," she admitted.

She also attended the Fulton County Tri-Ag banquet, trying to get a dairy princess program started there. She averages about two appearances a week, although she has done as many as five.

All these activities have caused Jennifer to mis 21½ days of school during her senior year. When she has an event scheduled that will require her to be gone for all or part of a school day, she gets her homework ahead of time and works on it. She also has to write a 200-word essay for each full day she misses. Her teachers "haven't been too happy with all those days," she said, "but there's nothing I can do about it." A National Honor Society member, Jennifer has maintained her place on the Distinguished Honor Roll.

On the Home Front

Jennifer said she helps out with milking chores on her family's 140-acre farm "whenever I'm home." She owns 11 milk cows in the family's string of 85, and also a dozen calves and heifers.

Even though Jennifer is busy, she finds time to take care of her calf, Jane.

During FFA week, Jennifer passed out milk to elementary students who visited the Baby Barnyard at her high school.

Jennifer's family has been a great support to her during the hectic months since she was crowned. Her mother is her booking chairman. "You can spend three or four hours setting up things for her to do," Jewel said. Her father escorts her to the numerous banquets. Sister Carmen, 14, feeds and waters the calves, takes care of the sheep, and sometimes helps to milk. When Jennifer was at the Dairy Princess seminar in Williamsport for four days last summer, Carmen filled in with milking and unloading hay.

Jennifer has been accepted into the pre-veterinary program at Delaware Valley College, and plans to attend veterinary school at Purdue University. She was accepted to Governor's School at Penn State last summer, but could not attend because it overlapped with the dairy princess seminar she had to attend in July.

"I'd have had to be the Franklin County alternate if I didn't go to the seminar," she said.

She also could not have competed in the state pageant. "I didn't get accepted to Governor's school as a sophomore, then last year I got accepted, then I became Dairy Princess and everything conflicted," she said.

That disappointment has not dimmed her enthusiasm for the program, however, and she encourages other girls to run for dairy princess, even if they think they are too shy.

"It's too great an experience to think about being shy," she said. 'You learn, if you have the desire to do it."

When giving a presentation to elementary school children, Jennifer tells a story that she learned at the seminar about a cow named Geraldine. "I tell about what she eats and how she milks," she said, adding that the children usually answer correctly when asked what they think a cow eats. She also explains about the Real Seal, which she said the children like to help their mothers look for in the grocery store.

She enjoys having a positive impact on children. A second grader who remembered Jennifer from an elementary school promotion recognized her at FFA week activities and exclaimed, "You're the milk lady! Are you going to give us milk?"

And of course, Jennifer did.

At right, Jennifer uses Velma Lou, a beautifully-dressed stuffed cow, in the skit she presents to school students.

Homestead Notes

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

My recent yearnings for signs of spring have been fulfilled.

On a dark and drab morning, damp, chilly winds riffled the ponds' surfaces. On closer study, more was stirring the pond waters than March gusts.

Geese? The geese were back!

I grabbed the field glasses, kept ever handy on the microwave, and started counting. Eight mature Canada geese, each identical in greyish-brown feathering and telltale white face stripe. Same number of last year's flock of parents and six offspring. Could it be?

But wait. Five more off in another corner of the big pond showed up in the glasses. Plus a couple of mallards hanging around the lower edge of the gray, wind-swept meadow waters.

Even as I watched, though, the smaller flock of geese departed to the noisy accompaniment of honking protests. Their loud, argumentative calls could be heard even behind out tightly-closed doors.

Well, the behavior hadn't changed. But could it really be "our" mating pair of geese, back for a fourth hatching season? Only when we could get a closeup view of the male, identifiable by the smattering of white feathers in his sleek black head, could we be sure.

When we slowly approached the pond, the big birds swam to the distant bank, eyeing us with caution and perhaps distrust.

"Did you see the geese?" asked a voice when I answered the phone that morning. It was neighbor "Bobbie at the bathtub" as she usually identifies herself. (The old bathtub in the cow lot adjoining her house serves as a watering trough.) Bobbie shares our affection for these beautiful birds that have graced us with their fascinating presence since The Farmer devised them a mid-pond meeting site four years ago.

A week of squabbling ensued. The flock of five did not return. But, a second pair showed up shortly afterward. Run off from the pond, they took refuge in the hayfield several hundred yards away. Honking arguments continued for a day or two. Occasionally, the two pairs shared the waters, but in distant corners.

Could we hope for a second nesting couple? In previous seasons, the original pair eventually chased off all potential squatters in "their" territory — the entire meadow and both ponds.

Even while the two pairs vocally sparred about who was going to claim what, waves of honking sounded overhead. "Vees" of geese streamed steadily northward, groups of a dozen, of thirty, of fifty, and one flock The Farmer spotted and estimated to be at least 150 birds.

Early one morning late last week, a smaller pair of feathered friends turned up in the little pond. We figured the mallards had relocated, until a closer look showed the unmistakeable crested head and colorful markings of wood ducks. While the female investigated the wood duck box we installed last spring, the male paddled around beneath it, on guard duty.

A year ago, a pair of wood ducks had similarly explored the box, then mysteriously departed. The wooden nest box later became home to a family of red-winged blackbirds, while a family of wood ducks was spotted weeks later in the stream that slices thorugh the heifer's pasture.

When the wood ducks returned a second morning, we crossed our fingers. Soon after, the goose pair came marching purposefully toward the smaller pond — and we haven't seen the wood ducks since.

Having chased off all other pretenders to their turf, the geese have calmed down and quiet reigns in the meadow. We finally edged close enough for a good look — and, sure enough, the larger goose has a scattering of white feathers over his head.

"Our" geese are back. And we're thrilled.

Tom Jones Performance To Benefit Preservation

YORK (York Co.) — The Farm & Natural Lands Trust of York County welcomes the exceptional sound and unique showmanship of the one-and-only Tom Jones on Tuesday, May 4 at 8 p.m. at the Strand Capitol Performing Arts Center in York, for one performance only.

Tickets for the performance are $75 for Patron tickets which will include a catered reception following the show. General admission tickets are $45, $35, and $30. Tickets went on sale Monday, March 15, at the Strand Box Office.

Proceeds from the performance will benefit the land preservation work of the Farm & Natural Lands Trust, York County's only private non-profit land preservation organization.

In his native Wales, he is known as "Jones the Voice." Today, Tom Jones is one of the enduring personalities in the music entertainment business. His unique vocal power, ability, and charismatic persona make him one of the most respected, admired and loved performers of all time.

Born Thomas Jones Woodward in Pontypridd, South Wales, Great Britain, on June 7, 1940, his father worked in the coal mines, while his mother tended the house and the two children. Tom began singing at an early age and by 1963, he had gained notoriety with his own group, Tommy Scott and the Senators.

Late in 1974, he landed a record contract and his first hit "It's Not Unusual." An avalanche of gold singles and album were soon to follow: "Delilah," "Help Yourself," "Love Me Tonight," and "I'll Never Fall in Love Again."

Continuing into the '70s gold hits came with "I (Who Have Nothing)," "She's A Lady," and "Tom Jones Live at Caesar's Palace." By the end of 1970, Tom had sold more than 30 million discs in all categories around the world.

Tom enjoys a consistent touring schedule 10 months of the year, both in the U.S.A. and abroad. He lives with his wife of 32 years, Melinda, between their home in Bel Air, CA and their country home in South Wales.

Savor Succulent Asparagus

Don't miss one of your supermarket's earliest signs of spring — fresh California asparagus. This tender plant is ideal for those concerned with nutrition and diet. It is low in calories, very low in sodium, a good source of potassium and a source of fiber. It's digestive taste will revive even the most mundane menu.

The superior flavor, texture and nutritional content of fresh asparagus can only be maintained by careful handling at every stage on its way to market. The growers, packers and shippers do their best to assure optimum quality on delivery.

Asparagus must be stored at a constant temperature of 37 to 41 degrees F. with at least 95% humidity to prevent shrinkage, weight loss and decay.

When buying fresh asparagus, look for smooth, round spears with closed tips. For tenderness and flavor, choose spears that are at least one-half inch in diameter. Avoid those with large, woody, hard, white bases. Fresh spears snap right away, aging spears bend. And avoid sandy asparagus because the sand is difficult to remove.

To store asparagus, trim one-fourth inch from the spear. Wrap them in damp paper towels and place in a plastic bag. Keep them in your vegetable crisper and use within three days. Wash them with cold water to refresh them before cooking.

Although asparagus is often associated with fancy restaurants, you do not need to be a highly-skilled chef to prepare asparagus in your own kitchen. As a rule of thumb, prepare one-half pound (six to eight spears) per person.

To prepare on the top of the stove, place asparagus upright in a deep pan of boiling water so that the stems are boiled and the tips are steamed. Boil six to eight minutes or until tender — but still crunchy. Lift the asparagus gently out of the pan with tongs and place on a serving dish.

To prepare in the microwave, bend the spear until the tough end snaps off. cut away scales with sharp knife. Wash in cold water. Measure ¼ cup water into a 12x8-inch Pyrex dish. Place spears in dish with buds toward center. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave 1 lb. of spears for 3½ minutes on high power. Remove and rearrange spears from outside to middle of dish, keeping buds in center of dish. Cover with plastic wrap and microwave for another 3½ minutes. It is best to buy spears of uniform size so they will microwave evenly.

Use asparagus to spice up vegetable and pasta salads, grain dishes and stirfrys. It is especially pretty on a bed of fresh salad greens with red pepper garnish and non-fat vinaigrette dressing.

Or try something different with this low-fat "guacamole" recipe.

No-Guilt Asparagus Guacamole

10½ ounce fresh, cut asparagus
½ teaspoon garlic powder
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 Tablespoons canned green chili peppers, drained, chopped
1 Tablespoons onion, chopped
2 teaspoons tomato paste
Dash of salt
¼ teaspoon ground cumin
⅛ teaspoon white pepper

Cook asparagus. Drain well, pat dry with paper towel and place in blender. Add remaining ingredients. Blend until smooth. Dip will become less thick on standing and will need to be stirred.

Every gem has accompanying documentation attesting its genuineness, the exact carat weight, and approximate insurance replacement value. The selection includes genuine, opaque rubies, sapphires, opals, garnets, and topaz.

Values range between $50 and $200. Each gem is finely cut, faceted, polished, and ready for immediate setting or safekeeping.

In the silent auction, written bids are placed on the bid sheet attached to each gem. Bids must increase in $10 increments and each stone has a minimum bid. The maximum bid is the owner.

Questions concerning the gems or the auction should be directed to the York Co. 4-H Club office at (717) 757-9657 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Food stand, bake table, craft, and book table are also available to the public. Personal checks are accepted with proper identification.

A recent nationwide survey commissioned by Kellogg Company found that 87 percent of us consider breakfast the most important meal of the day. Yet we know that for one reason or the other, sometimes it's skipped. Certain people like yourself don't really feel like eating in the morning. Others would love to have time for breakfast but are loaded down with morning responsibilities. Both these groups are likely to feel hungry long before lunchtime.

If you're skipping breakfast, you may be "fasting" much too long. Many people find that eating breakfast contributes to morning alertness, productivity and a sense of well-being. One good way to incorporate a breakfast habit into your life is with a convenient, tempting recipe that can be made in advance and taken "on the road."

Try making and freezing a batch of Banana Yogurt Muffins from Kellogg Kitchens. They're a nutritious, tasty way to rev up your body and mind for the morning's activities.

First Fields, Then Factories

WASHINGTON, D.C. — It has been said by many that no democracy can exist until all of its participants are fed. Recent events in many parts of the world, particularly in the former Soviet Union, provide dramatic evidence of this. As these countries engage in the struggle for freedom and democracy, they are hampered by the unrelenting demands on their national resources. Perhaps most significantly, they are hampered by the inability to feed their people.

Realizing that a plentiful, affordable food supply is essential for democracy to succeed in the former Soviet Union, the United States has provided humanitarian food assistance and millions of dollars in farm credits to the former USSR. In addition, our government has implemented a number of technical assistance and training programs to help develop the agricultural and agribusiness sectors in the region. A number of privately-funded exchange programs also have been initiated between the U.S. and former Soviet Union in an attempt to educate Soviet farmers about U.S. production techniques.

Such world events illustrate the importance of a strong agriculture base. They also underscore how fortunate we in America are to have the remarkable system we do. A system that, while only representing 0.3 percent of the world's agricultural labor force, produces 40 percent of the world's corn, 50 percent of the world's soybeans, 25 percent of the world's beef, and 11 percent of the world's pork. A system that, in 1991, exported $37.6 billion worth of farm products, cutting our deficit in non-farm trade by about 14 percent. A system that is the envy of the world.

As we celebrate the 20th anniversary of National Agriculture Day (March 20), let us pledge to support American agriculture and pay tribute to the 20 million American men and women working to ensure that it remains the best in the world.

American Agriculture Grows Better Every Day

WASHINGTON, D.C. — American agriculture has a long history of innovation. From the invention of the cotton gin in 1793, to the development of the first light tractor in 1926, to the introduction of minimum tillage methods designed to enhance yields while lessening soil erosion in the 1980s, American agriculture has led the world in new developments. The food and agriculture industry's practice of actively seeking out new ideas, production methods and technologies is really what has helped advance American agriculture and has made it the economic and production powerhouse it is.

Consider these facts. The American food and agriculture system represents 16 percent of our nation's gross national product and generates an estimated 21 million jobs. One American farmer/rancher provides enough food and fiber for 128 people: 94 in the U.S. and 34 abroad. And the U.S. is the world's largest exporter of agricultural products. In 1991, the U.S. exported $37.6 billion in farm products, cutting our deficit in non-farm trade by 14 percent.

As we celebrate National Agriculture Week (March 14-20), let us take a moment to reflect on the important role agriculture plays in our daily lives. It feeds us, clothes us, houses us, and employs us.

Let us also reflect on the important role agriculture plays in the life of America. It is our most basic industry, our bedrock, and the key to our continued strength. Without a strong agriculture, we cannot have a strong America

Wake Up To A Healthy Start

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Waking up is hard to do. It's especially difficult for those "non-morning" people who'd probably like to avoid that time of day and everything that comes with it, even breakfast. But as sure as the sun's gonna shine, breakfast should always be an important meal of the day, one that should be consumed by people of any age, according to Annette Goodling, extension agent with Montgomery County Cooperative Extension.

Nutritionists recommend eating breakfast and often cite it as the most important meal of the day and also the foundation of healthy eating habits. But despite these recommendations, millions of Americans routinely skip breakfast. According to a 1987 report in Cereal Foods World, one out of four women between the ages of 25 and 34 regularly skips breakfast. Other studies show that eating habits developed during childhood have the potential to last a lifetime. Thus children who tend to omit breakfast are most likely to continue this dietary habit into adulthood.

A review of the breakfast-related research over the last 30 years may make even the tried-and-true breakfast skipper into a breakfast convert. Studies show that eating breakfast is associated with improved strength and endurance in the late morning, along with a better attitude toward school or work. Breakfast also helps to replenish blood glucose levels, the main energy source for the brain which is incapable of maintaining a glucose reserve. Tufts University research indicated that individuals who breakfasted on cereal, fruit and milk consumed 10% fewer calories with only 20% of their calories coming from fat. Thus, for kids as well as adults, balanced breakfast choices can help provide the healthy edge needed for optimum physical and cognitive performance. For those who don't yet consume breakfast, it's never too late to wake up to a healthy start

Avoid the temptation to be a breakfast skipper by following these quick tips from USDA's Human Nutrition Information Service:

No time? Build a breakfast around foods that are ready to eat or take little preparation time. There are plenty that qualify: fresh and canned fruits, milk, yogurt, cheese, cottage cheese, ready-to-eat cold cereals and instant breakfast mixes.

Take it to go. Try celery stuffed with peanut butter or a meat or cheese spread, dried fruits or vegetable juices.

Perk up cereals. Top cereals with fruit or stir chopped nuts such as peanuts, pecans and walnuts into cooked cereal.

Not hungry yet? Drink juice. Something is better than nothing. Have some bread or crackers later in the morning, then drink some milk and eat some cheese, an egg or peanut butter.

Don't skip if you're on a diet. There's no evidence that skipping meals will help you lose weight. In fact, studies show that most people who skip breakfast tend to eat more later in the day. Some even select more calorically-dense foods than those who eat breakfast.

Blizzard Provides Tunnels Of Fun

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — The blizzard of the century cancelled schools and provided snow galore for kids to enjoy.

"It's wonderful!" 5-year-old Shane Landis summed up his feelings about the big snow.

He and his friends Ryan and Raymond Martin told of strong winds blowing them over during the height of the storm.

"But we weren't scared at all," said Ryan, who is 7 years old.

When the storm subsided and the sun came out, the boys dug five tunnels in the snow.

"We dug them with snow shovels and hoes," Ryan said.

"We used toy ones and big ones," said Raymond, who is 11 years old

The boys shoveled long and hard to dig a cave in which they could hide out between snow battles.

Snowballs flew fast and furiously as the three ganged up on Shane's dad, Mike, in a snowball battle.

"That stings," one of them yelled when a snowball blasted him in the face.

When the battle ended, the three trooped across snow drifts that surrounded Shane's house. Mostly the crust on top of the snow kept the boys from breaking through, but if they did, the snow was almost as deep as they were tall.

"I haven't seen so much snow since I was born," Raymond said.

Shane stuffed snow in his mouth and said, "I love eating this stuff. It tastes really good."

The snowdrifts built a super hill for the boys to sled in the backyard. Although they liked sledding downhill, they liked it even better when they collided at the bottom.

But the snowstorm brought some bad news for school children. "Now we got to go to school longer in June to make up the days we missed," Raymond said. "I don't like going to school when it's hot."

Shane is the son of Mike and Pat Landis. Ryan and Raymond are sons of Raymond and Deb Martin Amy is the daughter of Philip and Carol Lizee All are from Lititz

Instead of 5-year-old Amy taking her dog for a walk in the snow, Peaches took Amy for a ride.

Raymond and Ryan seek shelter from winds and snowballs in this cave that they built.

When Mike Landis attempted to empty the garbage, he was met by a blast of snowballs from Shane, Raymond, and Ryan.

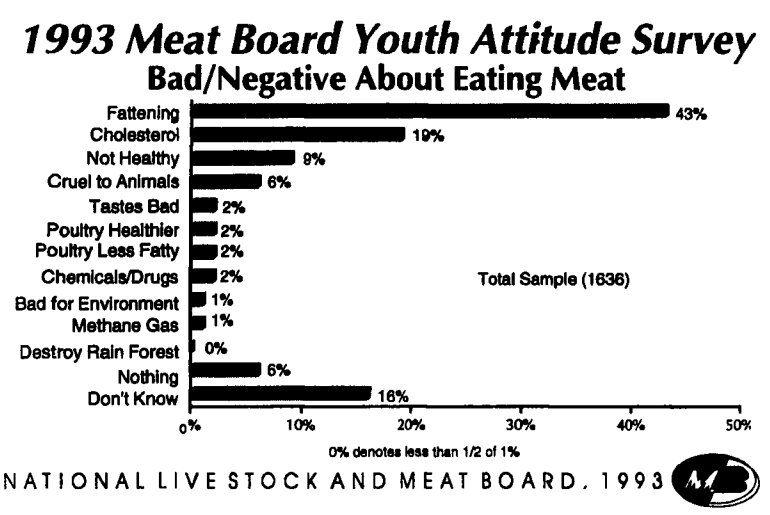
The blizzard piles heaps of snow in Shane's backyard turning it into sledding fun.

Youth Programs Emphasize Role Of Meat In Healthy Diets

CHICAGO, Ill. — After four months of rigorous review and research, a select panel of meat and livestock industry representatives has recommended a new direction for industry-funded youth programs — an area of heightening concern for livestock producers.

The "Youth Initiative Task Force" — comprised of 22 men and women representing beef, pork, veal and lamb industry segments — was appointed by industry leaders to set priorities based on message, audience segment and program type, and to establish long-term objectives for checkoff-funded youth programs.

The Task Force based its recommendations on available consumer research and its own benchmark survey of attitudes among youth. This nationwide survey, conducted by Bruskin Research, found that interest and misinformation about nutrition were very high, while concern over issues of animal welfare and environment was minimal and declined with age. The study also found that interested in or awareness of activist groups was minimal and that acceptance of animal use was high.



"The study results represented both a threat and an opportunity," says Lowell Gemar, a Fullerton, North Dakota, hog producer and co-chairman of the Task Force. "The threat comes in the misunderstanding that meat is 'fattening,' an opinion that grows stronger as youth grow older. The opportunity comes in the fact that we have a positive message to counter that misperception. Our industry has worked very hard during the past 10 years to reduce the amount of fat in our products. In fact, beef, pork, veal and lamb compare favorably to competitive products in both fat and cholesterol content. We can help young people understand how meat can fit into a healthful diet. And the sooner we start telling our story, the better."

The Task Force recommended that the target audiences be defined as follows: first — kindergarten through 4th grade; second — preschool, with a parent component; third — 5th and 6th grades; fourth — 7th through 12th grades. The Task Force concluded that, for all grades, nutrition should be the priority message. In the older grades, the second message priority should be food preparation and safe handling. Third priority messages should be directed at kindergarten through 4th grades and should deal with other issues, such as animal welfare and environment.

While checkoff-funded programs for youth traditionally have been focused in the schools, the Task Force has recommended that the scope of these programs be expanded to include other avenues. According to Velma Tucker, a Globe, Arizona, beef producer and Task Force co-chair, this change will broaden program reach and reinforce positive messages. "Nothing equals the time spent and the details provided by a teacher," Tucker says. "However, we saw that we could reach children in a variety of other ways. Of the things we looked at, including producing a children's television show and partnering with a national sporting goods company, the most cost-effective approach is to work with publications and in organization support. This should allow us to extend and reinforce our positive messages."

The Task Force also set vigorous objectives for its youth programs to accomplish. By the year 2000, the Task Force believes checkoff-funded programs should reach at least 61 percent of day care preschoolers, 15 percent of youth in grades K-4 and 35 percent of the 5th-6th grade segment.

In addition, the Task Force recommends a statistically significant improvement in key attributes measured in the Youth Attitude Benchmark Study. For example, it recommended that the percent of youth who say "meat is good for you" should increase from 20 percent to 28 percent, while the percent of youth who believe "meat is fattening" should decline from 43 percent to 35 percent.

Youth education is a checkoff-funded program managed on behalf of the meat and livestock industry by the National Live Stock and Meat Board, a coalition of the meat and livestock industry that has been working through industry checkoffs to build demand for beef, veal, pork, lamb and deli/prepared meats since 1922.

"Step right up and swing her around; get right back to the middle of the floor," says Ken Saul, caller, as the Blue Marsh Ramblers make music for dancers at the Berks County 4-H Jamboree recently in the 4-H Community Center.

Jamboree Nudges Berks 4-H Toward Dream Of New Pole Barn

CONNIE LEINBACH
Berks Co. Correspondent

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — To observers, hoe downing is not just mindless dancing by yourself. To do it successfully, you have to think in order to get feet and hands to mesh with the brain signals.

More than 200 people at the second Berks County 4-H Jamboree here recently in the 4-H Community Center were obviously trying their hardest to perform dances such as the Grand Square and the Four-Leaf Clover.

"It looks confusing until you do it two or three times, then it's easy," said Ruth Kershner as the caller, Ken Saul, explained the Four-Leaf Clover while the Blue Marsh Ramblers provided the music.

Lila and Ronald Newhard of Leesport had no problems catching on to the dance steps.

"I've been hoe downing since I was 14," Lila said between twirls.

Hoe downing also makes the participants interact with others, not just their partners. "It's a way you can be very informal with other people," said Gary Rothermel during a break in the dancing. "It's fun to make mistakes."

Oralee Folk echoed Rothermel's remark.

"It's good fellowship," she said. "I can be a kid again."

Her friend, Chris Avery, noted that kids, too, can attend a hoedown, which makes the evening a family event.

Catching their breath between dances, their cheeks flushed from the exercise, were Folk's two children, Richard, 15, and Oralyn, 12.

"We watch the grown-ups, then we know what we're doing," Oralyn said.

Hoedowning was only a part of the activities during the jamboree, which also featured a beef barbeque catered by Big John's in Reading, and a benefit auction.

Mike Firestine, a loan officer with Lebanon Valley National Bank who coordinated the efforts to obtain items for the auction, was pleased with the auction. With a goal of $2,000, the auction netted $2,065, he said.

Firestine also praised the cooperation of many businesses in Berks, Lebanon, and Lancaster counties that donated items.

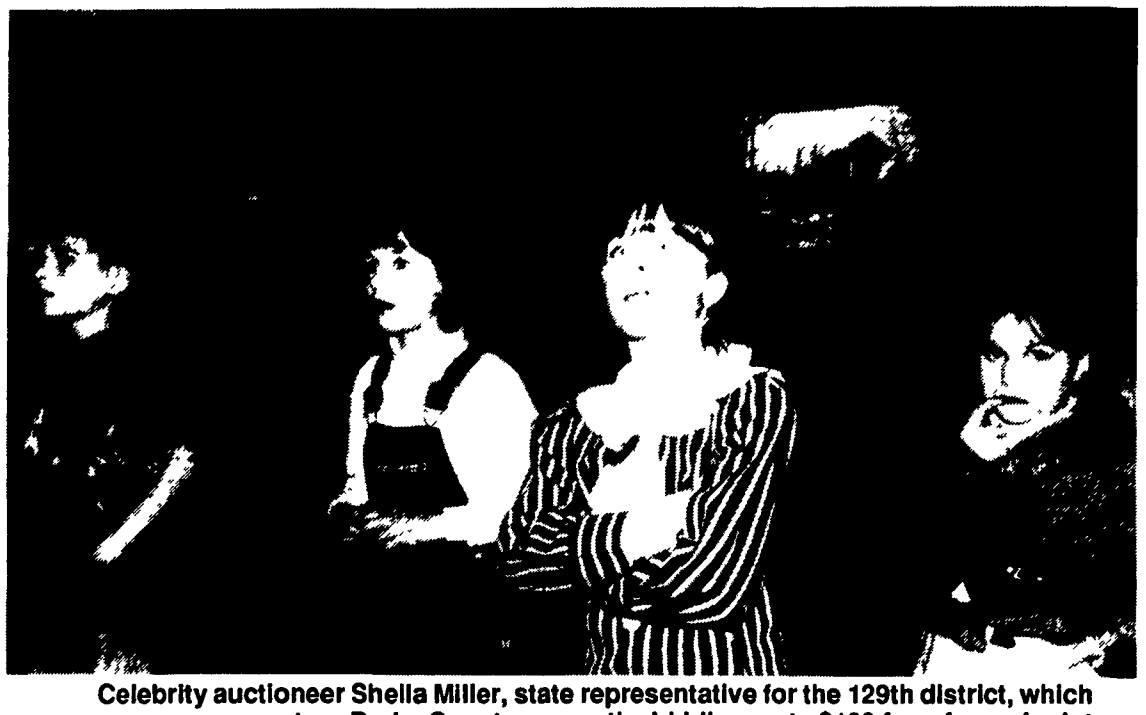
"We couldn't have done it without them," he said.

For sale were some Winross trucks, gift certificates to several area restaurants, feeds and fertilizers, and a multitude of farm equipment. Ken Leiby, a professional auctioneer, was the volunteer auctioneer.

All proceeds will go toward a capital fund to erect a pole barn outside the center.

Rick Kauffman, county 4-H extension agent, said about $200,000 is needed to build the barn and that already the 4-H has about $35,000. That's not including all of the volunteer work done to prepare the site.

Ken Leiby, left, auctioneer, and Mike Firestine conduct the benefit auction for the 4-H Jamboree.



Celebrity auctioneer Shella Miller, state representative for the 129th district, which encompasses western Berks County, urges the bidding up to $100 for a framed print of a covered bridge, donated by Good's Furniture. Ken Leiby and Mike Firestine assist.

Kaleidoscope Of Philadelphia Flower Show

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

PHILADELPHIA (Philadelphia Co.) — Six acres of flowers flaunted a touch of spring for those who made it to the Philadelphia Flower Show before the record-setting blizzard caused the week-long event to close two days early.

Early figures revealed that the blizzard whited out attendance by about 40,000 persons. But those who made it to the Show were entranced by the beauty of 55 elaborate landscaping displays and 1,700 individual entries.

The theme "Preserving the Past, Presenting the Future," was evident at the Philadelphia Civic Center where displays blended the flowers of the past with environmentally responsible gardening.

Proper care of shrubs, plants and trees was emphasied to maintain the past ecology. Bartlett Tree Experts taught visitors the art of pruning. "Pruning trees is like raising children; providing early directions results in fewere problems as the plant matures. Pruning young trees eliminates weak growth to provide a strong basis for future development."

Shrubs should be thinned to control size and maintain their natural shape, but not sheared.

For the more than 150,000 visitors at the Show, education was of prime interest. Several displays emphasized that the secret to a healthy lawn in a safe environment lies in working with nature.

A green lawn often requires over-fertilized, energy consuming practices that waste water and fill up landfills with grass clippings.

Soil should be tested periodically to determine the right fertilizer, compost, and services needed to keep your lawn healthy.

Grass type should be a variety that is well-adapted to the area where it is planted. It will grow better and resist pests and diseases better. Mowing high (2½ -3½ -inches) and more often will produce healthier grass with fewer pest problems.

Flowers, shrubs, and trees in the displays are marked so that visitors can easily identifiy plants they may want to include in their home gardening.

Free lectures and demonstrations on gardening, flower arranging, floral photography, and houseplant care were scheduled for each day.

The crowds packed the area where more than 100 vendors sold everything from floral tape to glass-enclosed decks.

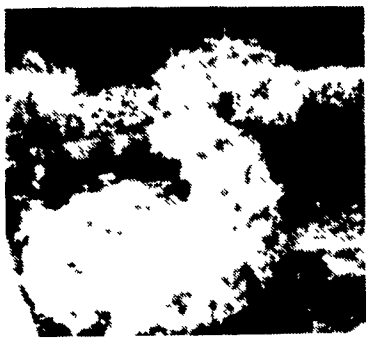
Plan to attend the 1994 Philadelphia Flower Show scheduled for March 6-13. For more information, contact the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, 325 Walnut St., Philadelphia, PA 19106-2777.

Landscaping displays such as this one created by McNaughton's Nurseries Inc. of New Jersey show how flowers, shrubs, and trees enhance the beauty of the house.

Jack's eyeview of Jack and the Beanstalk by Pennsylvania Nurseyman's shows an effective use of plants.

Water gardening shows plants suited for growing in water and around water.

Miniature hollyhocks



The "growing swan" swims contently in a pool of water.

This arrangement shows how recycling an old milk can for a container of fresh flowers preserves the past with the present.

The tall trees that tower in the background make it difficult to perceive that the Philadelphia Flower Show is really held inside the Civic Center.

Landis Valley Museum Holds National Exhibition

LANDIS VALLEY (Lancaster Co.) — Early American Life magazine, in conjunction with Landis Valley Museum, is offering its third annual exhibition of Traditional American Crafts March 27 to April 30.

Displayed at Landis Valley will be furniture, tin, pewter, folk art, baskets, textiles, and other works produced by artisans selected by an expert panel of judges in a blind competition to be among the 200 Best Traditional American Craftsmen. The list is published annually in Early American Life's August issue.

In addition to the exhibition, on March 27-28 and again on April 10, museum craftspeople will demonstrate such early American skills as gunsmithing, cabinetry, bobbin lace making, leather working, and hearth cooking.

Frances Carnahan, editor and publisher of Early American Life said, "The exhibition represents the skills and creativity of more than 100 of the most talented artisans working in America today. There will be things made by hand, sometimes with authentic tools, and reproductions so skillfully executed that it is difficult to tell them from the originals.

Landis Valley Museum is the largest museum highlighting Pennsylvania German rural heritage. Set amidst a rural landscape, the complex includes numerous historical buildings ranging from barns and a tavern to smokehouses and craft shops.

Some of the buildings have been relocated to the museum, while others are recreations of a country store, a tavern, and a 1700s farm with a log house and barn. The musuem also features historic breeds of domestic animals and a flourishing heirloom seed program.

The Landis Valley Museum is located in the heart of the area settled by German families well before the American Revolution. Amish and Mennonite farms blanket the countryside, and the area is famous for down-home, Pennsylvania-German food such as sauerkraut, scrapple, pot pie, schmierkase, and pretzels. Wheatland, the home of President James Buchanan, is in the area, and there are antique shops on almost every road. For a free map and visitor's guide to Lancaster County, contact the Pennsylvania Dutch Convention & Visitors Bureau at 800-735-2529 (ext. 2322).

Admission to both the craft exhibition and the Museum, March 27-31, is $5 for adults, $4 for senior citizens, and $3 for children from 6 to 17. Beginning April 1, prices are $1 higher. The Museum is open from 9 to 5 Tuesday through Saturday and from noon to 5 on Sunday. The Museum is closed on Easter Sunday and on Mondays.

Landis Valley Museum is located 2.5 miles NE of Lancaster on Rt. 272/Oregon Pike, a marked exit off both Rt. 30 and Rt. 222. A state-owned museum, it is operated by the PA Historical and Museum Commission with assistance from the Landis Valley Associates. Individuals with disabilities who need special assistance or accommodation should call in advance to discuss their needs. The museum's number is (717) 569-0401.

Early American Life is a publication of Cowles Magazines.

Ag Day At The Mall Focuses On Consumer Safety

DOVER, Del. — Consumer protection is not an idea normally associated with agricultural agencies and organizations.

But, the more than 40 exhibitors scheduled to appear at this year's Ag Days at the Mall festivities will show consumers just how much of their everyday lives are affected by the consumer protection activities of these groups.

Ag Days at the Mall will take place Saturday and Sunday, March 27 and 28, at Dover Mall. Exhibit hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday. The event will feature educational exhibits, cooking demonstrations, artisans, activities for kids, and lots of giveaways.

Ag Days at the Mall is sponsored by the Delaware Department of Agriculture Marketing Section in observance of National Agriculture Week, March 14-20.

Becky Cullen, a marketing specialist who is coordinating this year's event, noted that consumer safety involves many aspects — food safety and nutrition, environmental protection, consumer protection against fraud and from inferior products.

The agricultural community strives for consumer safety everyday whether it entails licensing produce brokers, inspecting slaughter houses, training pesticide applicators, monitoring forest harvesting activities, testing commercial weighing and measuring devices, testing for seed germination or researching improved production practices.

In addition to the exhibits there will be activites scheduled on the mall entertainment stage throughout both days and special appearances by the following celebrities:

• Mike Hall, the World's Strongest Drug Free Man.

Mike will give a weightlifting demonstration and autograph pictures from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. on Saturday and from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. on Sunday

• Molly Moo, the pink cow mascot of the Mid-Atlantic Milk Marketing Assoc.

Molly will be distributing stickers to the kids and the new fitness planner developed by fitness expert Cynthia Kereluk, host of the "Everyday Workout" on television. Cynthia's fitness tips also appear regularly on WMAR-TV in Baltimore; WPVI-TV in Philadelphia and WGAL in Harrisburg. The planner concentrates on health and fitness, not weight control. The calendar includes recipes, exercises and meal planning tips.

• The Mar-Del Watermelon Queen and the Delaware Dairy Princess

Both women will be passing out promotional materials for their commodity associations.

• Smokey Bear, who is celebrating his 50th birthday in '93

• Clifford the Duck, an Easter-Agriculture attraction

Clifford will be passing out coloring books to kids

• The Delaware Blue Hen, state mascot

Show-Off Boosts Apple Sales

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Contrary to what Emily POst advises, it sometimes pays to be a show-off.

Grocery retailers nationwide and their brokers will win a total of $9,000 in prize money this spring for in-store promotions that do the best job of "showing off" processed apple products.

The 1993 Processed Apple Show-Off will award $1,000 first prizes and $500 second prizes in two categories to retailers who, from April 1 through May 31, come up with the most creative displays, advertising and merchandising tie-ins to show off applesauce, juice, slices, pie filling, baked apples and other processed apple products.

The contest is divided into two categories — retail stores with seven or more registers and stores with six or fewer registers.

Matching cash prizes will be

1935 — Congress declared soil erosion a national menace and directed USDA to establish the Soil Conservation Service.

1935 — The Rural Electrification Administration was established.

1938 — The Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 became the first law to provide direct price support for basic commodities through a non-recourse loan program. It included payment limitations of $10,000 and has remained as a base for price support and adjustment legislation.

1955 — USDA launched a comprehensive rural development program for the first time

1959 — Legislation was approved authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to carry out a food stamp program.

1960 — Cubing or wafering machines revolutionized hay handling.

1970 — The Agricultural Act was passed initiating a cropland set-aside program for producers of wheat, feed grains, and upland

40- TO 60-HP JOHN DEERE SPIRIT TRACTORS

These tractors pack a lot of value

Mowing, hauling, disking, loading, baling. You can't beat the value – or the versatility – of John Deere 5200, 5300, and 5400 Spirit Tractors.

Value starts with efficient engine design. The wet-sleeve 3-cylinder diesels deliver 40 to 60 hp with fuel-thrifty, dependable performance.

And unlike other tractors in this horsepower class, you get full rated horsepower at the standard 540-rpm PTO speed. You can pull balers and other PTO implements without worrying about your tractor bucking or stalling. Need top traction in tough going? Add MFWD for extra pull and tight-turning maneuverability.

Spirit tractors also have the highest standard hydraulic capacity in their class...to help you lift more, faster. And for fast, smooth shifting, choose the optional top-shaft-synchronized (TSS) transmission. Improved shuttle-shift capability makes it perfect for loader work.

Of course an important part of any value is the price. So visit your John Deere dealer and find out how little it takes for you to own a 40-hp 5200, 50-hp 5300, or 60-hp 5400 Spirit Tractor.

Farmers May Face Stricter Safety Regulations

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — If farmers don't take it upon themselves to further reduce work hazards, they may risk more stringent regulations, says a farm safety expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Recent high-profile farm tragedies involving children have elicited calls for stricter farm safety rules," says Dr. Dennis Murphy, professor of agricultural engineering. "The public is starting to feel that farmers don't do enough to promote safety among themselves.

"Farmers should ask themselves whether they want to make farming safer or face new regulations," Murphy says. "Do we change our safety habits voluntarily or because we are required to do so?"

Compared to other industries, farming has relatively few safety and health regulations. "Family and small farm operations are excluded from most regulations," says Murphy. "A lack of enforcement for those who are covered makes many regulations seem more voluntary than required."

Little evidence exists to suggest that more regulations would make farms safer, Murphy notes. "Many farmers and farm employers see regulations as government meddling in business affairs," he says.

"This ultimately discourages compliance with both the spirit and the letter of regulations. Rules that are seen as intrusive or violating common sense often are ignored or deliberately subverted."

Because of this, farmers may risk initiating a cycle of progressively tighter regulations. "Rules tend to simplify the cause of injury or illness to a single factor," he says. "If a safety problem is caused by a particular behavior, a regulation is passed to stop the behavior.

"If accidents aren't reduced, the problem will be re-examined, additional causes found, and more regulations proposed," Murphy says. "This can continue indefinitely, with the rules getting more and more burdensome and impractical."

Regulations also can stifle development of creative solutions to risks. "Regulations usually provide just one way to deal with an issue," he says. "But farms are so diverse that a single solution rarely makes practical or economic sense for each farm. Still, regulations apply to all, whether practical or not."

Murphy's new book, "Safety and Health for Production Agriculture," is published by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers. The book details specific farm hazards and explores broader issues underlying farm safety policies. Chapters discuss general safety principles and specific strategies used to prevent and reduce injuries.

"Safety and Health for Production Agriculture" is available from the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, Department 1620, 2950 Niles Road, St. Joseph, MI 49805-9659. More information is available from the ASAE ordering department at (616) 429-0300, ext. 41.

Show-Off Boosts Apple Sales

awarded to brokers whose retail clients win first or second place awards. Another $1,000 will be awarded to brokers through a random drawing.

Last year, 882 retailers from all over the country entered the contest, and 54 of them, and their brokers, were selected as cash winners for their promotional efforts.

The 1993 Processed Apple Show-Off marks the third year apple growers have awarded prize money for the most creative in-store spring promotions. In previous years, the contest was called the 24 count Gold Regional Processed Apple Product Retail Promotion.

The 1993 Processed Apple Show-Off is sponsored by the Michigan Apple Committee, the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board, the Virginia Apple Growers Association, the Western New York Apple Growers Association and the West Virginia Tree Fruit Assessment Board.

"The promotion has been a big hit and has grown every year," said Mark Arney of the Michigan Apple Committee. "It generates a lot of enthusiasm among retailers and brokers — the chance of winning $1,000 is a real incentive. And, naturally, the apple growers and processors like it because the combined promotional efforts really boost sales and move a lot of product."

Historical High Points Of Agriculture

1970 — Norman Borlaug, American agricultural scientist and plant pathologist, won the Nobel Prize for Peace for the development of semi-dwarf wheats that dramatically increased crop yields. He was instrumental in laying the groundwork for the Green Revolution, the agricultural technological advances that promised to alleviate world hunger.

1974 — The average farm size increased from 174 acres in 1940 to 385 acres in 1974.

1976 — The Beef Research and Information Act was approved. It enabled cattle producers to establish, finance and carry out a coordinated program of research, producer and consumer information and promotion for improving, maintaining and developing markets for cattle beef and beef products.

1977 — The Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 was passed to provide price and income protection for farmers and an abundance of food and fiber at reasonable prices to consumers.

1979 — An American Agriculture Movement tractorcade of farmers, most of whom were grain producers, arrived in Washington, D.C. to lobby Congress and the Administration for higher prices.

1980 — In response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, the President suspended all agricultural trade to the Soviet Union in excess of the eight million tons of grain that the United States was committed to sell under the 1975 U.S./U.S.S.R. grain agreement.

1981 — U.S. agricultural exports reached a peak of $43.8 billion for the year. Their subsequent decline helped touch off a farm financial crisis in the early and mid 1980s due to lower prices and high farm debt.

1981 — The embargo on grain shipments to the Soviet Union, provoked by the invasion of Afghanistan, was lifted.

1983 — Secretary of Agriculture John Block announced a Payment-In-Kind (PIK) program to reduce surplus stocks of price-supported commodities. This, along with related measures, was the largest acreage reduction program in American history.

1984 — Americans became more conscious of fatty foods in their diets as a result of a series of nutrition studies in the United States, Finland and Italy that suggest fats can increase blood pressure and heart attack rates.

1985 — In the 1980s, minimum tillage methods of preparing land for planting were used by more farmers on a variety of crops. The objective is to enhance yields while lessening erosion.

1986 — Agricultural scientists reported that by the 1990s they may be routinely putting blocks of genes into plants so crops can better handle drought or salty soils. USDA scientists developed techniques for transferring blocks of genes from one plant cell to another.

1987 — Farmland values bottomed out after a six-year decline, signaling a turn-around in the farm economy.

1987 — Imports of oats increased as Americans ate more of this grain in the belief that it would lower cholesterol levels.

1988 — Responding to the farm credit crisis, President Reagan on January 6, 1988 signed into law the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987, which provided funds to lending institutions to bolster their financial stability.

1988 — At the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) talks in Geneva, Switzerland, the United States proposed a 10-year timetable to eliminate agricultural subsidies around the world.

1989 — The Soviet Union was the leading buyer of U.S. grains in fiscal 1989, purchasing 21.7 million tons of wheat and corn valued at nearly $3 billion. This was nearly 50 percent more than the previous record high and was part of a general rebound of U.S. farm exports.

1989 — Aiming to retire some 45 million acres of highly erodible farmland by 1990, the Federal Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) created by the 1985 Food Security Act was on schedule. Thirty-million acres, including acres to be idled in 1990, had been set aside, breaking the record of 28.7 million acres retired under the 1956 Soil Bank Program.

PUBLIC AUCTION

112.8 ACRE YORK COUNTY FARM

SATURDAY, APRIL 10, 1993

At 12:00 Noon

Located just south of Red Lion in North Hopewell Township, York County, Pa.

Directions: From Red Lion follow Rt. 24 to Pleasant View Rd. T.L. Property on the left watch for signs.

Here is an excellent opportunity to purchase a historic farm that has 80 tillable acres that are gently rolling, in full cultivation with good conservation practices. A quiet valley has open land with a spring fed stream. (Good for pasture land) some woodland. This farm has not had animals for years but would be a great place for animals of any type.

Historical Note!

This home is in need of work but this huge structure sits by the stream and was known as the Sechrist Mill. It operated through the 1800s by water power grinding grains for local residents. The water wheel is no longer there but the basic structure is the same. In approximately 1900 it was converted to a residence and the water wheel ceased operating. The barn is a large structure in average condition with many possibilities. New roof last year. (nice barn) Another Historic Note: Neighbors say that years ago gold found on the farm prompted a mining attempt. Mining costs outweighed profits it is told and now the area is farmed over. Owners & auctioneers make no warranties to such claims and are printed for historical interest only.

If you are interested in a good agricultural farm, historical site or just a good sound investment of over 100 acres here is your opportunity. Call for details.

10% down day of auction, balance in 60 days.

Survey Projects Significant Changes In Domestic Industry

DALLAS, Texas — The nation's hog producers will face major changes in the way they finance, produce, and market hogs by the year 2000, according to the results of a survey released today at the National Pork Industry Forum in Dallas.

Titled "The Pork Industry: Vision 2000," the survey was conducted among 250 leading hog producers, consulting swine veterinarians, meat packers, academics, and business and financial executives who serve the $10 billion pork industry. The study was conducted by Brock Associates of Milwaukee and underwritten by Elanco Animal Health, a division of Eli Lilly and Company

Forecast for the year 2000 is continued consolidation among producers that will sharply reduce the number of hog farms which produce fewer than 3,000 head annually. Hog farms producing more than a million head a year are expected to jump 132 percent from last year's five farms to 12 in 2000, while 100,000-head farms will experience a 52-percent increase to 129 from the current 85.

Environmental issues such as effective waste management and odor control are seen as major factors which will impact production over the next seven years.

To be competitive in 2000, producers will have to master complex and sophisticated production technologies, advanced hog genetics, developments in veterinary medicine, nutrition, data management, environmental legislation, as well as marketing and financial planning.

In order to accomplish these competitive requirements, producers will work with an increasing array of specialized agricultural consultants. The top six consulting groups identified in the survey were veterinary medicine, financial planning, nutrition, marketing, and environmental and agricultural engineering.

While domestic and export demands are expected to increase (7 3 and 19 2 percent respectively), return in investment is projected to slip from 16.2 percent in 1992 to 14.8 percent in 2000.

Survey results indicate that 78 percent of market hogs will be purchased by packers under a carcass-value buying system by 2000 compared to 30 percent in 1992. The number of hogs fed and sold under contract is expected to rise in seven years to 35.5 percent from the average of 15.8 percent of all hogs produced in 1992

"The survey confirms industry-wide concerns that consolidation will reduce the number of small operations," said Larry Graham, executive vice president of Brock Associates "Hog production is rapidly becoming less labor intensive and more capital intensive. In the past, one person could care for 100 sows compared to a current ratio of approximately one person per 350-400 sows.

"This shift requires greater working capital because of the growing demand for increased investment in buildings, equipment and technology. To survive, producers will have to market top-quality lean carcasses produced as efficiently as possible. In order to accomplish this, they must place greater attention on genetics, nutrition and records that track their progress."

Graham said survey respondents described the "Ideal Hog of 2000" as weighing 256 pounds with a lean percentage of 56.8 and a 6 6-square-inch loin eye. It will be market ready in 160 days

"This type of hog is now at the up end of the production spectrum," Graham said, "In 2000 it will be considered the industry norm Consistent hog quality of this standard can be attained only with efficient and cost-effective management and production methods."

The list of the top hog-producing states is expected to remain relatively stable with one major shift — North Carolina will move from sixth place to third behind Iowa and Illinois, replacing Indiana which will drop to fifth place.

Although banks and farm credit institutions now provide 75 percent of all U.S. hog-production financing, their total is expected to slide to 59 percent by 2000. Gainers in production financing are seen to be such outside sources as investor groups with a 10-percent hike, and the insurance industry which should up its share by five percent. Allied-industry financing from sources like feed producers and packers will garner a six percent increase.

Underscoring the need for sophisticated and business-like management approaches to raising pigs for market, the primary factors named for attracting financing in the opinion survey were overall operational efficiency, demonstrated management ability, a sound business plan, complete and accurate records, and feed efficiency.

Sixty-six percent of the survey's respondents said they believe the pork industry will eventually follow in the foot steps of poultry with a massive shakeout in the number of small or independent producers.

If such a shakeout occurs in the 2020-2050 time period, the U S pork industry could consist of less than 100 producers.

Commenting on the results of the survey, Brian Rittgers, manager of swine products at Elanco Animal Health, said, "Even though consolidation will continue, a shakeout of the type seen in poultry is not anticipated for at least 25 years. Why? Today's pork producers are very willing to adopt new technologies that allow them to improve efficiencies and meet consumer demands for lean and nutritious pork products."

Santinis Win NCGA Yield Contest

PHILLIPSBURG, N.J. — Robert and Sam Santini won outstanding honors in three separate divisions in the New Jersey National Corn Growers' Association (NCGA) National Corn Yield Contest.

Robert Santini garnered first place finishes in two divisions within the contest with his winning entry, Lynks Seeds hybrid 2757. In the no-till non-irrigated, Santini won with a yield of 203.68 bushels per acre and in the no-till irrigated with a yield of 193.16 bushels per acre.

Sam Santini won second place in the ridge-till irrigated division with his entry of Lynks Seeds 2711 producing 184.29 bushels per acre.

Lynks 2757 is a 112-day corn hybrid that receives Lynks highest marks for yield, emergence, stalk and root strength, ear retention, harvestability, and tolerance to gray leaf spot and anthracnose. Variety 2757 is especially adapted to the Eastern Corn Belt and is a very good no-till hybrid.

Lynks 2711 is a 111-day corn hybrid that combines high yields, strong standability, and very fast dry down. Its semi-flexible ear can adapt to various plant populations. It has very good leaf tolerance to northern and southern leaf blights and is responsive to split nitrogen applications.

Robert and Sam are customers of Lynks dealer Tom Zeng of Oldwick, N.J. Zeng said, "I am very proud to have Robert and Sam representing Lynks Seeds. Lynks is known in the Midwest for its exceptional quality products and we are starting to get some recognition here on the East Coast with outstanding wins like these."

Farmers May Face Stricter Safety Regulations

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — If farmers don't take it upon themselves to further reduce work hazards, they may risk more stringent regulations, said a farm safety expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Recent high-profile farm tragedies involving children have elicited calls for stricter farm safety rules," said Dr. Dennis Murphy, professor of agricultural engineering. "The public is starting to feel that farmers don't do enough to promote safety among themselves.

"Farmers should ask themselves whether they want to make farming safer or face new regulations," Murphy said. "Do we change our safety habits voluntarily or because we are required to do so?"

Compared to other industries, farming has relatively few safety and health regulations. "Family and small farm operations are excluded from most regulations," said Murphy. "A lack of enforcement for those who are covered makes many regulations seem more voluntary than required."

Little evidence exists to suggest that more regulations would make farms safer, Murphy said. "Many farmers and farm employers see regulations as government meddling in business affairs," he said.

"This ultimately discourages compliance with both the spirit and the letter of regulations. Rules that are seen as intrusive or violating common sense often are ignored or deliberately subverted."

Because of this, farmers may risk initiating a cycle of progressively tighter regulations. "Rules tend to simplify the cause of injury or illness to a single factor," he said. "If a safety problem is caused by a particular behavior, a regulation is passed to stop the behavior.

"If accidents aren't reduced, the problem will be re-examined, additional causes found, and more regulations proposed," Murphy said. "This can continue indefinitely, with the rules getting more and more burdensome and impractical."

Regulations also can stifle development of creative solutions to risks. "Regulations usually provide just one way to deal with an issue," he said. "But farms are so diverse that a single solution rarely makes practical or economic sense for each farm. Still, regulations apply to all, whether practical or not."

Murphpy's new book, "Safety and Health for Production Agriculture," is published by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers. The book details specific farm hazards and explores broader issues underlying farm safety policies. Chapters discuss general safety principles and specific strategies used to prevent and reduce injuries.

"Safety and Health for Production Agriculture" is available from the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, Department 1620, 2950 Niles Road, St. Joseph, MI 49805-9659. More information is available from the ASAE ordering department at (616) 429-0300, ext. 41.

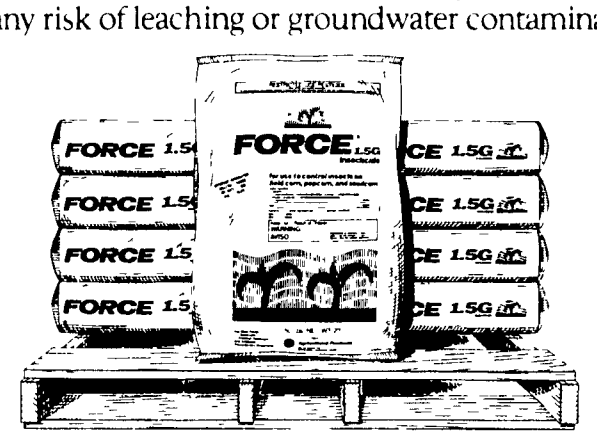
FORCE CONTROLS. In developing FORCE soil insecticide, ICI simulated and improved on the powerful chemistry found in chrysanthemum flowers. The result is the first pyrethroid insecticide designed for soil application.

Because of this unique chemistry, FORCE ranks low in mammalian toxicity, which means very low hazard to humans. In addition, the low water solubility and soil mobility of FORCE greatly reduces any risk of leaching or groundwater contamination.



CUTWORM APPLICATION RATES. Apply FORCE at 8 to 10 oz. per 1,000 linear row feet. The lbs./acre equivalent rates are:

6.5 lbs. per acre on 40" rows	7.7 lbs. per acre on 34" rows
6.9 lbs. per acre on 38" rows	8.2 lbs. per acre on 32" row
7.3 lbs. per acre on 36" rows	8.7 lbs. per acre on 30" rows

FORCE may be applied in a T-band in front of the press wheels, in a band behind the press wheels, or in-furrow.

No other soil insecticide controls as much as FORCE® when it comes to performance against a wide variety of pests. Not only does FORCE control rootworms, it outperforms Lorsban 85% to 76% on cutworms according to 1992 field trials. Counter can't even touch cutworms. FORCE also works significantly better than Counter or Lorsban against wireworms and white grubs.

FORCE works in all weather conditions and won't interact with the rescue herbicides Accent and Beacon. It's easy to see why FORCE is a generation ahead—for the generations ahead.

Proper Vaccine, Antibiotic Administration Key To Quality

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Administration of vaccines and antibiotics are routine in the cattle business. Both types of products, administered correctly, decrease the probability of herd health problems.

Dr. John Hough, director of education and research for the American Polled Hereford Association, said a veterinarian is the best source of information about the types of medication needed as well as administration methods.

However, as overall beef quality continues to be an issue, correct administration methods become more important to increase packer and consumer confidence.

There are generally four aspects of administrating medications that are key to enhancing the effectiveness of the products and the performance of the animals — animal handling, medication administration, sanitation of tools and facilities, and record keeping.

When handling cattle, be sure obstructions and sharp objects in the pens and chutes are removed. These can cause bruising, cutting, or other injuries to the cattle.

"Even though you may have several hundred head to vaccinate in a short time, don't get in a hurry," Hough said. "Most problems arise when things are moving too quickly. Take the time to read label instructions about dosage amount, injection location and withdrawal times. Be sure the injection is administered in the proper method whether subcutaneously (Sub-Q), intramuscularly (IM), or orally."

He said you should inject no more than 10 cc of product per injection site. Injection sites should be at least four inches apart.

Sanitation is important as well. Many problems such as infections and lesions are caused when needles are dirty or injections are given on a dirty area of the animal.

"Keeping your tools clean will go a long way to help prevent problems. Soap and water are excellent for cleaning needles, syringes, bottle tops, and other equipment. These should be cleaned after each use. However, don't use antiseptics on equipment used with modified-live virus vaccines and bacterins. It can kill the beneficial bacteria," Hough said.

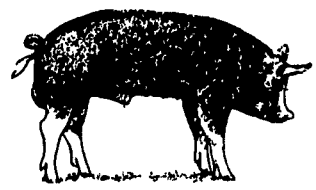
In addition to keeping equipment clean, be sure it's in good shape. Use only clean, sharp needles. A dull needle, or one with a nick, can tear tissue and cause damage to a high-quality cut of meat.

Hough said it's important to properly dispose of needles. One way to make certain used needles aren't mixed with good ones is to designate a bucket specifically for used or bent needles. When you're through with processing, simply pour wet concrete or plaster of paris in the bucket. When it dries, you can easily remove the casting and safely dispose of the needles. Be sure to follow local disposal regulations.

"While each of these aspects is important, it's good record keeping that pulls the pieces of the puzzle together," Hough said. "By keeping detailed, individual animal records, you can easily know the animal's history and its reaction to your treatment/prevention programs. Injection site maps are available from several sources and are very helpful in recording dates of administration as well as location of administration."

Whether you use handwritten records, a computer or another system, use one that best fits your operation and keep it up to date.

"Incorporating good handling practices, proper medicine administration, effective sanitation, and complete record keeping will help ensure success of your vaccination and treatment programs," Hough said. "In addition, these practices will increase the quality of your product."



New Formulation Of Bioinsecticide

LANGHORNE (Bucks Co.) — Recent field studies have confirmed that a new formulation of Cutlass® bioinsecticide provides residual activity against lepidopteran species two times longer than previously possible.

"Improved residual activity means improved efficacy," said Don Jackson, director of marketing and sales for Ecogen Inc., the manufacturer of Cutlass. "The new formulation represents a significant breakthrough in the continuing development of Bt-based insecticides."

According to Dr. Richard Daoust, director of field development for Ecogen, growers have now come to expect good performance with Bt-based insecticides such as Cutlass, Javelin WG, Xentari, MVP, and others. In part this is due to the extended residuals provided by newer Bt-based products that provide control of early instar lepidopteran larvae for up to three days, depending upon environmental conditions and insect pest pressure.

In 1992, Ecogen's cooperators showed that the new formulation of Cutlass, when compared against the six leading Bt-based products used against vegetable pests, provided the longest field residual. In fact, not only was Cutlass the most stable under field conditions of the leading Bt-based products, it also provided up to 2 times longer residual activity in the field over the original Cutlass formulation, with more than four days residual activity against certain pests.

Cutlass is approved for use on more than 100 pests in field crops, vegetables, trees and vines, cucurbits, citrus, stone and pome fruits, strawberries, and many other important crops.

Cutlass is one of the first biological insecticides developed using a genetically improved strain of Bacillus thuringenisis (Bt), a naturally occurring soil-borne bacterium. Cutlass has been proven superior to many Bts and conventional products and is environmentally sound.

Net Balers Reduce Wrapping Time

COLDWATER, Ohio — White-New Idea introduced a fixed chamber baler with net wrap at the National Farm Machinery Show in Louisville, Ky. recently.

The net wrap option will be factory installed on a limited number of New Idea model 486 balers (5 foot x 6 foot bale) in 1993 with full production scheduled for the following year. It is one of several major round baler improvements to be shown.

The New Idea 486 baler is the first belt-type fixed chamber baler with net wrap available to North American farmers. Net wrap reduces wrapping time on large round bales to just seven seconds. Most bales require only two revolutions for adequate net wrap compared to 10 to 12 revolutions for adequate twine wrap. The average operation will experience a 20 percent time savings per bale.

In addition to increased baling efficiency, net wrap further protects the bales from adverse weather because it sheds rain more efficiently. It also retains the round shape, reducing soil-to-bale contact.

Netting is conveniently mounted on the rear of the baler. This eliminates the need to straddle the hitch when loading the roll.

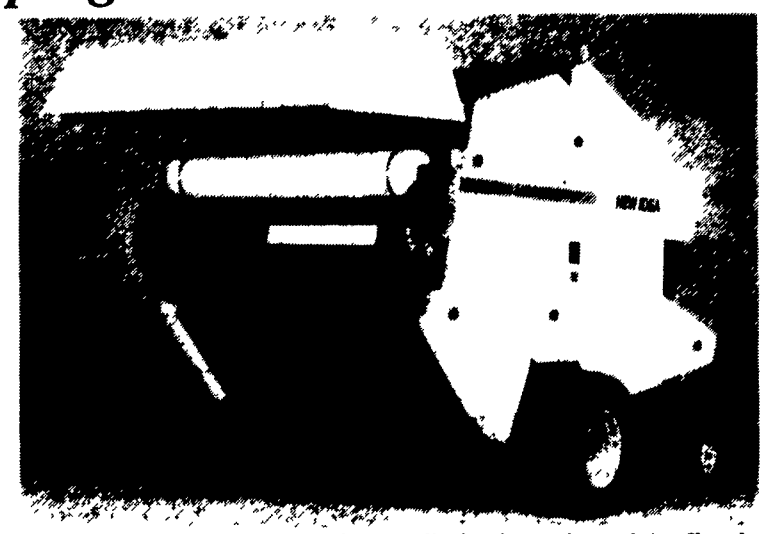
Three wrap lengths can be programmed into the control box which is located in the tractor cab. The control box also monitors net movement so the operator can be assured when the net is wrapping the bale.

A switch, located on the front of the baler, enables operators to change from wrapping with netting to twine and back to netting. There is no need to rethread the machine or make any other adjustments when switching back and forth.

In addition to net wrap option (available on a limited basis), New Idea 486 round balers will feature a new pickup which is designed to further improve feeding efficiency in all types of material, from corn stalks to straw to Bahia and Bermuda grass to alfalfa. The new design features a reduced gap between the hay pickup and the bale forming belts. It also features improved left/right pickup flotation.

Another design feature incorporated into all 1993 New Idea round balers is the use of splined shafts and bearings with the rollers which drive the endless belts. This new design provides improved durability and quieter operation.

White-New Idea manufactures and markets planters, tillage equipment, hay tools, manure spreaders and self-propelled harvesting equipment under the White, New Idea and UNI brand names as well as Ag ONE parts and supplies. For more information, (800) 767-3221.



Net wrap is now available on a limited number of the fixed chamber New Idea model 486 balers.

Bioinsecticide Approved For Use

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Mycogen Corp. (NASDAQ: MYCO) announced that its genetically engineered M-Peril™ bioinsecticide, which targets the European corn borer, has been approved by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for commercial sale.

Mycogen Chairman, president and CEO Jerry Caulder said the registration is significant, both in terms of the new product's sales potential and as a continuing regulatory validation of the company's CellCap™ encapsulation delivery system.'

"We estimate the sales potential for M-Peril to be $20-50 million a year," Caulder said. "In addition, the fact that we obtained this registration in less than a year demonstrates that the EPA understands, and is comfortable with, our biopesticide technology."

Mycogen's CellCap encapsulation system employs recombinant DNA technology to trasnfer the genetic blueprint for production of natural protein toxins from Bt into another bacterium, Pseudomonas fluorerscen (Pf). The genetically engineered Pf cells produce the toxin, and are mass produced through fermentation. Finally, the microbes are killed through a process that reinforces their cell walls, forming tiny biocapsules that protect the fragile toxin crystals, prolonging their activity in the field.

M-Peril is the third EPA-approved Mycogen product using this delivery system. In 1991, the company's MVP™ and M-Trak™ bioinsecticides became the first two genetically engineered biopesticides to receive federal regulatory approval for commercial sale, and both subsequently were registered in all 50 states.

Each of these products is highly specific to one or more target pests, and is harmless to animals and beneficial insects. All of them break down naturally, leaving no toxic residue in food, water or soil.

Mycogen will introduce M-Peril on a limited basis for the upcoming growing season.

Sensenig's Sponsors Dairy Meetings

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Sensenig's Feed Mill sponsored its annual dairy producer meetings recently at the Harvest Drive Restaurant near Intercourse. A total of 270 dairy farmers attended the three educational meetings.

Dr. Don Jaquette, a Central Soya Feed Company nutritionist from Decatur, Ind., discussed anion/cation balance and its role in a sound dry cow program. He introduced two new anion/cation products, Pre Lact PAC and Pre Lact Dry Cow Supplement.

Jaquette also discussed a new hay substitute from Master Mix called Dairy Ruff. It is a ¾ " pellet designed to be fed at the rate of 3 to 7 lbs. per head day, which provides an economical and convenient replacement for high priced alfalfa hay.

Central Soya Senior Livestock Veterinarian Dr. Jerry Stillabower discussed steps for improving feet and leg health and reproductive efficiency.

Monitoring Takes On Great Significance

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — In light of concern regarding safe use of drug therapies in food animals, mastitis monitoring has taken on greater significance.

Though violative drug residues in milk are minimal due to producer awareness and the 10-point Milk and Dairy Beef Quality Assurance Protocol, clinical mastitis treatments remain the primary cause of the few violative residues that occur.

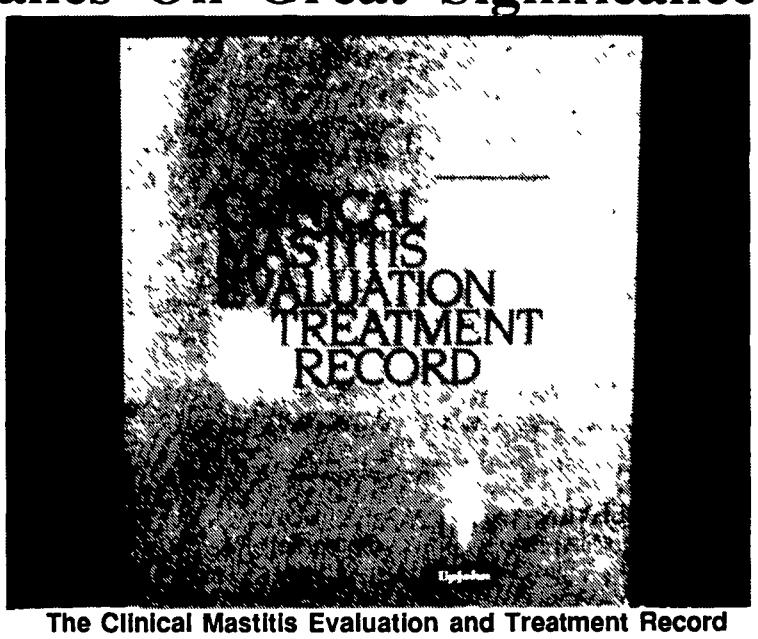
According to Jeffrey Reneau, DVM, MS, extension dairy specialist at the University of Minnesota, "Of the violative antibiotic residues found in Wisconsin bulk tank milk samples in 1991, 82 percent were the result of a mishap following treatment of cows for mastitis."

That's why Reneau, as chairman of the mastitis committee for the American Association of Bovine Practitioners (AABP), set out to create a system that would help dairy producers and veterinarians accurately record and track mastitis treatments. The resulting Clinical Mastitis Evaluation and Treatment Record debuted at the 1993 annual meeting of the National Mastitis Council in Kansas City, Mo.

The new guide was developed by Reneau and his AABP mastitis committee colleagues and sponsored by The Upjohn Company.

"The guide gives veterinarians a mastitis management tool that they can share with their clients," Reneau said. "It includes several 'master' recordkeeping sheets that veterinarians can duplicate and distribute to their dairy clients."

Reneau adds that the guides are a complement to the 10-point quality assurance program, because Point #7 of that plan states that dairy producers should "maintain and use proper treatment records on all treated animals."



The Clinical Mastitis Evaluation and Treatment Record was developed by Reneau and his AABP mastitis committee colleagues. "The guide gives veterinarians a mastitis management tool that they can share with their clients," Reneau said.

Three basic pools of information are recorded: daily herd treatment records, individual cow treatment and residue evaluation records, and clinical mastitis evaluation records.

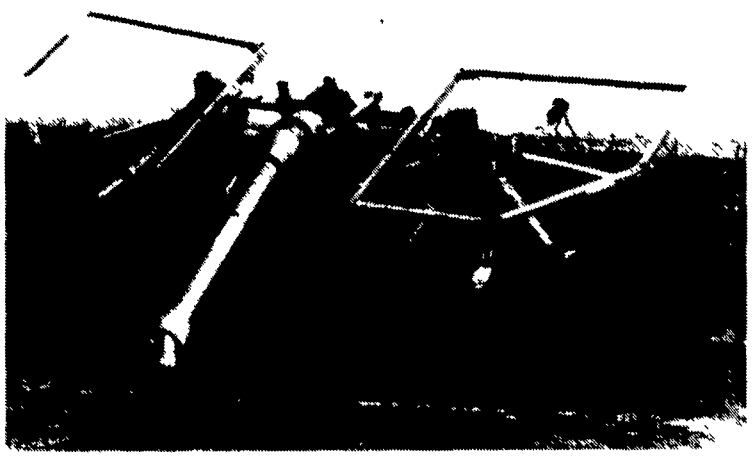
Reneau says the records are useful in tracking treated cows to avoid violative drug residues, as well as valuable in overall herd-health evaluation.

"By evaluating these records together, veterinarians and producers can pinpoint potential problems in the herd," Reneau said. "They may discover chronic cows that need to be culled or recognize trends in herd mastitis incidence that can be corrected through management."

Upjohn's sponsorship of the guides supports the firm's efforts to reduce the incidence of violative residues and improve herd performance, said Gary Heinrich, UpJohn's dairy product marketing manager. "The Upjohn Company is committed to helping dairy producers improve the health and profitability of their herds," he said. "The guide is a part of our 'Safe Food: It's My Business' program that promotes quality assurance."

Guides are available free to veterinarians, extension agents, university dairy specialists and dairy plant field representatives. Spanish versions are available upon request. For either version, write Joseph Burkett, The Upjohn Company, 9823 190 45, 7000 Portage Road, Kalamazoo, MI 49001.

Pull-Type Tedder Added To Line



GIBSON CITY, Ill. — M&W Gear has added a new 10-foot pull-type tedder to the M&W hay product line. The new model PT102 Tedder uses two rotors with six double tines per rotor to quickly separate the crop for faster drying.

Only a 15 horsepower tractor equipped with 540 RPM PTO drive is required. A slip clutch protects the drive line while big 16-inch x 6.50 x 8-inch tires roll over ruts and holes. Adjustments can be made in seconds without tools and maintenance is minimal. The 9-foot 9-inch working width can be quickly reduced to a narrow 6-inch transport width without the need of tools.

For more information, contact M&W Gear Company, 1020 South Sangamon Avenue, Gibson City, IL 60936.

Calculate Nitrogen Credits To Lower Fertilizer Costs

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn. — Corn growers can use nitrogen credits to reduce production costs if they plant corn in a rotation with alfalfa or soybeans. Northup King agronimist Herb Damsteegt said with a good stand of alfalfa the previous year, corn growers can reduce nitrogen applications by 150 pounds per acre on first-year corn. Growers can also take a 50- to 75-pound nitrogen credit for second-year corn on the same field. Taking a late-fall cutting on alfalfa, however, reduces these nitrogen credits by 50 pounds per acre each year.

Soybeans also provide nitrogen for next season's corn crop. When corn follows soybeans, Damsteegt said growers can take a nitrogen credit equal to one pound of nitrogen for each bushel of soybeans produced the previous year.

Corn growers can subtract nitrogen credits after calculating their crop's fertility needs based on estimated yields. Damsteegt said growers should back those estimates up with a soil test. The best time to pull soil samples is in late fall, when the soil cools down and denitrification stops, or in spring.

Damsteegt said while the concept of nitrogen credits has been around for a long time, changing attitudes are causing increased interest. In the 1980s, growers were advised to add extra fertilizer to build up soil nutritient levels. In 1993, many growers will only apply the nutritients their crop will use.

Care At Calving Pays Big Dividends

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Spring calving season is here and it's one of the most rewarding times for cattlemen. A top calf crop doesn't just happen — it's the result of long-term planning, superior herd health care, and proven breeding practices.

Dr. John Hough, director of education and research for the American Polled Hereford Association, said by investing a little extra time with your herd, you may increase survival rates, calf health, and ensure more efficient growth potential.

During the last 30 to 45 days of pregnancy, cows will generally need a 10 to 15 percent increase in the ration volume, if they're being fed. For example, this can be an extra two pounds of hay in order to furnish an additional pound of total digestible nutrients (TDN).

The ration quality should be improved at the same time by slightly increasing the protein level. For example, the extra two pounds of hay may be legume or legume-grass mixture. You can also increase protein levels with blocks, liquid supplements, range cubes, or grazing small grain pastures for a short while every four or five days.

"Besides proper nutrition, a good calving site is important so you can keep an eye on calving heifers and cows," Hough said. " A small, clean, heavily-sodded pasture will work fine. This allows the cow to calve under natural conditions, rather than being restricted to a stall, shed or pen. Clean, portable calving sheds are beneficial, especially in areas where it may be difficult to check on the cows daily. It is best to avoid muddy lots and crowded enclosures."

Cows will normally calve in a one to three-hour period. If calving occurs normally, the cow should be left alone. If at all possible, it's best to check the calf almost as soon as it hits the ground. If delivery has been normal, it's unlikely you will encounter any problems.

"Make sure the calf is breathing and the nostrils are cleared of fetal membranes and mucus," Hough said. "If they are obstructed, quickly remove the material. If the calf is not breathing, try blowing into its nostrils and applying pressure to the chest areas. Or, use a straw to tickle inside the calf's nostrils to stimulate sneezing or coughing."

The calf should stand and nurse within 30 to 45 minutes after birth. If the calf is weak or chilled, rub it briskly with dry cloth or burlap bag to speed circulation.

Getting the colostrum, or first milk, into the calf is very important. The colostrum is highly concentrated in nutrients and antibodies to help prevent calf diseases.

Dipping the navel cord into a disinfectant solution can help prevent infection. Many types of disinfectant are available through veterinarians or animal health suppliers.

Once the calf is standing and has been claimed by the cow, most early calf loss problems are eliminated. After this point, most losses are due to scours. The risk of scours can be lowered by keeping the cow and calf in a clean environment and making sure nutritional needs are met. Should scours develop, standard treatment may help, but if you're the least unsure, contact a veterinarian.

Keeping the cow in top shape after birth will help ensure rebreeding on schedule, generally within 80-85 days.

"By providing good care to the cow and calf, you'll increase the probability of profitable calving and rebreeding seasons," Hough said.

Directory Designed To Improve Tractor Safety

MARSHFIELD, Wis. — A recently updated directory produced here continues publicly-supported efforts to help reduce the risk of injuries from rollover accidents.

Tractor rollover accidents have killed at least 132 farmers annually in the United States during the last eight years, ranking as the single most common cause of fatal farm injuries, while hundreds more are injured, according to the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH).

"Rollover Protection Directory: A Guide to Tractor Roll Bars and Other Rollover Protective Structures," has recently been revised, published and distributed through the Wisconsin Rural Health Research Center, a program of Marshfield Clinic's Research and Education Division. The directory identifies resources to help individuals equip wheeled agricultural tractors to reduce the chance of rollover injuries and fatalities. The information includes the availability of rollover protection structures (ROPS) for a broad range of tractor makes, models, and age.

The directory, which lists U.S. and Canada manufacturers of rollover protective structures and roll-protected cabs for agricultural tractors, was compiled by the Wisconsin Rural Health Research Center with the financial assistance of the Office of Rural Health Policy, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

To ensure the general availability of ROPS information, complimentary copies of the directory have been sent to county agricultural agents and agricultural cooperatives throughout the U.S. and to U.S. and Canadian farm equipment dealers affiliated with Deere and Co., Kubota Tractor Corp., and /or Massey Ferguson. Dealers who are members of state, regional or provincial associations affiliated with the North American Equipment Dealers Association also were mailed directories. Those interested in obtaining information about ROPS for their tractors are encouraged to contact one of these local sources.

Farm equipment dealers who are not affiliated with the organizations identified above can request a directory by writing to Wisconsin Rural Health Research Center, 1000 North Oak Ave., Marshfield, WI 54449.

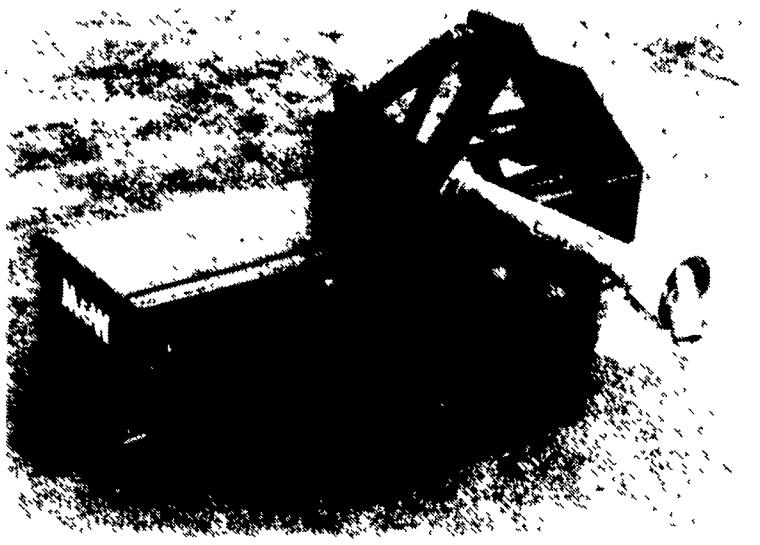
"Available literature suggests that when used with a seat belt, a properly manufactured and installed ROPS can help protect a farmer from serious injury or death in case of an overturn," said John Schmelzer, project coordinator.

Data collected in Nebraska and reported by NIOSH illustrate this point. Since 1967, about 40 percent of the 250 persons involved in unprotected tractor rollover incidents died. In contrast, there was one fatality among 61 persons operating ROPS-equipped tractors that rolled over. In that fatality, the operator was not personally restrained and was thrown from the ROPS protective area in the rollover.

The American Society of Agricultural Engineers has recommended since 1985 that all new tractors be equipped with rollover protection. However, many farmers own tractors built before 1985 that are not equipped with rollover protection, and for post-1985 tractors, occasionally ROPS are removed and lost, or become damaged.

The Wisconsin Rural Health Research Center is a program of the Marshfield Medical Research Foundation, the research division of Marshfield Clinic, Marshfield, Wis.

Tillers Have Adjustable Skids



GIBSON CITY, Ill. — M&W Gear Company has added three new tillers to the M&W product lines. TOP 10 REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD BUY A TANCO BALE WRAPPER

TANCO	COMPETITION
1. Five (5) points of support on turntable: Four heavy duty rollers add stability and support to the perimeter of the turntable in addition to the main central shaft. This allows Tanco wrappers to safely wrap the heaviest silage bales on rough or uneven ground.	Competition uses one central shaft to support the entire turntable mechanism.
2. Single solid belt on turntable: The single belt enables Tanco wrappers to effectively wrap misshapen or soggy bales providing a positive surface for bale rotation.	Competition uses either no belts between rollers, or multiple belts which can allow bales to sag and slip.
3. Adjustable extendable axle: On trailed models the extendable axle provides a wide, stable wheel base when loading bales. Eliminates the need for counterweights.	Competition must add counterweights or tandem axles as options to effectively handle silage bales.
4. Top rollers on turntable: Extra rollers provide security to keep bales in place when wrapping at high RPM's (25) or on uneven terrain.	Competition - None.
5. Unloading ramp on trailed models: The ramp allows bales to be unloaded gently. When a wrapped bale falls hard it can "burp". Once it "burps" the bale does not re-seal. The ramp gives a smooth transition between the ground and turntable.	Competition - optional drop mats are available.
6. Turntable braking System: When unloading wrapped bales its important that the turntable doesn't move out of position. A twisted turntable can offload a bale crooked, exposing it to possible tearing of plastic on frame parts. Tanco machines are equipped with a braking system that holds the turntable in place when unloading bales.	Competition - either no system, or rely on hydraulics to hold the turntable.
7. Film indexing system: As temperature rises, plastic stretches more. To ensure proper overlap and complete coverage when it's hot outside, Tanco machines are equipped with an exclusive, simple, indexing system to compenstate for those times. The operator can eliminate potential "windows" in the wrapping procedure.	Competition - None.
8. Positive bale positioning: while being wrapped, bales are rotated the exact distance required to obtain optimum coverage.	Competition uses continuous hydraulic advance. Bales can slip or over-rotate giving an uneven wrap.
9. Durability: Tanco's subframe is the heaviest of any machine available in North America. The low profile design keeps silage bales closer to the ground with a low center of gravity for stability. Tanco's features are the result of years of experience and input from hundreds of individual, and commercial users in Europe.	Competition - Compare.
10. Prices: From a basic 3 point Model AW200, to the trailed Model AW400 with automatic cut & start, bale and batch counter, and tractor seat controls, Tanco prices for 1993 are lower than ever. Pay less for more features and durability than any other bale wrapper on the market.	Competition - Compare.

Council Honors Spencer

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The National Mastitis Council honored Steven Spencer with its Distinguished Service Award at a recent meeting in Kansas City. Spencer, professor of dairy science in Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science, was recognized for "outstanding service and devotion to the high ideals and objectives of the National Mastitis Council."

Under Spencer's leadership in 1992-1993, the council established a research foundation to fund research on mastitis and produced a two-part videotape, titled "Mastitis Prevention and Control."

Spencer is responsible for Penn State's educational and technical assistance programs in milking and milk handling equipment, as well as the coordination of educational efforts in udder health and mastitis control. He joined the Dairy and Animal Science faculty in 1960.

ASA Urges Administration To Quickly Resume Soy Shipments

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The American Soybean Association (ASA) is strongly urging the Administration and Congress to resume shipment of soybeans and soybean products to Russia and other countries of the Former Soviet Union (FSU).

ASA President and Florida soybean farmer Steve Yoder said ASA has discussed alternative programs with USDA Secretary Mike Espy, and has encouraged him to help the U.S. restore this key export market for soybean farmers.

"The Former Soviet Union needs assistance at this time because of the current unstable economic situation there," Yoder said. "U.S. soybean farmers have been supporting efforts to build demand for soy protein and oil, and now we need to help secure the necessary programs to get the product to them."

Russia is more than $400 million in arrears on total credits of $4 billion. Exports to the FSU under GSM-102 export credit sales were suspended in December after Russia failed to repay bank loans guaranteed under the program.

The FSU is a valuable market for U.S. soybean farmers. In 1991-1992, the Soviet Union imported more than 150 million bushels of soybean equivalent in the form of U.S. soybeans and soymeal. About halfway into the 1992-1993 marketing year, the FSU has only imported 12.5 million bushels of U.S. soybean equivalent.

EPDs Beneficial To Breeding Goals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Expected Progeny Differences (EPDs) are becoming increasingly important to successful breeding programs as demand increases for higher-quality, cost-efficient cattle. EPDs have been used in the dairy industry for a long time, but it's relatively recent that the beef industry has relied heavily on them.

Today, most breed associations maintain genetic information on all recorded animals. The material is available to commercial breeders simply for the asking, and most times at no charge.

Dr. John Hough, director of education and research for the American Polled Hereford Association, said EPDs are not hard to understand if a few basic principles are known.

"The variability between animals is never totally genetic. EPDs are simply predictions of what is expected to occur when specific animals are bred. The more performance information that is available from an animal and its relatives, the more accurate are the EPDs."

EPDs are calculated using information from three sources: the individual animal's own performance records, performance of its relatives and most importantly, the performance of its progeny. All EPDs are based on an animal's relative performance compared to its contemporaries.

Information compiled in EPD records can be used to help evaluate a number of traits for your herd. EPDs are maintained for birth weight, weaning weight, yearling weight, milk production, milk and growth, and scrotal circumference. Calving ease and other traits are sometimes recorded as well.

Hough says buying bulls with complete EPD records makes substantial economic sense. By knowing what type of offspring the bull has the capability to produce, you can better predict performance from your herd and begin making herd improvements more efficiently.

It is important to be aware of EPD accuracies, which can vary among bulls. A breed's sire summary will generally define the accuracy values of each animal and, some breed associations have started including complete histories of each bull listed in their summaries.

Hough emphasizes EPDs are a good tool only when used with complete understanding.

"One of the most important things to remember," he said, "is not to compare EPDs across breeds. EPD values are only correct within a single breed."

Additional information on EPDs and how to use them as a cost-cutting management tool can be obtained from your county extension agent, your land-grant university, or a breed association.

Hog Producers Attend Seminar

SUNBURY (Nortumberland Co.) — More than 40 hog producers attended a meeting recently to improve swine production efficiency sponsored by Northeastern Farm Credit and the Sunbury Animal Hospital.

The program included a videotaped presentation of selected parts from the 1993 Swine Production Short Course from Purdue University. Topics included lean growth modeling, starter pig nutrition, disease control, and worker health and were facilitated by Dr. James Temple, veterinarian at the Sunbury Animal Hospital.

"We are glad we attended. The seminar was very informative and worth our time," said Randy and Joelle Arnold, hog producers from Milton, "especially the information on workers health."

Neal Wertz, a hog operator from Danville, believes there is a need for more seminars similar to this one for improved swine production management. "I was very pleased with the large turnout. I feel there is a real need in our industry for information on related issues to improve the swine production efficiency of our operations," said Wertz.

Temple agrees. Temple came up with the idea for the meeting and met with Wertz. They contacted Bill Hartman at Northeastern Farm Credit, ACA, to help sponsor and conduct the meeting.

Videotapes from Purdue University on a wide variety of topics can be borrowed from the Sunbury Animal Hospital. A few of the more than 30 topics include "Processing Baby Pigs," "Water Source and Supply," "Manure Storage," and "Animal Manure as a Plant Nutrient Source."

NAFTA Presents Continued Problems

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. — The key to improving the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) will be in the side agreements according to a panel discussion on trade at the National Farmers Union (NFU) Convention.

Mike Dunn, NFU vice-president for government relations, who moderated the discussion, reported that U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor had told him flatly that NAFTA would not be renegotiated due to President Clinton's support of the agreement; however, Clinton would allow side agreements to NAFTA to deal with unresolved issues on environmental, labor, and other concerns.

Katherine Brunett, the legislative aide on trade to Senator Alan Simpson (R-WY), said such side agreements currently would not be subject to "fast track" rules. Under fast track, Congress can only pass or reject the entire NAFTA package as proposed without amendment. Fast track authority expires June 1, 1993.

North Dakota Farmers Union (NDFU) President Alan Bergman said U.S. negotiators were outnegotiated in the U.S.-Canadian Free Trade Agreement with the result that producers of durum wheat and other commodities have been hurt.

Bergman reported U.S. imports of Canadian durum have risen from no imports in the mid-1980s to the point where they are now the equivalent of almost twenty five percent of the domestic market. He said Canada has discovered it is more profitable to compete in the U.S. domestic market than to compete with the U.S. in the international marketplace.

The NDFU president explained that the U.S. export enhancement program helps maintain a higher priced domestic market, therefore making it attractive for Canadians. Bergman warned that U.S. farmers may suffer further under the proposed NAFTA trade agreement with Mexico.

Oklahoma Farmers Union President Phillip Klutts expressed concern over increased imports of live cattle from Mexico under NAFTA. He also questioned whether consumer safety could be properly maintained with food imported from Mexico, where health and sanitation standards are lower than those in the United States.

Brunett said, "I would urge you to tell President Clinton to come up with a domestic program before reaching any trade agreement." She suggested that President Clinton was proceeding too quickly with too many changes in domestic agricultural policy, including increased taxes on energy and income and reductions in agricultural spending. She expressed concern whether the U.S. was weakening its farm programs before it completes negotiations with other nations to do the same.

Tom Mahr, legislative aide on trade to Senator Kent Conrad (D-ND) said few senators are yet overly-concerned with NAFTA. He indicated the agreement would easily pass in the Senate if a vote were held today. Concern will likely increase as more of the ingredients are known and as the side agreements are developed, he added.

The panelists agreed that the current sugar provisions within NAFTA are unacceptable. Brunett pointed out that PepsiCo had reportedly invested $57 million toward developing a corn sweetener industry in Mexico. She said domestic sugar products are concerned that Mexican sugar exports to the U.S. would increase dramatically as Mexico develops its corn sweetener industry.

The panelists also basically agreed that agriculture was being sacrificed under NAFTA to gain benefits for other sectors of the national economy.

They also expressed concern that Mexico could become a springboard for exports to the U.S. from other countries. Mahr pointed out that any disputes regarding rules of origin must be taken to the country of origin and not the U.S. He indicated that legal costs involved in such cases could cost in the hundreds of thousands of dollars. "Strong rules of origin exist, but how do we enforce them?" Mahr asked.

Burnett contended that NAFTA would help stop the flow of jobs from the U.S. to Mexico as Mexico upgrades its standards, making it less attractive for industry to relocate there. However, other panelists challenged the contention.

Corn Grower President Has Model Conservation Farm
EVERETT NEWSWANGER Managing Editor
QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.)— If weeds are not controlled you are going to get a greatly reduced crop. The most single limiting factor in corn production is water and weeds take it
The author of this quote Grant Troop president Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers, knows how to grow a good crop of corn. But he is also very sensitive to the environmental health of his land
Weed control depends on chemicals Troop said But with what EPA has done in the last 20 years, a lot of safety has been insured to the environment The chemicals that are dangerous are not on the market anymore Many of the earlier chemicals I didn t use anyway because of the suspicion of danger I use all the safeguards and recommendations on the label and I feel I m doing a safe job of farming It works for me
Troop graduated from Penn State with a degree in agronomy in 1973 and immediately started to work the family farm west of Georgetown Before his time the farm was a concentrated livestock operation and there were only four large fields on the farm These fields contained gullies deep enough to bury a car in them But strip and contour farming were initiated and developed in the 60s Now the land is in 21 small fields and can be called a model conservation

UNIVERSITY PARK Corn Co This year will certainly go down in the talk of two seasons for corn producers in Pennsylvania
On one hand those in south ern counties had generally excellent growing conditions and very good yields For those in central to northern counties a short cool season magnified any mismanagement mistakes and reduced yields and grain quality
There s something to be learned from both seasons In the southern areas the record yields reflected the use of continually improving, management and hybrids combined with a reasonably good season
Another factor that contributed to the high yields was cooler than normal temperatures While it s true that corn grows well on hot summer nights these high temperatures also cause the plants to burn off more of the sugars produced by photosynthesis during the day Cool temperatures reduce this process known as dark respiration and these sugars eventually contribute to higher yield

Lancaster Farming Official Corn Talk Publication
With this issue of Corn Talk Lancaster Farming becomes the official publication for the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association Inc (PMCGA) Officials of the corn growers group recently asked Lancaster Farming to publish their quarterly newsletter because of the added exposure their Corn Talk section will receive from Lancaster Farming readers members and non members alike
We re excited about this new arrangement with Lancaster Farming and appreciate their support of the project said Corn Troop PMCGA president
Three more issues of Corn Talk are planned for 1993 — spring summer and fall with April 17 as the next issue date Each issue will contain useful grower information interviews with corn growers association members with the state and national associations

Zone-Builder Slices Through To Zone-Till

KALIDA, Ohio — Eliminating the yield limiting effects of hardpan is the first step toward successful adoption of the Zone-Tillage™ soil management system. The Rawson Zone-Builder™ deep-till implement from Unverferth is designed specifically for this purpose.

The Rawson Zone-Builder deep-till implement slices through hardpan to create a passage-way that allows plant roots and soil moisture to move freely into the subsoil. Unless this is done, plants can only use the nutrients and soil moisture above the hardpan, making them vulnerable to the weather extremes of drought or excess moisture.

The deep-tillage operation is equally effective when done in the fall or spring and whether you till between every or every other row. If done as a spring operation, the Zone-Builder deep tillage tool can also be used to side-dress nitrogen at the same time using optional Zone-till sealers.

The Rawson Zone-Builder deep-till implement from Unverferth features automatic reset and special alloy steel shanks that dig down and through compacted soil. A 20-inch ripple coulter that cuts residue leads each shank through the field.

Available with four or six shanks, the Zone-Builder deep-till implement from Unverferth is adjustable to virtually any row spacing. The one inch replaceable shank points slice through the hardpan opening with minimal surface soil disturbance. The shanks can be positioned to work directly under the rows, or between them, to a depth of 26 inches.

The zone-tillage soil management system combines the seedbed preparation benefits of conventional tillage with the conservation compliance benefits of no-till and ridge-till, without sacrificing yield.

Rawson zone-till products are manufactured and marketed through Unverferth Mfg. Co., Inc., a leading manufacturer of quality agricultural wheel systems, grain handling, seed handling, tillage equipment, and the Brent line of products.

For more information about the Zone-Builder deep till implement, the zone-tillage soil management system, and the entire line of Rawson zone-till products, contact Unverferth Manufacturing Company, Inc., P.O. Box 357, Kalida, OH 45853, (800) 322-6301 or (419) 532-3121.

Keep Your Tractor Out Of The Woods

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Because it can perform a wide variety of tasks, a tractor in many ways is the backbone of the farm. But there are some places a farm tractor is not meant to go — the woods, for instance.

Most of Pennsylvania's forest land — 79 percent — is privately owned. Many farmers have woodlots, which they use for recreation, firewood, wildlife habitat, or as a source of extra income from timber harvesting. But accidents can happen if farmers try to use standard farm machinery in the forest.

"Over the past three years, 11 Pennsylvanians have died while using tractors in woodlots," said Dennis Murphy, professor of agricultural engineering in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "Another six were seriously injured."

Farm tractors are not designed to drive in rough, uneven forest terrain, or to move or pull trees, logs, and firewood. "There simply is no safe way to operate a farm tractor in the woods," said Lee Stover, research assistant in Penn State's School of Forest Resources. "There are too many hazards for even the most skilled tractor operator."

The most obvious hazard is the woodlot terrain, which can significantly increase the risk of a tractor overturn. "The ground in a woodlot is likely to be uneven and littered with large rocks, debris, stumps and tree roots," Stover said. "These conditions can alter the tractor's center of gravity, making it more prone to overturns."

Falling trees and branches present another hazard. "Too many tractors don't even have roll-over protective structures, let alone structures that protect the driver from falling objects," said Murphy. "Even if a falling branch isn't very heavy, it can startle the operator and cause him or her to lose control of the tractor."

Accidents can occur when farmers try to drag logs from the woods. "Logs being dragged have a tendency to catch on the ground," said Stover. "Then two types of accidents can happen. When a log suddenly digs into the ground, the rearward pull may be quick and strong enough to cause a rear overturn. If the tractor is strong enough to dislodge the stuck log, the suddenly freed log can snap forward, slamming into the rear of the tractor or its wheels."

Tree branches and limbs also can enter the driver's compartment, injuring the driver. "Forestry equipment has metal screening to protect operators from this hazard," Stover said. "This screening also protects the operator from chains or cables whipping into the compartment."

Dead trees present another hazard. "Many dead trees, or snags, are just waiting for an excuse to fall," said Stover. "A tractor running over its roots can be enough to make a dead tree fall in that direction. It can happen so quickly that the driver has no time to get out of harm's way."

The best policy is to use the proper equipment when working in the forest. "Don't misuse your tractor," Murphy said. "If you're looking to harvest your woodlot, work with professionals who have machinery designed for operation in the forest. Don't lose your life just to save a few dollars."

Dekalb's New Products Provide Economic Benefits

DEKALB, Ill. — Dekalb Plant Genetics has released 25 new corn, soybean, and sorghum products for sale to farmers in what company officials are calling one of the most extensive product advancements in recent years.

Dekalb President Tom Rice said the hybrids and varieties are targeted for specific areas where their improved performance features offer substantial economic benefits to farmers.

Among the 13 corn hybrid releases are products in nearly all maturities offering improved performance under different management practices. According to extensive company tests, the hybrids offer more return per acre and many feature improved defensive characteristics.

Among the new releases are products that offer more yield, suitability for reduced tillage, improved standability, faster grain drydown at harvest, and tolerance to European corn borer, southern virus complex, and drought.

Rice said Dekalb's 16 most important corn hybrids in 1992 provided a 6.2 bushel advantage over all competitors in nearly 1,000 field analysis comparison trial (FACT) head-to-head comparisons. The new releases will add to that advantage in future comparisons.

"Dekalb's continued investment in research has provided hybrids with significantly improved value for our customers," he said.

The eight new soybean varieties offer yield improvements in each maturity zone as well. Two of the varieties will offer cyst nematode resistance in earlier maturities.

Rice said this pest continues to spread and to reduce soybean yields for farmers. Genetic resistance is part of the management program farmers can use to minimize the yield reduction.

The new soybean releases also possess features that fit the current trend toward no-till, drill farming. Rice pointed to improved seedling vigor, emergence, and standability which translate into better yields. For soils that retain moisture and foster disease development, several of the new varieties carry more specific phytophthora root rot resistance.

Among the four sorghum hybrid advancements were three medium to medium-late maturing grain sorghums and a new sorghum-sudangrass hybrid.

"We are excited with the traits these additions bring to the Dekalb sorghum product line," Rice said.

Since 1956, when Dekalb introduced the first sorghum hybrid, yields have increased over threefold, adding more than $575 million to annual farm income. For each dollar producers invest in sorghum seed, they harvest an estimated $6 return.

"We are pleased that our research program has contributed to this advancement with innovative plant features and yield improvements," Rice said.

Growers can obtain more information from their Dekalb dealer about the new products developed specifically for their growing conditions. They can see these hybrids and varieties growing in fields and demonstration plots this summer.

Cargill Joins Effort To Prevent Farm-Related Accidents

MINNETONKA, Minn. — Cargill's network of community service, Cargill CARES, recently announced the formation of a new partnership with a nonprofit organization dedicated to preventing farm-related childhood injuries, health risks and fatalities.

Fertilizer Division President Fritz Corrigan and Agriculture Sector President Dan Huber announced the partnership with Farm Safety 4 Just Kids last fall, after the organization was presented with a $50,000 lead grant.

"We have been dedicated to serving farmers for 127 years, and it is fitting to serve their families as well, Corrigan said. "Farming presents real hazards. About 300 kids are killed each year in farm accidents and thousands are seriously injured."

"Cargill's safety efforts have worked successfully in our workplace and can easily be focused on children in their farm surroundings," Huber said.

Farm Safety 4 Just Kids was founded in 1986 in Earlham, Iowa, by Marilyn Adams after her 11-year-old son, Keith, suffocated in a gravity-flow wagon on her farm. "You cannot believe what goes on in your heart and your mind when your child is missing," she said.

"We target young people for our message, and Keith is still the reason," Adams said. "We believe prevention is the kay. That is why this new program with Cargill is special. Together, I know we can get the message out to kids to be careful. Let me tell you, it works."

Adams began Farm Safety 4 Just Kids by helping a group of local farm children design and distribute warning decals for farm equipment. The group has since grown into a national organization and works with FFA, 4-H, farm shows, and other agricultural organizations to educate children and adults about farm safety and to increase their awareness of the life-threatening situations found on farms.

Cargill formed Cargill CARES in 1990 to become more involved in issues that are important to the communities where Cargill businesses operate.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

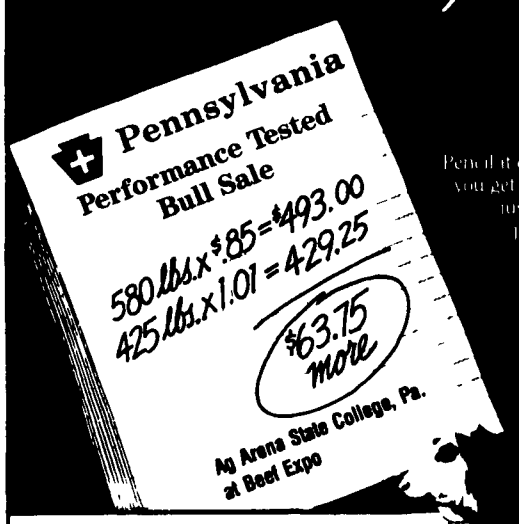
Simmental Bulls
that increase growth while improving calving ease.

When they weigh more, they pay more.



Pencil it out for yourself. Despite the premium you get for those lightweight calves, the dollars just aren't there. And it's total dollars that pay the bills.

Simmental-sired calves are in demand. As top replacement females or as fast gaining feeders that produce more red meat, less fat.

Why fool around with lightweights? Simmental. More pounds, more dollars.

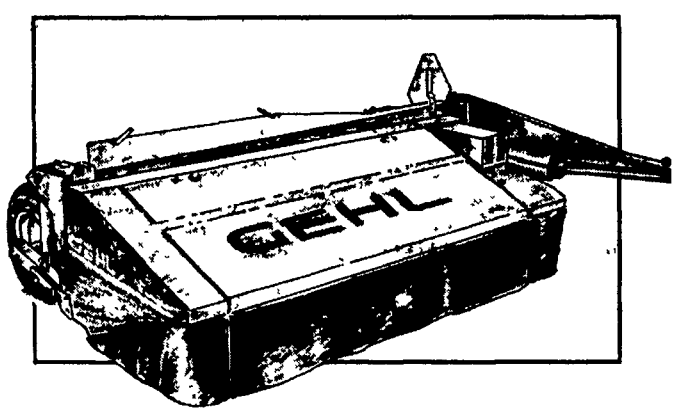
GEHL

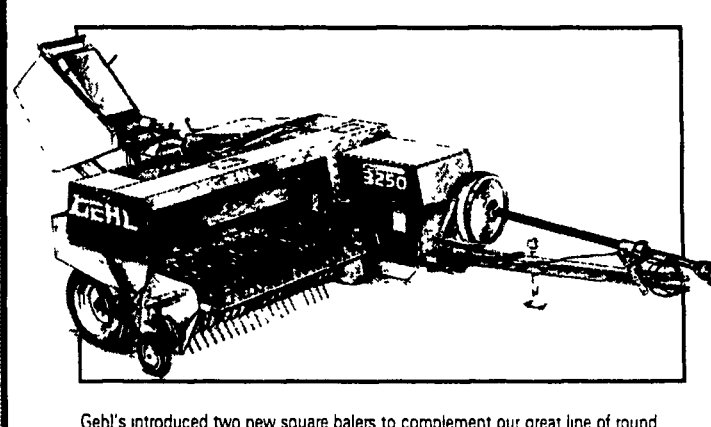
COST CUTTERS



Gehl has two all-new disc mower conditioners to cut your crop down to size, fast and easy. The DC2340 has 7 discs and a 9 foot cutting width; the DC2360 has 8 discs and a 10-1/2 foot cutting width.

- High speed discs – Each disc has two knives to slice through the toughest crops and conditions; the disc gear drive operates in an oil bath for long life.
- Sturdy frame – Cradles the cutterbar for extra protection and durability.
- 540 or 1,000 rpm driveline with equal-angle hitch for smooth power transfer.
- Standard hydraulic tongue – Makes it easy to position the unit without leaving the tractor seat.

SQUARE DEAL



Gehl's introduced two new square balers to complement our great line of round balers and other Gehl haytools Both balers make standard 14x18 inch bales and offer these proven features

- Dependable knotter – Has fewer parts for more reliability and stronger knots, tie after tie
- Wide pickups – With close spaced tines, flared side sheets and standard gauge wheel, the pickup brings in all of the crop
- Plunger system – Self-aligning for reduced wear
- Bale tension – Easily adjusted with two handles
- Hydraulic bale thrower – Has a self-contained hydraulic system and electric controls on the tractor (optional)
- Big twine storage – Holds 6 balls of twine

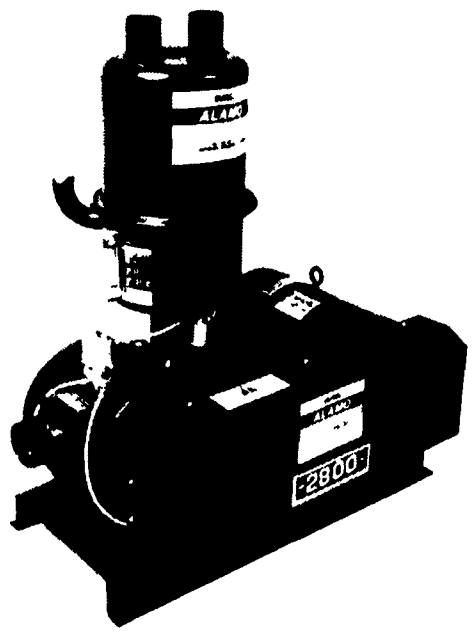
SURGE



Shown: Surge Alamo Belt-Drive 2800 Pump Package Complete With L-3 Oiler

Part or parcel... you'll save money with a Surge Alamo belt-drive vacuum pump.

Buy only the capacity you need now and expand your CFM as your requirements change. The Surge Alamo Vaccum Pump model 1400 PLUS produces 50 CFM (ASME) and can be converted to a model 2200 PLUS that delivers 78 CFM, or a model 2800 rated at 100 CFM by changing the motor and belt-drive package. Muffler and air filter are optional equipment.

Whichever model you choose, with these belt-drive pumps, you get quiet, smooth-running performance at a lower cost per CFM. That's Alamo reliability and Surge value.

For larger capacity vacuum systems, Surge Alamo direct-drive vacuum pumps offer CFM output ranging from 82 to 200 (ASME). Whatever size milking system you have, we can supply the proper vacuum system components.

WORK WATCH

The Work Watch Is Back!

In the mid-1980's we sold hundreds of work watches to hard-working individuals like yourself who needed an accurate, dependable timepiece. They needed a watch that would withstand the dust, moisture, bumps, and temperatures encountered on the farm, in the orchard, and in the woods. Many who bought the work watch told us it was the best watch they had ever owned. Now, due to the past success and the present need, we are again offering the work watch through Lancaster Farming.

Our work watch has all the features needed to endure the punishment you will put it through. The WATER RESISTANT seal will protect your watch when you irrigate fields, fix broken water systems, get milk splashed on your arm while feeding calves, or walk the fence in the rain, to find out where your cattle are getting out. Being SHOCK RESISTANT, your work watch will continue to work when it is slapped by a cow's tail, a falling board, or the belt shield that your arm slams against when your wrench slips off the bolt. While your watch is scraped by branches, rubbed against walls, and knocked against machinery, the low profile, SCRATCH RESISTANT, glass crystal will resist the scratches and cracks that render watches unreadable. Finally, the BATTERY POWERED QUARTZ movement of your work watch is accurate to within 2 minutes per year, and does not need to be wound, meaning that your watch will be on time, all the time, without any effort on your part.

A final proof of the strength of this watch and of its suitability to your needs is the warranty. If your work watch stops running within FIVE YEARS of the date of purchase, the manufacturer will repair or replace your watch at no charge. This is one of the longest warranties in the watch industry. AVIAN INFLUENZA: REDUCING THE RISKS OF INTRODUCTION TO YOUR FLOCK

Patty Dunn, DVM
Dept. of Veterinary Science

As of March 12, 1993, the facts concerning evidence of avian influenza (AI) in Pennsylvania are as follows:

1. We are not experiencing an outbreak of clinical AI in Pennsylvania. This means that we currently do not have birds that are sick and dying from AI infection.

2. Live AI virus of the H5 subtype has been isolated from 2 premises — one of which is a Philadelphia live bird market (now closed) and the other is a very recent isolation from a poultry premise in eastern Pennsylvania (now quarantined). Isolation of live virus means that virus may be actively circulating, with potential for spread to other birds and premises.

3. Birds with antibody to AI virus of the H5 subtype have been limited to less than 10 premises which include the Philadelphia live market. The presence of antibody is indirect evidence that virus was present in the bird for a period of time, probably within the last several months. It does not mean that the bird is now actively infected and a potential spreader of disease. However, the environments of birds that have been infected with virus may still contain some active virus particles. These premises have been further monitored by virus isolation attempts.

4. All flocks that are antibody positive, all premises that are virus isolation positive, and all Pennsylvania live bird markets are under quarantine at this time.

5. Birds from nonquarantined premises in Pennsylvania may be moved to recognized slaughter establishments.

6. Outside of Pennsylvania, AI virus has been isolated in several New York and New Jersey live bird markets. This is very good evidence that H5 AI virus is circulating in the live bird marketing system in the Mid-Atlantic region.

The importance of this information is that we need to recognize that we are in a potentially dangerous situation with regard to our commercial poultry flocks. Fortunately, the H5 virus that was isolated at the Philadelphia live market has not been found to be a highly lethal strain, but we know AI viruses can change character quickly. A fairly harmless type can become a highly dangerous type if allowed to circulate in our bird populations unchecked. Therefore, since most of our flocks, especially our larger commercial enterprises, are currently free of AI, we need to take strict precautions to keep it that way.

How can we reduce the risk of bringing AI into our poultry flocks? The answer can be summed up in one very important word — BIOSECURITY! Biosecurity in the current sense means keeping our flocks away from the virus, and the virus away from our flocks.

It may be helpful to think of biosecurity, or disease prevention measures, as very similar to crime prevention measures taken to lessen the risk of a prowler breaking into your home. What might happen if prevention measures are not taken? Let's think of the situation in terms of the following analogies:

Your home = Your poultry flock

Prowler = Virus

Fingerprints = Antibody

Police = Animal health professionals (company, regulatory, university)

Crime lab = Diagnostic laboratory

Prison = Quarantine

This is the situation: You have been lax about certain safety precautions such as keeping your home well-lit, trimming the front shrubbery, and putting good locks on doors and windows and remembering to use them. You come home at night after being away all day. You enter the house and notice a few things just aren't right — perhaps some belongings are out of place, or you see a muddy footprint that you know wasn't there when you left. You might suspect that a prowler has broken in. What you do not know at this point are the following: 1) Is the intruder still in the house? 2) Who is he? 3) How dangerous is he? For these reasons, you would be advised to leave, get to a phone, and call the police. You would not be advised to go in to look for the intruder yourself or re-arrange any of the evidence. Nor should you call your neighbor over to check out the house with you, because that would put you both at risk.

When the police come, they can look for the prowler, and if they find him (virus isolation), determine how dangerous he is. They can also examine the evidence he left behind. Even if the intruder is no longer on the premise, he has most likely left some fingerprints (antibody) behind that the crime lab can analyze and specifically link to his identity. Either way, the criminal, if still in the area, may be caught and locked up in prison (quarantine) so he won't visit anyone else. With a good policeman walking the beat (surveillance program) and an ongoing neighborhood watch (industry vigilance), this type of event should be less likely to occur. If it does occur, it would be less likely to become a widespread problem.

Your responsibility as a poultry producer is to keep the virus from "breaking in" to your flock. Common sense biosecurity measures should be practiced. These include the following:

1) Control the movement of people, poultry and equipment to prevent farm to farm contact. Don't allow unnecessary traffic of any of these on your premise.

2) Pay strict attention to sanitation of anything or anybody that is on or comes on to your farm. You and any necessary visitors should sanitize boots and wear clean protective clothing around your birds. Sanitize all vehicles, tires, and equipment. When possible, practice all in-all out management, and clean and disinfect all poultry houses before bringing in new birds.

3) Keep out wild or migratory birds and avoid any contact with them.

4) Don't deal directly or indirectly with live bird markets.

5) Promptly investigate any signs of disease in your flock, and stop bird movement until AI has been eliminated as a possible cause.

Another important part of biosecurity is monitoring for disease or disease-causing agents. We need to keep looking for virus and antibody to the virus in order to know that our flocks are remaining free of AI.

Participation in the AI Surveillance Program currently in place in our state is crucial. The submission of blood or dead carcasses from market birds and blood, dead carcasses or eggs from breeders and layers to the diagnostic laboratories for antibody testing is the basis of the program. Many companies are participating in the program, but all poultry producers need to submit samples if we are to get good information that is representative of our Pennsylvania poultry populations.

It is important to remember that we are now in a position to prevent introduction of virus into our poultry flocks. To do this, we must cooperate with all segments of the poultry industry in practicing biosecurity. The bottom line is that disease, like crime, doesn't pay, but disease prevention does!

The Key To Soil Management Is Fertilizing

Fertrell. FERTILIZER PRODUCTS

FERTRELL BLUE LABEL 1-1-1

Fertrell Blue Label is a multi-nutrient fertilizer used as a soil builder where soil fertility is low, or when nutrient maintenance is needed

Fertrell Blue Label provides time-release phosphorus and potassium, and since the rock powders are untreated, they contain the secondary nutrients calcium, magnesium and sulfur, as well as many trace minerals

It is formulated specifically for broadcast application on hay fields, pastures, or as a plow down for corn. Fertrell Blue Label can be used comparably to a 5-10 20 commercial fertilizer

FERTRELL BLUE K 1-1-2

Fertrell Blue K is an extension of Fertrell Blue Label with an increased potassium level formulated especially for crops requiring high levels of potash, such as alfalfa, corn silage, and vegetables It is excellent for correcting low potassium soils or where potassium would be the first limiting factor in crop production.

Fertrell Blue K is more convenient and efficient than applying single ingredients The potash ingredients are not highly leachable, and there is no need to worry about a high salt content The total nutrient value is comparable to a 5 10-30 commercial fertilizer

Is Your Farm Worthy To Be Named Dairy Of Distinction? Apply Now For This 1993 Beautification Recognition Program.

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

COVINGTON (Tioga County)—The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, Inc., is again looking for applications from nice looking dairy farm to reward the efforts made in beautification. Known as the Dairy of Distinction program, recognition is given to well-kept farmsteads to help with consumer acceptance of dairy products in the store.

State President Dan BAker, a dairyman from Covington, Tioga County, said the program has been well received and program leaders look forward to an excellent program in 1993.

"There are plenty of good looking dairy farms out there that have not been judged," Baker said. "And even those who have entered the selection process in the past years, without success should enter again."

The program provides rewards of recognition to producers who maintain attractive production sites. This recognition benefits the entire dairy industry, as well as individual dairymen. Not only does the favorable publicity generated by the program in the general press help bring modern farm practices to the attention of urban people, farmers use the distinction to promote their own operation or seek and hire farm labor.

Paul Nichols, the secretary for the Pennsylvania program, said applications may be sent to him any time after January 1, 1993. Deadline for applications is April 15. Judging is completed in May and is based on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds, and surroundings. The states are divided into districts and a local committee oversees the program in each district.

A team of judges designated by the local committee visits each farm and uses a score sheet to rate each farm. In Pennsylvania, in addition to this team of judges, the sanitarian for the farm's cooperative or dealer-handler is asked to be part of the judging process.

"One of the things I always tell people is that even though they may not now have the most fancy place, they can work toward the principles of the Dairy of Distinction program," Nichols said. "By doing this, they work toward a goal that encourages consumers to use more dairy products."

Winners receive a colorful, 18x24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to be placed at the entrance to the farmstead. In addition, as in past years, an 11x14-inch color portrait of the farm will be given by Lancaster Farming to each winning farm in the Pennsylvania program.

"As a dairy farmer, you work hard all year long, taking care of your farm," said Helen Fountain, program executive secretary. "In addition to managing your herd, there are lawns to mow, flowers to plant, and overall maintenance to keep farm buildings looking great. You deserve to be recognized for all the hard work, dedication and pride you put into your farmstead.

"It's time you and your farm received some recognition for your hard work. The coveted Dairy of Distinction award will give you that recognition, In addition your attractive farm will enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk, thereby stimulating milk sales and encourage public support for the dairy industry."

Active dairy farms in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania are eligible to apply for the award. Criteria for Dairy of Distinction awards include: clean and attractively finished buildings; neat landscaping, ditches, roads and lands; and well-maintained fences. Cleanliness of animals, barnyard, feed areas, as well as manure management, are also taken into consideration.

Applications are available from each state's program secretary or local cooperative extension. In New York, contact Carol Weddle, New York Holstein Assn., 957 Mitchell St., Box 190, Ithica, N.Y. 14851. In New Jersey, contact Angust Knispel, RD 1, Box 325, Pittstown, NJ 08867.

In Pennsylvania, you may contact Paul Nichols, American Dairy Association/Dairy Council, Tower Business Building, 239 Schuyler Ave., Kingston, PA 18704.

The North View Farm of the Calvin and Mary Will family in Somerset County is an example of the farms that were designated Dairy of Distinction last year. You are invited to use the application to have your farm named in 1993.

As a winner, you will receive a certificate and a nice metal sign to install at the end of your farm lane. In addition, LANCASTER FARMING will present a color farm portrait print to each of this year's winners in Pennsylvania. If your farm is a winner, be sure you or your district committee takes a color photograph of your farm and sends the negative and proof to LANCASTER FARMING in time for the awards ceremony.

High-Residue Field Cultivator For Large Operations

HUTCHINSON, Kan. — Krause Corporation recently announced the introduction of a giant five-section field cultivator, the 5650 Series. Offered in 47 foot - 62 foot sizes to match the needs of large operations, the 5650 fills a need for a large heavy-duty field cultivator that was designed to handle high-residue conditions when preparing seedbeds or incorporating herbicides.

Five bar main and wing frames feature a residue-tolerant 125 inches of fore and aft clearance. New heavy-duty two-piece K-Tines, standard equipment on the 5650 Series, provide 25 inches of underframe clearance for optimum residue flow through. The two-piece K-Tine features a rugged ½ inch x 3 inch upper leaf spring area and a high side loading strength to prevent the shank from "walking" around large weeds. Standard shank spacing is 9 inches to provide im-proved residue flow through and preserve more residue on the soil surface. Minimum side-to-side shank spacing of 36 inches on 9 inch spacing or 24 inches on 6 inch spacing ensures ample residue clearance. Six-inch shank spacing and/or spring cushioned C-Shanks are optional on the 5650. Spring cushioned C-shanks, with a 9 inch trip height, are a good choice for rocky field conditions.

A positive mechanical depth control system eliminates unwanted depth change problems due to hydraulic cylinder leak-downs associated with single-point depth control systems. Depth control and side-to-side leveling is accomplished on each section with a quick and easy-to-adjust hand crank.

Main and wing frame construction is of rugged 3 inch x 4 inch steel tubing. Tongue beams are massive 4 inch x 6 inch tubing to handle tough field conditions. Walking tandems on the main frame and wings provide excellent field flotation. Main frame tire size is 12.5L x 15 inches and wing frames 9.5L x 15 inches.

The five-section 5650 Series Field Cultivators feature overcenter fold for easy road transport. Transport width is 19 feet 9 inches on all models. Model 5648 features a transport height of 14 feet and Models 5654 and 5660, 16 feet 11 inches.

Finishing attachments include a 3-row tine or 3-row spike harrow to provide planter-ready seedbeds.

White-New Idea/Allied Products Refinanced

COLDWATER, Ohio — White-New Idea has announced that their parent company, Allied Products Corporation of Chicago, has reached agreement with its secured lenders in the restructuring of its senior secured debt.

The restructuring provides a multi-year arrangement for the remaining funded debt held by current lenders. Part of the restructuring involved realigning two divisions into wholly owned subsidiaries which have separate funding.

The multi-year refinancing agreement is a major step after previous extensions of shorter duration. White-New Idea President Rod Cooper sees this as extremely positive.

"As the largest division of Allied, we are very pleased with the multi-year arrangement," said Cooper. "We have been performing well, achieving our projections consistently month after month. Starting 1993 with good news of refinancing adds to the other positive signs we see for the year. Our equipment sales projections are positive while being realistic. The attitude of farmers at the recently completed winter shows is also encouraging."

Shaker Buddy Mixer™

A breakthrough for professional landscapers, greens keepers, nursery owners, home builders — anyone who needs an economical way to mix or separate materials.

Screening just became a one-man job — with the all-new Shaker Buddy Mixer. Tow it at normal highway speeds with a 3/4 ton pickup. Set up in less than two minutes by simply pressing its hydraulic lever. Change screens in less than 10 minutes with a socket wrench. And put it to work: sizing stone, screening loam, mixing soils, separating wood chips, even sizing coal. With the Shaker Buddy Mixer, it's all a one-man operation.

Made in the USA from heavy plate steel, The Shaker Buddy Mixer is designed for rugged, long-lasting performance on any job site. Put the Shaker Buddy to work for you. It screens as effectively as it cuts your costs.

Get your deal on a Farmhand CultiPacker today!

Farmhand WingPackers break clods, level seedbeds...then gently firm the soil to reduce air pockets and seal in moisture.

Flat fold WingPackers range from 19 to 36 wide. Behind a disk harrow or field cultivator they're an ideal final tool before planting. Behind a drill, they gently but firmly pack soil to increase seed-to-soil contact improving germination for even field stands.

Also Small Non-Fold Packers Available

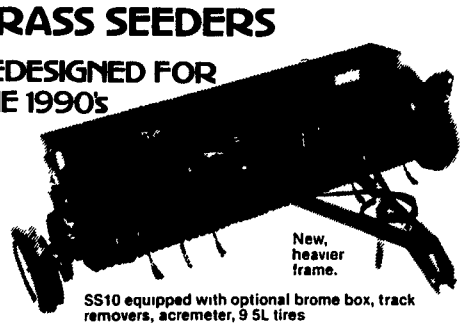
BRILLION SURE-STAND GRASS SEEDERS

REDESIGNED FOR THE 1990's



SS10 equipped with optional brome box, track removers, acremeter, 9 5L tires

Grass seed is a very expensive commodity By properly placing the grass seed in the top ½ " of a properly prepared seedbed you will realize maximum seed germination.
Because of Brillion's precision placement of the seeds, seeding rates can often be cut to nearly half of the rates previously used. In many cases the savings in seed alone will pay for a "Sure-Stand" Seeder in just a short time

Model SS10 - 10' Seeder With Acre Meter & Wheel Track Remover Kit

BRILLION PULVERIZERS

Good yields start with a properly prepared seedbed A firm seedbed is critical to maintain a uniform planting depth. The seedbed should be firm with fine soil particles at seed depth and should have a loose mulch on the surface to retard evaporation and conserve moisture
Some of the most valuable soil nutrients are locked in the clods left in your field The Brillion Pulverizer crushes clods to release those nutrients for use by growing plants At the same time air pockets are eliminated and moisture is drawn up the root zone by capillary action Good soil to seed contact creates more uniform germination, pollination and maturity . and that means increased crop yields and greater profits.

IN STOCK; 21', 23' & 25' X-Fold Pulverizers

Brillion

BRILLION P10 SERIES PULVERIZERS

Brillion's transport concept is new to the industry. Machine weight is hydraulically rotated over the wheels for transport. This reduces drawbar hitch weight considerably and provides ample clearance for transporting.

The VacuMeter is light-years ahead of the Finger Pickup and competitive meters in versatility, accuracy and speed

Access to the VacuMeter System is straight forward, so seed disks are easy to change. Note the simple design featuring only one moving part — the seed disk itself.

No tools needed—low maintenance design
No tools are required with the VacuMeter system when you need to change from one type or size of seed to another. Even the brush that holds the seed in the meter reservoir is easy to change.

Seed disks are made of space-age plastic and are the only moving part of the system. They require little maintenance compared to the constant demands of the finger pickup meter.
Seed disks are available for many row-crop seeds and sizes

LOOK TO MAHONING OUTDOOR FURNACE FOR EASY, WARM INEXPENSIVE LIVING!

Get Comforting Heat and Efficiency.

The Mahoning Outdoor Multi-Fuel Furnaces provide thermostat controlled heat by economically burning wood, coal or fuel oil. The furnace is placed 25-100 feet outside the structure to be heated; connections between the furnace and building are buried underground. Wood or coal is the primary burning fuel lasting 8-12 hours in the furnace For convenient, automatic firing the separate oil burner combustion chamber can provide heat until wood or coal burning is desired. Both Wood/Coal & the Fuel Oil burners are enclosed to heat the same water tank The purpose of the firebox is to heat the water-filled tank surrounding the outside unit, this heated water is then circulated through underground pipes into your home A heating coil is installed inside your existing heat system. The thermostat controls the blower which picks the heat off the coils and delivers warm air through existing ducts and registers There are safeties which eliminate the danger of over-pressurizing the system and automatic shutdown in case of a power failure The Mahoning Outdoor Furnace can also be connected to an existing hydronic heating system, that operates at 180° F or less, using fin tube baseboard, cast iron radiators or hanging hydronic heaters. Only the thermostat and heating coils are installed inside your home, eliminating open fire dangers, smoke, dust and messy kindling wood boxes. Adjust the thermostat for the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace to your comfort setting and it automatically controls the water pump and blower to circulate heat to your home. You may set the thermostat for your existing heat system to back-up the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace when not in operation or in case the firebox is left to burn out. An Aquastat senses the temperature of the water in the outside unit and automatically adjusts the combustion rate to maintain the correct temperature (normally 180 degrees).

Hot Water too...!

A Mahoning Outdoor Furnace is a heat exchanger By running a cold water line from your home to the outside unit, fresh household cold water can be heated and returned to the hot water plumbing in the house. A temporing valve adjusts the hot water at the faucets to a range of 120° to 160°. This boiler system will adapt to any existing plumbing. Heat your pool & hot tub with energy generated by a Mahoning Outdoor Furnace!

New M-F 100-140 hp tractors

Advanced QUADRAM Power makes a difference you can hear and feel.

Massey-Ferguson is setting the standards for the 90s with three new 100 to 140 hp high-performance tractors that deliver improved engine torque characteristics and fuel efficiency with lower noise levels and lower engine stress.

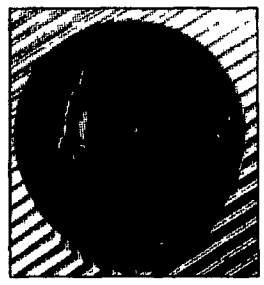
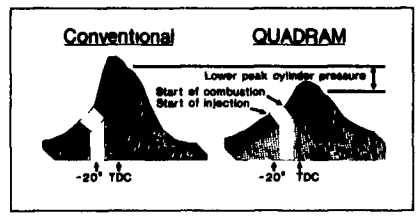
The key to quick, smooth, efficient combustion is complete air and fuel mixing.

The Quadram cylinders produce an intense swirl of air for quick and thorough mixing of the fuel and air after injection. As a result, injection can be delayed closer to top-dead-center (TDC).



A unique 4-lobed (QUAD) bowl on the crown of the piston maximizes the amount of air swirl in the combustion chamber.



Lower peak cylinder pressures and stresses result when less combustion takes place prior to TDC.

Perkins 1000 Series engines have a very small amount of combustion taking place prior to TDC. As a result, the engines are more efficient and powerful, with much lower noise and vibration.

You'll notice the Quadram difference right away. The engine runs smoother and quieter — up to 50% quieter than competitive engines.

But the only way you can really appreciate the M-F Quadram advantage is to actually see and hear the tractors perform. So even if you aren't currently in the market for a tractor of this size, you owe it to yourself to see the latest in agricultural engine technology.

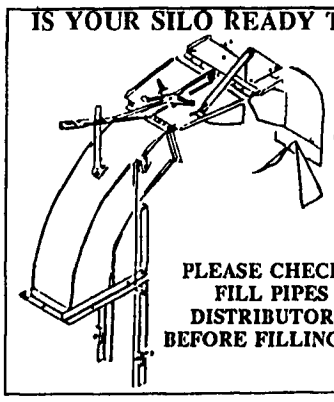
IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

New Ultimate EXT.™ The Breakthrough Diet That Helps Her Add Several Pounds A Day.

When it comes to weight control and eating, dairy cows aren't like most people. A successful cow's diet should produce more pounds, not less, and her body weight needs to stay up after freshening.

Our new dairy feed works that way: introducing Ultimate EXT™ from Purina® Ultimate EXT helps cows produce more milk: an average of five more pounds a day in over 14,000 cows. By helping cows reduce body weight loss after calving, Ultimate EXT also improves body condition which can enhance breeding efficiency.

To put more weight on your bottom line, ask us about new Ultimate EXT. It turns good cows into great ones.

Ohio Dairy Show Set For April

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The Ohio Purebred Dairy Cattle Association (PDCA) will sponsor the sixth annual Spring Dairy Spectacular, Spril 15-17, at the Ohio State Fairgrounds in Columbus.

The Spectacular will feature four breed shows and sales, including the Ohio Holstein Spring Show, the National Ayrshire Spring Show, the Ohio Jersey Show, and the Ohio Brown Swiss Show; a judging conference; the state 4-H and FFA judging contests; and activities for all dairy farm family members.

The show is open to dairy breeders from across the United States and Canada. The 1992 Dairy Spectacular attracted close to 700 head of cattle from 10 states and two Candian provinces.

George Barlass from Janesville, Wisconsin will judge the Ayrshire and Jersey shows, and Seminole, Oklahoma judge, Bobby Griggs, will preside over the Holstein and Brown Swiss shows.

The deadline for the $25 per head entry fee for all livestock entries is April 9. Entries after April 9 will cost $100 per head.

Trade Show and Judging Conference Also Featured

The annual Dairy Spectacular trade show will include more than 50 commercial exhibitors representing dairy industry suppliers, agribusiness firms and educational programs. Space is still available for commercial and educational exhibits, and booth reservations will be accepted through April 10 at a cost of $275 per booth.

The PDCA Judging Conference will take place Thursday, April 15 at noon. Individuals who successfully complete the conference will be approved to judge cattle at Ohio's county fairs.

Youth Programs

Youth will be an important focus of many of the Dairy Spectacular activities. Each of the four breeds will recognize junior winners in the individual classes.

In addition, The Buckeye Dairy Club of the Ohio State University will host the annual Buckeye Classic Sale, Friday, April 16 at 7:30 p.m. in Davey Arena.

According to club advisor Pete Spike, the members of the Buckeye Dairy club coordinate all of the work for the sale including selections, cataloging, advertising, barn crew, clipping, leading and clerking.

Last year more than 400 students, ages 9-19, competed in the annual 4-H and FFA judging contests to compare their skills at placing cattle and review dairy farm management practices. This year, the 4-H and FFA judging contests will take place Saturday, April 17 at 8:30 a.m. in Davey Arena.

For more information about the Ohio Spring Dairy Spectacular contact Gale Betterly, 3477 Revere Rd. Richfield, OH 44286; (216) 659-6485.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF TIMBER CONSTRUCTION

University, Poultry Industry Control AI

NEWARK, Del. — A 190-degree soapy water bath sprayed under pressure of 3,000 pounds per square inch is a frontline defense against the avian influenza (AI) virus. As unlikely as it may sound, truck washes are an integral part of keeping AI out of commercial broiler flocks on the Delmarva Peninsula.

"High-pressure truck washes are in important biosecurity measure for keeping this disease from multiplying in Delmarva," said Dan Palmer, University of Delaware Cooperative Extension poultry specialist.

Although AI poses no threat to human health, its effect on the $1.25-billion-per-year broiler industry and related grain industries on Delmarva could be devastating.

Poultry growers, broiler integrator companies, university researchers in the College of Agricultural Sciences, cooperative extension, state departments of agriculture, USDA, and the Delmarva Poultry Industry Inc. (DPI) have galvanized efforts to control spread of the disease since it was identified in Pennsylvania in January. Although no commercial flocks on Delmarva have been found to be positive for AI, exposure to the virus has been confirmed in two backyard flocks in Maryland.

To coordinate containment and eradication efforts, DPI publishes an emergency procedure manual on poultry disease that details steps to prevent introduction and spread of the disease. By following these procedures, university and industry personnel have been able to respond quickly and appropriately to the threat of AI.

Palmer and Cliff Hicklin, director of transportation for Allen's Family Foods, coordinated efforts to set up truck wash stations for all trucks headed to the Peninsula from outside points.

"The logistics of covering all major routes into the Peninsula have been mind-boggling," Palmer said.

The first route covered was for trucks coming onto the Peninsula from points north. Route 13 is the major access, and Tim's Truck Wash at routes 13 and 40 in Wilmington was ready to respond. Equipped with a wash pad and containment area for runoff from the wash, the station met all requirements. Owner Tim Eshelman stocked up on the required disinfectant and began washing 10 to 12 trucks per day. After a soapy bath, trucks are rinsed with hot water, then cold-rinsed with disinfectant.

Trucks that have been through the wash are issued certificates that allow the drivers entry to poultry company facilities. Some companies may require trucks to go through an additional disinfectant wash at the gate to their grounds.

Covering other points of entry to the Peninsula hasn't been as simple as the Wilmington station. A temporary truck wash is on standby in Queen Anne's County, Md. There, a sewage-treatment plant in Stevensville on Kent Island already had a containment pad to collect wash water. By contracting with a portable truck-wash company, a satisfactory station has been set up to cover this truck route from western Pennsylvania if DPI feels it is needed.

Palmer says another wash, if needed, will be set up in Pocomoke City, Md. This portable station on Sharp Energy property will cover traffic from the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Tunnel.

In addition to setting up biosecurity measures, university personnel have been extensively involved in virus isolation at laboratories in Newark under the direction of Dr. John K. Rosenberger, chair of the department of animal science and agricultural biotechnology. An active surveillance program also has been under way at the Poultry Disease Diagnostic Laboratory at the university's Research and Education Center in Georgetown.

Under the direction of Dr. Ed Odor, poultry pathologist, the diagnostic laboratory assists federal and state veterinarians in collecting blood samples from flocks. These samples are analyzed for indications of AI. Odor says the laboratory in Georgetown has tested nearly 40 flocks. So far, AI has not been detected.

"Flocks are tested if birds have been bought or sold at the live-poultry markets where avian influenza was discovered," he said. "We've continued an extensive surveillance of commercial flocks around Goldsboro, where AI was confirmed. All results have been negative. An extensive survey of backyard and commercial flocks near Laurel is now complete. All of these flocks also turned up negative."

During the month of February, DPI called a halt to educational seminars and meetings where large numbers of growers would interact and possibly spread AI. Only by the cooperation of all parties involved in the poultry industry can Delmarva's poultry be kept disease-free.

Cole's Majestic Percherons Prepare For Classic

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

CENTRE HALL (Centre Co.) — Inside the world of horses they're called gentle giants. Outside, they could simply be called massive.

And when the thick, solid horse stable door slides to the side, and out steps a full-grown black Percheron draft horse with cleats clicking on the concrete, one hopes it is a well trained giant.

Weighing close to one ton, these Centre County Percheron draft horses stand a majestic six feet high - just at the shoulders (or "withers" in horse language). And, said owner John Cole, they're "all power and muscle."

Cole, owner and operator of the Centre Hall Farm Store, and his family, raise, train, and compete with Percheron. They train and compete May through February, hitching horses every night at their Pennwoods Farm, getting the horses ready for competition.

Through repetition, Cole hones the horses' instinct for a certain position in a six or eight horse hitch, preparing them for qualifying shows that lead to the Classic Series.

Only 250 of the best hitches in the country are seen at the Classic, and Cole should know—the Pennwoods Farm team has placed third twice.

On the qualifying show circuit, Cole transports their team of six or eight horses, plus an extra, to eight major shows, including the Keystone International Livestock Exhibition (KILE) in Harrisburg, where 400-500 horses compete.

This 3-year-old Percheron named Luke weighs almost 2,000 pounds.

Weighing close to one ton, the Pennwoods Farm Percheron draft horses stand a majestic six feet high. John Cole, owner, prepares them for qualifying shows that lead to the Classics Series.

Other shows include the Indiana State Show, the Ohio State Show, the All Draft Show in Detroit, the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto, the Washington (D.C.) International, the Penn Nationals in Harrisburg, and the Okala Live Oak Invitational in Florida.

Out of these eight shows, the Pennwoods team placed first in five shows and second in three. Their goal is to win the Classic—to be recognized as the best Percheron hitch in North America.

But it takes teamwork. Not just with the horses, said Cole's wife Susan, but with their family. Son Chad is considered one of the best drivers in the country, while Cole calls son Chris the managing cog of the business. Future daughter-in-law Rhonda, who brings Clydesdale experience into the family, works with the spunkier Percheron and rides the show wagon with Chad. Daughter Kelly Zettle, and even a granddaughter, help out.

Cole relies on a driver from their Farm Store to manhandle their showrig, a 48 foot long by 10½ foot wide tractor trailer that holds nine horses, the show wagon, all of the harnesses, and a cart.

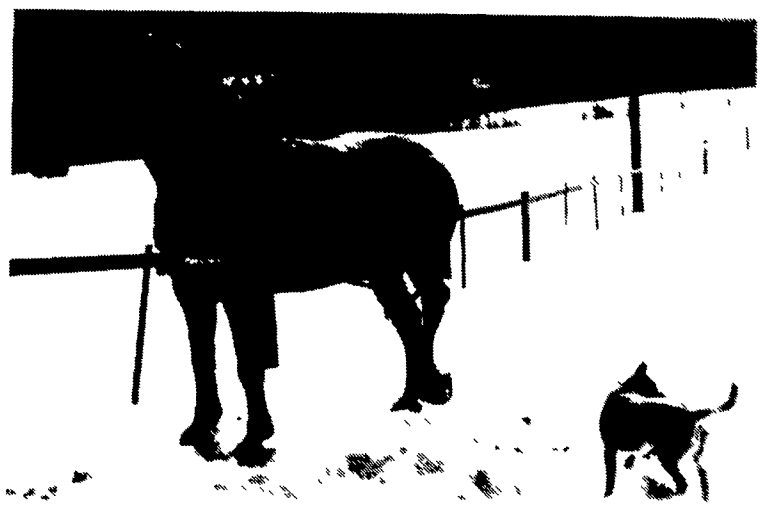
And teamwork wouldn't be complete without veterinarian Scott McCallister who knows the background of every horse.

The show horses take special care also. One full-grown hitching horse eats 10 pounds of grain a day, 30 pounds of hay, plus supplement.

But for the jet-black look, Percheron horses must be kept out of the bleaching sunlight. For this reason, Cole trains his horses at night under an artificially lit practice ring. For a sleak coat without a winter undercoat, Cole said he houses the horses with horse blankets under 16 hours of indoor light. Otherwise they'd have a winter coat in July.

One of seven or eight Percheron draft horse farms in Centre County, a county that totals more than 250 animals, Cole maintains 50 animals, including young stock. His herd increases by six to eight foals each year and, according to Susan, the "little black fillies sell like crazy."

John Cole became familiar with draft horses by watching his father till the fields with the "smaller" Belgian breed of draft horse. Percherons resemble their ancestor war horses which carried armored knights into battle. Legend even has it that Joan of Arc rode off to battle on a Percheron.



The frigid air and crisp snow made Mark, a gentle giant Percheron, frisky as he danced around his barn-mate, a blue healer dog.

Cole brought his first draft horse harness in 10th grade, began competitive hitching in 1981, and six-horse hitching in 1984. Now he owns one of the biggest hitches in the country, horses weighing almost 2,230 pounds and standing eighteen-two and eighteen-three hands high. Overall, a six-horse hitch with wagon can weigh seven tons.

Cole serves on the KILE board and the American Percheron Association board. As cochairman of the Horse Committee for KILE, Cole believes the KILE show is underrated. It is one of the top three shows in the country with two big nights of hitching and four types of hitches, Shire, Clydesdale, Belgian, and Percheron. It also has a big halter show.

To promote the industry, Pennwoods Farm is hosting a Pennsylvania Percheron Association informational clinic for beginners and hitching drills for experienced equine enthusiasts. The May 8 clinic is for ages nine to 19, with lunch provided. For more information, call the Coles at (814) 364-1885.

PFA Leader Asks For Federal Spending Discipline

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The leader of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) today called on Pennsylvania congressmen to defend private property rights from regulatory excesses and to support federal spending discipline rather than new or increased taxes to balance the budget.

PFA president Keith Eckel, a grain and vegetable farmer from Clarks Summit, Lackawanna County, made his remarks at a Congressional breakfast hosted by PFA during its annual Washington Legislative Tour. A day earlier, about 200 farmers had visited their lawmakers to explain PFA's position on important national issues.

PFA is a statewide, voluntary farm organization which represents 23,189 families in 54 local units. It is affiliated with the nation's largest general farm organization, the four-million member American Farm Bureau Federation.

Eckel told Pennsylvania's congressional delegation that "Agriculture has no objections for local protection of endangered species, woodlands, or for that matter, building better education facilities and systems. However, we do not wish to pay for these endeavors by sacrificing a basic right . . . the right to own private property."

He urged lawmakers to support passage of legislation, S.177 and H.R. 561, which would require federal agencies to assess the effect of their regulations on property rights. "This legislation is important," Eckel said, "But we can't stop there. Every piece of legislation, like wetlands and endangered species, must include strong protection for private property rights. Our future and our family's future are dependent upon this effort."

Turning to the federal budget, Eckel said, "Pennsylvania farmers are encouraged about the possibility of cuts in spending to reduce the deficit, but without spending cuts first the American public, including farmers, will not accept increased taxes.

"We have experienced too many of these tax increases, dedicated to deficit reduction, that fall into disarray and bring additions to the deficit." A recent example, Eckel said, is the 1990 budget summit agreement. According to American Farm Bureau, the agreement was supposed to cut the deficit by $500 billion but ended up increasing it by $54 billion. Americans were promised a $366 billion spending cut, but paid $64 billion more instead.

Instead of new taxes, Eckel called on Congress to support passage of resolutions, S.J. Res. 41 and H.J. Res. 103, for a Constitutional amendment to balance the budget. The President should also be given line item veto authority, he said.

One new tax proposal is particularly harmful to agriculture, Eckel said. "The proposed energy tax of the Clinton Administration will cost the American farmer nearly two percent of his net income," he said. "That two percent cannot be passed on through the food chain. The farmer must eat that as an operating cost. The farm economic recovery of the 1980's was greatly helped by stable or declining input costs, such as fuel, fertilizers and pesticides. Direct cost of the energy tax accounts for about one-half of the total BTUs used in a farming operation. The other half comes as higher prices for inputs such as fertilizers and farm chemicals. Pennsylvania's economy is recovering, but if agriculture and other industries in the Keystone State are forced to pay an unjust energy tax from their income, we could be faced with another major economic setback."

Eckel also reminded legislators that USDA spending for agriculture has already been cut by 50 percent since 1986. "Production agriculture has taken more than its fair share of program cuts, while many other areas of federal spending have gone untouched," he said.

"President Clinton has targeted several areas of agriculture for budget cuts and revenue increases," Eckel said. "Some proposals will create hardships for individual producers. Since 1982, production agriculture has been a prominent part of every deficit-reduction package." PFA and American Farm Bureau favor an across-the-board freeze in all federal spending, including entitlements, as the best way to reduce the deficit without increasing taxes or damaging the economy.

Penn State Offers Labor Strategies Workshop

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — A one-day labor management workshop, sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension, will be offered at two locations — Wednesday, March 24, at the Harvest Drive Restaurant here and on Thursday, March 25 at the Days Inn Conference Center in Allentown. Both start at 9 a.m.

The Labor Strategies Workshops will be conducted by Bernie Erven, a nationally renowned speaker in labor management. Erven is a professor and extension specialist in labor management at Ohio State University.

Hiring and keeping labor has become a serious concern for many businesses. Increasingly, plans for improving productivity, changing size, bringing a family member into the business, and changing technology are constrained by people's considerations. Also, human resource issues such as recruiting, training, delegating, motivating, and compensating are now "must" issues for attention in many businesses today.

The labor management workshop is for anyone who supervises or plans to supervise others in the nonagricultural and agricultural businesses, including production, sales, marketing, accounting, and personnel.

The workshops have been planned to provide the best current information available on labor management. The major topics to be covered are recruiting and choosing the labor you want and need, competing with other businesses that offer higher wages, getting labor to work after they're hired, employee incentive programs, management styles needed, what do successful businesses look like?, effective leadership in business, keeping peace in the family, and removing barriers to communication.

Erven has 27 years experience of listening carefully to what people are saying about their business situations.

Preregistration for the program is recommended. Registration is limited to 45 participants on a first-come, first-serve basis. The registration fee is $30 per single or $45 per couple and walk-ins will be $35 per single or $50 per couple. The registration cost includes lunch, refreshments, and materials.

Registration brochures and information are available from the Northampton County extension by calling (215) 746-1970.

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — The Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series (M-W) took another 45-cent hit in January bringing it down to $10.89 on 3.5 percent milk. It is the lowest price since June 1991.

That makes the total drop $1.70, since the peak last July. But, there are indications that the fall in prices will slow and may bottom out in March.

The last drop in cheese prices was 3 cents on blocks, taking it down to $1.16 a pound on Jan. 15, and there has been no change in the last four weeks. Even in the five weeks before that, blocks fell only 1 cent compared to an 8 cent drop in the five weeks from Nov. 6 to Dec. 4.

Even though cheese markets have moved from "weak" to "unsettled" in USDA reports, the total drop now is 22 cents a pound since the peak in August. That translates into $2.20 a hundredweight for milk, but the M-W has fallen only $1.70 in that time.

However, nonfat powder markets have strengthened in recent months and are competing with cheese for milk supplies.

A good indication is the increase in the Class III-A price in Federal Order 4 that is now 11 cents higher than Class III. The Class III-A price was established in Federal Orders 1 and 4 to reflect the market price of butter and powder separately from cheese prices.

Certainly the drop in cheese prices has affected the Class III price, but powder prices have pulled up the Class III-A price to make it competitive.

More to Come

There's no doubt that there will be further drops in the M-W, but not so serious as during the last two months.

The low may be better than the $10.40 expected, and start going up a little sooner in the spring.

It also appears that some cheese dealers are already starting to rebuild inventories and that's always a good sign. In addition, 1992 set a record high of $13.7 billion in cheese with production of 6.5 billion pounds.

That was 6 percent higher than 1991, indicating a continuing strong demand for cheese. That's so, because nearly all of it went into commercial sales, exports, or government programs rather than into Commodity Credit Corporation storages.

Of course, to match that was a record high in milk production of 152 billion pounds and December made the eighth consecutive month of year-over-year production increases, again, with no end in sight.

Looking Back

Even with that record high production nationally, milk prices in 1992 averaged out pretty well, compared to 1991.

The M-W price being the Basic Formula Price in all federal orders is a good indicator.

In 1991 the average M-W was $11.05. In 1992 it was $11.88, representing an increase of 83 cents or 7.5 percent.

At the same time, the average blend price in Order 2 increased from $11.80 in 1991 to $12.80 in 1992 for an 8.5 percent increase.

Sure, you could go back to 1989 and 1990 when you had record high prices for reasons that may never occur again, but at least you should have seen some improvement in your bank balance in 1992 over 1991.

Of course these are not farm prices, but, unless you've seen important drops in your premiums or production, the percent differences should be close.

If you had a drop in production, be sure to apply for a refund at your local ASCS office before the deadline on March 15.

A.I. Signs Two Farms, Several Bulls

DEFOREST, Wis. — A Midwestern artificial insemination company has announced that it recently signed on two Pennsylvania farms and several Pennsylvania Holstein bulls for its testing program.

American Breeders Service, a division of W.R. Grace & Co.-Conn., has made several similar announcements in recent months.

Signing on as contract farms were the Alan Kozak farm of Prosperity, and the Nevin and Dennis Houtz operation in Spring Mills.

In the program, the farms are to use semen from young dairy bulls that are genetically tested by ABS. The company's program allows test herds to select which young bulls they would like to sample, while also allowing the option to ABS to send them semen from a non-specific young sire.

Proofs for the bulls are based on the production and type classification records of the daughters. It takes years to proof a bull.

ABS also announced its acquisition of six young bulls for testing through its progeny program.

From Pen-Col Farms in Millville, ABS got 29 H7403 Jewels, a Long-Haven Traditi Perry-Et son from Pen-Col Gene Juliet-Et, a Bell Gene daughter with a Very Good mammary. His dam is backed by a Very Good Valiant daughter.

Plum Hill Holsteins and G. Sheypuk, of Jermyn, bred 29 H7409 Nu-Haven, a Rothrock Tradition Leadman son out of Valhalla Rex Marla, a Bell Rex daughter that produced more than 24,500 pounds of 3.5-percent protein milk as a 2-year-old. She is backed by an Excellent 90-point Chief Mark daughter.

George and Paul Sheypuk, of Jermyn, bred 29 H7397 Classifier, a Pickard-Acres Vic Kai son from Shey-Land Blackstar Cathy-Et, a Very Good 2-year-old with a record of almost 25,000 pounds of milk.

Classifier's dam scored an Excellent mammary and the grandam was an 88-point Dam of Merit Bell daughter.

Rick Wadel, of Shippensburg, bred 29 H7367 Man Power that ABS acquired for testing. Man Power is a Long-Haven Tradition Perry-Et son out of Wa-Del RC Blackstar Mandy-Et. His dam is backed by an 86-point Chief Mark daughter from the Kristeen family.

Donald and Jill Stonerook, of Martinsburg, bred 29 J3032 Diplomat, a Highland Duncan Lester son out of Stoney Hollow Partson Doris. Doris is a Fair Weather Parson-Et daughter. Diplomat's grandam is an 82-point Silver Beacon daughter.

Peter Kemmeren of Bainbridge, N.Y., bred 29 H7308 Kemview Vanetas Vision, but the bull was owned by Vaneta Syndicate of Canton before being accepted into the ABS testing program.

Vision is an Exranco Thor son from Kemview Blackstar Vaneta-Et, an 89-point Blackstar 2-year-old with an Excellent mammary and averaging more than 82 pounds of milk a day as a senior yearling. The grandam is an 88-point Enhancer daughter that produced almost 25,000 pounds of milk as a 2-year-old.
